Subject: Adverse Information – MEMO

Vendor: Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health USA, Inc.

On the Business History form, the vendor answered yes to Item #13. The vendor had an OSHA violation. OSHA issued a citation on March 28, 2024, noting that employer did not provide requisite formaldehyde information to employees around November 2023 and at times prior. Boehringer completed the abatement on April 23, 2024, and OSHA issued a final order on the citation May 14, 2024, noting completion. There was no fine issued.

On February 2026 there was a Rabies vaccine recall. The vendor reports that it enacted a Voluntary Stop Distribution and Sale following a complaint received from a customer regarding three vials of deionized water diluent which were potentially mislabeled with USDA Label 105966 for Code 1905.26. Out of precaution, all 6,459 units of Code 1905.26, Serial 18684; 6,433 units of Rabies Vaccine, Killed Virus, Code 1905.27, Serial 22150; and 6,459 units of Code 1905.27, Serial 22151, were stopped at their facility and were destroyed. The vendor took additional market action for Code 1905.26, Serial 18665. The vendor provided customer contact scripts instructing customers to return products to them. The vendor provided an investigation summary to the USDA that indicated the root cause analysis determined the mislabeling of sterile diluent was due to a line clearance error during the filling process. They submitted a corrective action plan including effectiveness checks for three months following completion of the plan. There were no fines.

In March 2024 the FDA issued a warning letter regarding SENVELGO for making false or misleading claims about its safety and effectiveness. The promotional materials in question were removed from distribution and the claims were revised in accordance with FDA guidance. There was no fine.

In 2023 there was an Anti-trust/price-fixing fine. It was not Animal Health-related but was a fine imposed by the European Commission against the vendor's German affiliate, Boehringer Ingelheim, in October 2023 relating to price fixing of the active pharmaceutical ingredient N-Butyl bromide Scopolamine/Hyoscine (SNBB). The European Commission confirmed that Alkaloids of Australia, Alkaloids Corp., Boehringer, Linnea, and Transo-Pharm all admitted involvement in the cartel and agreed to settle the investigation with the fine.

The Department has reviewed the above information and finds the vendor responsible for this award.

Hi Maria,

Here is the information requested:

OSHA violations (if not already provided)- Information already provided

Rabies vaccine recall (February 2026) and relation to the product we are purchasing
We enacted a Voluntary Stop Distribution and Sale following a complaint received from a customer regarding three vials of deionized water diluent which were potentially mislabeled with USDA Label 105966 for Code 1905.26. Out of precaution, all 6,459 units of Code 1905.26, Serial 18684; 6,433 units of Rabies Vaccine, Killed Virus, Code 1905.27, Serial 22150; and 6,459 units of Code 1905.27, Serial 22151, were stopped at our facility. and were destroyed. We took additional market action for Code 1905.26, Serial 18665. We provided customer contact scripts instructing customers to return products to us. We provided an investigation summary to the USDA that indicated the root cause analysis determined the mislabeling of sterile diluent was due to a line clearance error during the filling process. We submitted corrective action plan including effectiveness checks for three months following completion of the plan. There were no fines.

FDA warning letter (March 2024)
FDA issued a warning letter regarding SENVELGO for making false or misleading claims about its safety and effectiveness. There was no fine. The promotional materials in question were removed from distribution and the claims were revised in accordance with FDA guidance.

Anti-trust / price-fixing fine (2023). This was not related to the Animal Health business

Thank you

Hi Maria,

It came back fast...here you go:

OSHA issued a citation on March 28, 2024 noting that employer did not provide requisite formaldehyde information to employees around November 2023 and at times prior. Boehringer completed abatement on April 23, 2024 and OSHA issued a final order on the citation May 14, 2024, noting completion. There was no fine issued.

For the price fixing inquiry, it was not Animal Health-related, but from public searching we found a fine imposed by the European Commission against our German affiliate, Boehringer Ingelheim, in October 2023 relating to price fixing of the active pharmaceutical ingredient N-Butylbromide Scopolamine/Hyoscine (SNBB). Details on the fine and settlement are available at Commission fines pharma companies

Our Company

Our purpose is to transform the lives of patients and animals for generations. It brings a strong sense of urgency to the work of our more than 54,000 employees, especially in areas where the medical need for innovation is high.

