

Nassau County Commission on Human Rights Vigilance To Stop Bias Crime

Despite bias crimes being down year-over year, there have been recent incidences in our communities

Swastikas recently appeared on walls at Nassau Community College. In a separate incidences, swastikas appeared in three Mineola locations and in Massapequa.

In response to these and other incidences of bias crime, the Nassau County Commission on Human Rights will host a vigil on Tuesday, January 10th at 5:30pm. Clergy and elected officials will speak, as well as community leaders and activists.

The Commission, under a directive from County Executive Edward P. Mangano, will also intensify public education efforts.