Building on more than 140 years of scientific innovation, we now have the richest Human Pharma pipeline to date and are committed to introducing new treatments in therapeutic areas including cardiovascular, renal and metabolic health, cancer, eye health, inflammatory diseases, obesity and liver health.

Our Animal Health business plays a key role in the fight against transboundary diseases such as avian influenza, the bluetongue virus and foot and mouth disease, and operates at the intersection of public, animal, and environmental health. It is also one of the world's leading providers of therapeutics and preventive care for pets.

Boehringer Ingelheim has been family-owned since it was founded in 1885. In 2025, the company generated sales of EUR 27.8 billion and invested EUR 5.8 billion in research and development for Human Pharma alone, making it one of the world's top 20 pharmaceutical companies.

The Shareholders' Perspective

Dear Reader,

At Boehringer Ingelheim we see our purpose in serving patients, in "Transforming lives for generations" as we defined it. Our unique structure allows us to do this with a very long perspective. Believing in the power of innovation, persistently pursuing breakthroughs, and putting long-term impact over short-term returns by continuously committing to invest above industry standards enables us to deliver towards our purpose.

The successful registration and launch of JASCAYD® and HERNEXEOS® in 2025 are clear proof of our ability to innovate and to address high unmet medical need. These new products have also been recognized externally by the US FDA as breakthrough therapies (Breakthrough Therapy Designation) already early on in their development. Looking ahead, the company aims for up to 20 new launches in Human Pharma until 2030, driving the renewal of our portfolio.

After 18 years of dedicated and successful stewardship of the organization my cousin Christian Boehringer handed over the baton to me. On behalf of the shareholders as well as the entire Boehringer Ingelheim organization I would like to thank him for the many years of service. With Shashank Deshpande taking over the Chairmanship of the Board of Managing Directors from me and Harsha Deshmukh joining the company at the beginning of 2026, I would also like to thank the Board of Managing Directors for their leadership into the next cycle of innovation and launches during 2025.

Success is the result of the combined commitment of all employees at Boehringer Ingelheim. The contribution of each and every one is critical to us achieving our goals. On behalf of the shareholders, I therefore would like to thank our more than 54,000 employees for a successful 2025.

Aspiring to achieve medical breakthroughs, we know that we cannot succeed alone. We stand on the fundaments of a thriving ecosystem of academic and research communities, which enables the detection and addressing of emerging health threats. Partnerships throughout the value chain are key to our ability to deliver. I also would like to thank all our partners who supported us on our journey.

To be able to reach patients we depend on an environment where regulators and governments appreciate the value we add to the system and embrace the power of technology to drive innovation in all areas of the health continuum. Innovating together will serve the needs of patients and ensure Boehringer Ingelheim's competitiveness in an ever more competitive environment.

Key Aspects 2025

Dear Reader,

2025 was a year defined by meaningful progress across both our Human Pharma and Animal Health businesses. We made significant strides in advancing our strategic plan and delivering on our long-term commitment to the patients, communities, and animals we serve.

We achieved 7.3% sales growth in constant currencies, with both Human Pharma and Animal Health contributing meaningfully. This marks more than a decade of consecutive annual sales growth — a testament to our long-term strategy rooted in science, innovation, and patient focus.

In Human Pharma, our core products JARDIANCE® and OFEV® once again demonstrated the strength of our portfolio and our purpose: improving outcomes for patients living with serious, often life-limiting diseases.

This past year, we also strengthened our portfolio with two important launches. JASCAYD® (nerandomilast) was approved in both the US and China and represents the first innovative therapy for idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis in more than a decade. HERNEXEOS® (zongertinib) marked our return to oncology, providing a new treatment option for people with HER2-mutant advanced non-small cell lung cancer. Both products were granted Breakthrough Therapy Designation by the US FDA.

Across Animal Health, our teams made true contributions in 2025. Working side by side with farmers, veterinarians, and governments, they helped combat diseases such as avian influenza, foot-and-mouth disease, and bluetongue virus serotype 3 (BTV-3). BULTAVO® 3, the first vaccine to prevent both clinical signs and mortality from BTV-3, was a key contributor, as was VAXXITEK® HVT+IBD+H5, our advanced trivalent poultry vaccine. NEXGARD® continued its trajectory as the leading parasiticide brand worldwide.

Strong R&D pipeline in Human Pharma

Innovation is and remains our cornerstone. In 2025, we invested EUR 6.4 billion in R&D — 22.9% of sales — placing us among the strongest R&D investors in the industry. Our pipeline now includes more than 80 projects, and over the next years we anticipate a wave of new therapy approvals, including for survodutide, our novel dual agonist targeting obesity and fatty liver disease also known as MASH.

As a family-owned company active in more than 130 countries across human and animal health, we take the long view. We choose to lead in areas of profound medical and societal need. And we continue to advocate for a shift in healthcare from late intervention to early action, working closely with governments, health authorities, care providers, patients, and communities to strengthen prevention, early detection, and integrated approaches to care.

To our employees and partners around the world we want to say: thank you. Your passion, expertise, and dedication make every accomplishment possible. Together, we are shaping a healthier future for generations to come.

Independent and family-owned, we pursue a strategy that is aimed at securing our independence in the long term through the research, development, production and marketing of innovation-based solutions in areas where medical and therapeutic needs are still unanswered or inadequately addressed. This goal inspires all of our approximately 54,300 employees to make a real and significant contribution to the health of humans and animals alike. We are one of the world's leading research-based pharmaceutical companies and serve patients in over 130 markets.

The parent company of the Boehringer Ingelheim Group is C.H. Boehringer Sohn AG & Co. KG (CHBS). The Board of Managing Directors of Boehringer AG – the personally liable partner of CHBS – is responsible for the management of the Group.

In addition to the Board of Managing Directors, CHBS has two other statutory bodies: The "Shareholders' Committee," which is made up of non-executive members, represents the shareholders and serves as the highest approval and supervisory body. The "Advisory Board" – composed of independent members from various industries – complements the expertise of the Board of Managing Directors and the shareholders and advises both bodies from an external perspective.

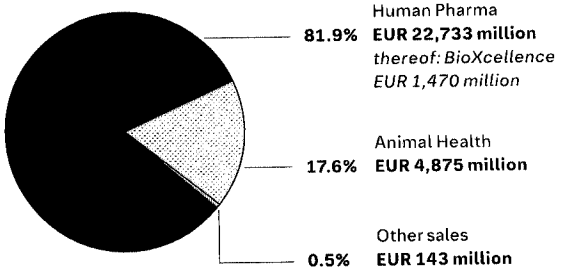
Net sales by business



Boehringer Ingelheim is divided into two business units: Human Pharma and Animal Health. The Human Pharma business is the mainstay of our activities and accounts for 81.9% of overall sales. This business unit is underpinned by an innovative portfolio, and in many cases its products are standard treatments in medicine. Our research and development (R&D) focuses on the therapeutic areas of cardiovascular, renal and metabolic diseases, oncology, respiratory diseases, and immunology. We also accelerate our R&D efforts in eye health and mental health.

Our best-selling product in 2025 was JARDIANCE®. JARDIANCE® is a versatile medicine used for several important treatments: it is used to treat type 2 diabetes and symptomatic chronic heart failure (HFpEF and HFrEF). In addition, JARDIANCE® is approved for the treatment of adults with chronic kidney disease by the European Medicines Agency (EMA) and the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA). OFEV® was also one of our most important medicines in 2025. It is used for the treatment of the respiratory disease idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis (IPF) and also in a further indication – systemic sclerosis with interstitial lung disease (SSc-ILD). In addition, four other preparations contributed particularly to Boehringer Ingelheim's corporate success: TRAJENTA®, which is used for the treatment of type 2 diabetes; SPIRIVA®, which is used for the treatment of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) as well as asthma; and ACTILYSE® and METALYSE®, which are used to treat various blood clots. In 2025, JASCAYD® also allowed us to launch a new oral therapy option for adults with idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis (IPF) for the first time on the American market. In December, JASCAYD® was also approved for the treatment of progressive pulmonary fibrosis (PPF) in China and the US. In addition, we were able to reach an important milestone with HERNEXEOS®: the medicine is approved for the treatment of pre-treated patients with HER2-mutated non-small cell lung carcinoma (NSCLC) and therefore opens up new therapeutic options for affected patients.

The BioXcellence division (biopharmaceutical contract production) also falls under the Human Pharma business. Our biopharmaceutical activities comprise the commercial production of biopharmaceuticals for third-party global industrial customers. Additionally, we manufacture our own products (such as ACTILYSE®, METALYSE®, and PRAXBIND®).

In its Animal Health business, Boehringer Ingelheim is a leading provider of therapeutics and vaccines. Our portfolio includes products for pets and horses as well as livestock: swine, ruminants, and poultry. Our core brands NEXGARD®, FRONTLINE®, and HEARTGARD® are the foundation of our success in the pets segment. A major growth driver in 2025 was the NEXGARD® product portfolio. In the swine segment, the established swine vaccine INGELVAC CIRCOFLEX®, which is used to treat porcine circovirus type 2 (PCV2), is an important component of the product portfolio. We obtained market approval in Germany in 2025 for BULTAVO® 3, a vaccine against the bluetongue virus that can be used for cattle and sheep.

Other net sales also include the activities of discontinued operations that are no longer of strategic importance for Boehringer Ingelheim.

In the 2025 financial year, we achieved the majority of our sales in the Americas (43.5%) and Europe (38.4%) regions. The Asia/Australia/Africa (AAA) region generated a sales share of 18.1%.

Research and development

Our goal is to research and develop first-in-class breakthrough medicines that change the lives of people for whom there are no satisfactory treatments available. In the past, our innovations have already transformed the health of both human and animal patients around the world. It is our aim to continue doing this in the future.

In 2025, we employed an average of 11,608 people in our global research networks for Human Pharma and Animal Health across eight countries: Germany, the US, Austria, Japan, France, the Netherlands, and Switzerland as well as China. The R&D activities at these locations drive the continued expansion and renewal of our product portfolio, laying the foundations for the Group's organic long-term growth.

Accordingly, we have consistently increased our R&D expenses in recent years. And with a total of approximately EUR 6.4 billion invested in the R&D of new products, investment remained at an exceptionally high level. This corresponds to 22.9% of consolidated sales. Of this, a large part of the R&D expenditure – EUR 5.8 billion – was invested in the Human Pharma business, which represents 27.4% of Human Pharma net sales.

R&D partnerships

We are continuously expanding our R&D portfolio through collaboration, licensing agreements, and company acquisitions. This includes working with more than 200 partners spanning academic institutions and other public research institutions, as well as biotech and other pharmaceutical companies. Approximately 50% of our research and clinical pipeline is anchored in collaborations with external partners. By combining the strengths of our own research with those of our partners, we achieve a competitive positioning in the development of innovative treatments with breakthrough potential in our therapeutic areas of focus. Additionally, we invest in very early stage and unprecedented approaches through strategic investments by our Boehringer Ingelheim Venture Fund.

In 2025, Boehringer continued to advance its innovation-driven strategy by forging pivotal new partnerships, expanding its presence in key therapeutic and technology areas. This year, focus areas of investment extended to eye health, autoimmune diseases and inflammation, and the development of next-generation antibody-drug conjugates (ADCs) in oncology.

In Eye Health, a landmark partnership with Re-Vana Ltd. (Tampa, Florida, USA, and Belfast, Northern Ireland, United Kingdom) marked a significant addition to our pipeline. Leveraging Re-Vana's proprietary drug delivery technology, we aim to develop long-acting ophthalmic therapies based on our pipeline assets, addressing unmet needs in retinal diseases and improving patient outcomes.

Our commitment to oncology innovation was further strengthened through several strategic moves in the antibody-drug conjugates (ADCs) field. A new collaboration with AimedBio Inc. (Seoul, South Korea) will advance an IND-ready ADC candidate, further diversifying our oncology pipeline. We licensed Synaffix B.V.'s (Amsterdam, the Netherlands) clinical-stage ADC platform, broadening our capabilities in targeted cancer therapies and accelerating the development of novel ADCs for difficult-to-treat cancers.

Boehringer Ingelheim made significant strides in autoimmune and inflammatory diseases through a series of high-impact partnerships. In a new collaboration with Cue Biopharma Inc. (Boston, Massachusetts, USA), we will develop CUE-501, a novel therapy for B-cell depletion, which aims to address challenging autoimmune conditions. We entered a second partnership with CDR-Life AG (Zurich, Switzerland), securing a license for their trispecific T-cell engager targeting dysregulated B-cells. Additionally, a license agreement with Kyowa Kirin Ltd. (Tokyo, Japan) brings a promising small molecule compound into our portfolio, further strengthening our position in the treatment of autoimmune diseases.

These partnerships underscore our commitment to expanding our pipeline through external innovation and collaboration. By integrating cutting-edge technologies and novel therapeutic approaches, we are well positioned to deliver transformative treatments for patients worldwide.

Digital innovation

We are making future-oriented investments in digital innovation and artificial intelligence across the company, harnessing cutting-edge technologies to accelerate processes, enhance the probability of success, and thereby achieve sustainable progress. Two examples of this commitment are our pioneering activities in quantum computing and the work of our digital innovation lab, BI X.

We are also involved in basic and application research in the field of quantum computing. With the ongoing cooperation agreement with Google, as well as other well-known partners such as the University of Toronto (Canada), QC Ware Corp. (Palo Alto, California, USA) and PsiQuantum Corp. (Palo Alto, California, USA), we aim to harness the computing potential of this new technology in order to further elevate Boehringer's innovation. Furthermore, we have been a member of the Quantum Technology and Application Consortium (QUTAC) since 2021, which pursues the aim of making quantum computing industrially usable and economically successful.

BI X, Boehringer's digital innovation lab, continued to advance its mandate in 2025 by developing digital solutions across the pharmaceutical value chain. Collaborating closely with internal teams and external partners, BI X identified opportunities, explored emerging technologies, and supported strategic partnerships. A key area of exploration was agentic AI, with several initiatives assessing its potential impact on Boehringer's operations.

Fostering science

With a fund volume of EUR 350 million, the Boehringer Ingelheim Venture Fund invests in preclinical biotech companies working with innovative approaches, often based on promising academic research. It focuses on first-in-class and disease-modifying therapeutic concepts that address high medical needs in oncology, regenerative medicine (including cell reprogramming and neurodegeneration), autoimmunity indications, antimicrobial resistance (AMR), and digital solutions that accelerate the pharma value chain.

The Research Institute of Molecular Pathology (IMP) in Vienna (Austria) is a biomedical basic research institute and part of the Boehringer Ingelheim Group. Founded in 1985, the IMP seeded the development of the Vienna BioCenter, home to 2,800 staff. There, 260 IMP scientists and support teams study the molecular and cellular mechanisms that form the basis of complex biological life processes as well as human diseases. IMP scientists publish 60 to 90 papers annually.

The opnMe.com platform is one of our open innovation initiatives. It contributes to the acceleration of research initiatives that enable new disease biology insights in areas of high unmet medical need by sharing well-characterized molecules, and offering scientific collaborations and postdoc grants. More than 10,000 molecule batches have been shipped to scientists, enabling countless research projects. Further, the opnMe program has yielded more than 300 scientific publications. More than 100 research partnerships have been established, which has not only significantly advanced the understanding of disease mechanisms, but also directly benefited Boehringer's R&D pipeline.

Our preclinical and clinical R&D efforts are central to our ongoing success. The strong business performance in recent years stems from continually renewing our portfolio through our own R&D. Looking ahead, in-house research — enhanced by external collaborations — will remain a key focus, and our commitment to innovation is evident in our continually expanding pipeline.

Our capital expenditure in R&D is, relative to the size of the company, above the industry average and continues to increase. This investment reflects our commitment to delivering significant therapeutic advances and is supported by the breadth and depth of our pipeline. In 2025, leading regulatory authorities acknowledged the innovative strength of our research by granting accelerated approval procedures (Fast Track Designation) and special recognitions for breakthrough therapies (Breakthrough Therapy Designation) or equivalent classifications.

Human Pharma

We continue to advance transformative best-in-class and first-in-class therapies for patients with high medical need. Jointly with our partners in patient communities, science, biotech and health systems, we are pushing the boundaries of innovation to address the most urgent medical challenges of our time. We focus on interconnected diseases in cardiovascular, renal and metabolic (CRM) conditions, lung diseases, inflammatory diseases, and cancer. We also accelerate our R&D efforts in eye health and mental health, redefining therapeutic approaches to improve patient outcomes. In doing so, we apply new therapeutic approaches to sustainably improve treatment outcomes for patients.

Cardiovascular, renal, and metabolic diseases

One in every eight people around the world is living with cardiovascular, renal, and metabolic conditions. Collectively, they are the leading cause of death worldwide. Chronic kidney disease (CKD) and obesity are two key examples: they can often be undiagnosed or untreated and carry significant risks. CKD silently damages the kidneys and the heart, while obesity is linked to liver dysfunction, metabolic imbalance, and increases the risk of cardiovascular disease. These interconnected conditions pose one of the greatest health crises of our time. We are determined to change this.

In 2025, we advanced vicadrostat (BI 690517)/empagliflozin, an aldosterone synthase inhibitor (ASi)/SGLT2 inhibitor, into two new Phase III trials under the ongoing EASi trial program. These trials are investigating cardiovascular outcomes in people living with type 2 diabetes, hypertension, and cardiovascular disease, as well as potential benefits in people with heart failure with reduced ejection fraction (HFrEF). This global clinical trial program now spans four studies across several indications and a broad population, further including those living with chronic kidney disease (CKD) in collaboration with Oxford Population Health (Oxford, United Kingdom), and in people with heart failure with preserved ejection fraction (HFpEF).

We are studying survodutide (BI 456906), a glucagon/GLP-1 receptor dual agonist, in several global Phase III clinical trials. Our SYNCHRONIZE trial program includes six Phase III trials and is focused on people living with obesity or overweight. Additionally, we are studying survodutide in a LIVERAGE trial for adults with metabolic dysfunction-associated steatohepatitis (MASH) and moderate or advanced fibrosis. Lastly, the LIVERAGE-Cirrhosis trial investigates survodutide in adults with MASH and compensated cirrhosis.

Oncology

Despite significant treatment advancements, cancer continues to claim 10 million lives each year globally. We made it a priority to develop life-changing, best-in-class treatments that aim to improve and extend the lives of people facing cancer. Our precision oncology efforts focus on specific characteristics of cancer to develop tailored therapies.

A current example is zongertinib, our HER2 tyrosine kinase inhibitor (TKI). HERNEXEOS® (zongertinib) was approved in the US (accelerated) and China (conditional) in August and in Japan in September as the first orally administered, targeted therapy for previously treated patients with HER2 (ERBB2)-mutant advanced non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC). The approval is based on the data from the Beamion LUNG-1 trial Phase I/Ib study evaluating zongertinib in previously treated patients with HER2 (ERBB2)-mutant advanced NSCLC.

Highlighting the potential of this asset, the US FDA and China's CDE (Center for Drug Evaluation) granted in September Breakthrough Therapy Designation for zongertinib for the first-line treatment of adult patients with unresectable/metastatic NSCLC whose tumors have HER2 TKD activating mutations. In October, we reported for the first time results from the Beamion LUNG-1 trial, where zongertinib was given as first-line treatment in patients with advanced non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC) who have HER2 (ERBB2) activating mutations in the tyrosine kinase domain (TKD). In November, the US FDA awarded HERNEXEOS® a Commissioner's National Priority Voucher (CNPV) for its first line use in HER2-mutant advanced NSCLC. The CNPV program aims to shorten the review process from what normally takes 10-12 months to 1-2 months, while maintaining the US FDA's rigorous safety and efficacy standards.

Beamion LUNG-2, a global Phase III trial evaluating zongertinib compared to standard of care as first-line treatment for patients with unresectable, advanced or metastatic HER2-mutant NSCLC, is currently enrolling patients.

Our asset in immuno-oncology, obrixtamig (BI 764532), is a DLL3/CD3 T-Cell engager designed to activate T-cells to target tumors expressing the DLL3 protein. This investigational treatment was granted the US FDA Fast Track Designation for treatment of small-cell lung cancer (SCLC), the most aggressive form of lung cancer, and extrapulmonary neuroendocrine carcinomas (epNEC). Obrixtamig has also received Orphan Drug Designation from the US FDA and EMA for the treatment of neuroendocrine carcinomas (NEC), including SCLC. It is currently being evaluated in patients with SCLC and epNEC in the global DAREON® clinical trial program. This global development program spans eight Phase I and Phase II studies targeting various neuroendocrine carcinomas, across multiple lines of treatment. Initial published findings demonstrate encouraging safety and efficacy, supporting the advancement of this program into later stages of clinical development.

We take a diligent approach to some of the most challenging and potentially impactful areas of cancer research. Our commitment to scientific innovation is evident in our diverse pipeline of approximately 10 clinical-stage programs, including cancer cell-directed and immuno-oncology investigational therapies, as well as combinations of these approaches.

Respiratory diseases

For more than 100 years, we have been committed to developing scientific innovations for the treatment of respiratory conditions. Building on our legacy, we aspire to continue revolutionizing lung health and creating a future for patients without the threat of pulmonary fibrosis (PF).

Despite many advances in PF care over the last decade, there remains high medical need: diagnosis and therapy are still commonly delayed, and PF remains a condition deadlier than many forms of cancer.

In May we presented data from our pivotal Phase III trials, FIBRONEER™-IPF and FIBRONEER™-ILD, which investigated nerandomilast in idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis (IPF) and progressive pulmonary fibrosis (PPF). Nerandomilast slowed lung function decline in IPF and PPF, with similar discontinuation rates to placebo when used as monotherapy. In October, nerandomilast, marketed as JASCAYD®, was approved in the US marking the first new treatment option in idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis (IPF) for adults in over a decade. Only two weeks later, it was also approved for the treatment of IPF in China. In December, nerandomilast was also approved for the treatment of progressive pulmonary fibrosis (PPF) in China and the US. Regulatory filings have been submitted and further approvals in IPF and PPF in other countries and regions are expected in 2026.

Verducatib (BI 1291583) is a novel dipeptylpeptidase 1 (DPP1)/cathepsin C (CatC) inhibitor with the potential to reduce exacerbations and to improve symptoms and quality of life for patients with bronchiectasis. Inhibition of DPP1 can reduce the level of neutrophilic inflammation that plays a key role in the pathogenesis of bronchiectasis. Verducatib is an investigational drug, which has not been approved for any proposed indication by any regulatory authority.

Boehringer Ingelheim is currently investigating the efficacy, safety, and tolerability of verducatib compared with placebo in people with bronchiectasis, independent of underlying etiologies in AIRTIVITY® [NCT06872892], a Phase III, multicenter, multinational, prospective, randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled trial. The first patient was randomized on World Bronchiectasis Day (July 1) 2025.

Mental Health

Mental health is one of the most pressing global challenges, with disorders affecting nearly one billion people worldwide and contributing significantly to disability and premature death.

As a leading research-driven biopharmaceutical company, we have a long-term commitment to addressing serious mental illnesses and neuropsychiatric disorders through sustained investments in research and innovation. Collaborating with multiple stakeholders and innovative partners, we aim to ease the burden of people living with these conditions, as well as that of their caregivers, loved ones, and society.

Our efforts focus on deepening our understanding of the underlying drivers of serious mental illnesses and neuropsychiatric disorders and developing targeted therapies that improve treatment outcomes and support patients in living fuller lives through better integration into society. Recognizing the complexity and individuality of mental health needs, our efforts go beyond treatment approaches, addressing the broader challenges faced by patients.

With a number of investigational therapies currently in preclinical and clinical development, our innovative pipeline targets neurodegeneration, impulsivity, motivation and reward, as well as mood and cognition. To further our vision, we have partnered with the World Health Organization (WHO) Foundation in a three-year collaboration to advance access to quality healthcare services, particularly for vulnerable populations in the Americas at greater risk of suicide.

Eye Health

Over 300 million people worldwide are at risk of vision loss due to retinal conditions, including diabetic retinopathy, geographic atrophy, and age-related macular degeneration. For many, diagnosis comes too late, and treatment is only available after irreversible damage has occurred. At Boehringer Ingelheim, we are working towards a future where earlier detection and intervention result in long-term, real-world outcomes that prevent vision loss.

Following the start of the CRIMSON Phase II trial in 2024 for BI 764524 – a humanized monoclonal anti-Sema3A antibody being investigated as a potential first-in-class treatment for diabetic retinopathy – we reached a significant milestone in 2025, with our three additional investigational Eye Health assets having progressed to Phase II. In first place is BI 771716, an antibody fragment being developed to preserve vision in people living with geographic atrophy (GA). It is being investigated in the VERDANT Phase II study, which began earlier this year and is now fully enrolled. Two investigational oral therapies have also advanced: BI 1584862, a phospholipid modulator being investigated as a potential first-in-class treatment for GA in the JADE clinical Phase II study; and BI 1815368, a vascular modulator being evaluated as a potential first-in-class treatment for diabetic macular edema (DME) in the THULITE clinical Phase II study.

Animal Health
Our goal is to create innovative products that prevent, detect, and treat diseases in pets, livestock, and equine. Our R&D strategy focuses on understanding disease causes and mechanisms to discover new ways to reduce or interrupt disease processes. Key focus areas include infectious diseases, non-infectious diseases, and parasiticides:

- Infectious diseases: The rapid spread of infectious diseases among pets, livestock, and equines is driven by emerging pathogens and antigenic changes. This calls for the development of new preventive measures.
- Non-infectious diseases: We invest in improved treatments for conditions such as heart disease, diabetes, chronic kidney disease, atopy, pain, and cancer.
- Parasiticides: Parasite infections pose risks to animals and humans, underscoring the need for innovative parasiticides to address emerging threats linked to climate change and parasite resistance.

To deliver innovative products globally, we organize our 16 R&D sites into four regional innovation centers located in the USA, Europe (France/Netherlands and Germany), and China.

Internal and external collaboration is key
Collaboration between our Human Pharma and Animal Health divisions is crucial. Our R&D teams collaborate to share knowledge about disease mechanisms, chemistry, compounds, and cutting-edge techniques. This synergy has led to successful products such as SENVELGO® and SEMINTRA®. With additional promising compounds in our pipeline, we expect further innovation in non-infectious diseases through this connection.

External collaborations also complement our in-house R&D capabilities. We focus on various disease areas, including cardiometabolic diseases, immunology and inflammation, oncology, oral health, and infectious diseases. Our partners range from early-stage academic researchers to established biotech companies, enabling us to develop solutions for areas with high unmet medical need.

Production

Human Pharma
In the Human Pharma business, we assume responsibility in our production facilities for the steady supply of top-quality medicines for patients. Our employees ensure the highest quality of our medicines.

Our global production network guarantees reliable market supply along the entire value chain, from suppliers for starting materials to worldwide logistics and distribution of finished pharmaceutical products. In our network, we operate sites in nine countries supplemented by strategic cooperation with external manufacturers.

In the past financial year 2025, Boehringer Ingelheim's global network included own sites in nine countries. Two sites are for the chemical synthesis of active ingredients, and our network has four facilities for the manufacture of biopharmaceuticals. Nine sites process these active ingredients into finished pharmaceutical products. One site provides support for the manufacture of medical devices for our RESPIMAT® platform.

Combining internal production facilities with our strategic partners affords us the flexibility to respond optimally to external influences. Our internal sites are focused on manufacturing strategic important products for the company and implementing key technologies in line with the requirements of our pipeline. Besides manufacturing our own pharmaceuticals, the biotechnology manufacturing sites also include the commercial production of biopharmaceuticals for third-party industrial customers. We engage with our strategic partners primarily to expand our production capacity in standard technologies with high-capacity requirements and to tap specialist technologies that are not available in-house.

Against the backdrop of the tense geopolitical situation, we took proactive measures last year with regard to developing robust regionalized supply chains. To secure adequate supply for the US market, we approached strategic partners to intensify our cooperation. We will increase our volume with these partners to a level that will allow us to supply the US market with our key products, such as products in the antidiabetics group regionally. In strategically important Japan, we successfully inaugurated a new production facility and laid the foundation for another in order to expand our presence in the Asia-Pacific region.

We will make further important investments to expand production capacities in our production network. At the Ingelheim am Rhein (Germany) site, we celebrated the opening of a new production building for the manufacturing of active pharmaceutical ingredients. Another new production building for the finish of active pharmaceutical ingredients into solid dosage forms was transferred to the production network at the Ingelheim am Rhein site (Germany).

The expansion of our production capacities for aseptic production of medicines for injection purposes, which represents a product group with strong growth in volume, is making great progress. The new launch factory at the headquarters in Ingelheim am Rhein (Germany) is gradually taking shape, and the respective teams at the Sant Cugat (Spain) and Biberach an der Riss (Germany) sites are making good progress in expanding capacity within the targeted schedule.

Animal Health

In 2025, Animal Health products were manufactured in a network of 14 production facilities in nine countries. In addition to the company's own facilities, approximately 70 contract manufacturers produced medicines for Boehringer Ingelheim.

The product portfolio essentially consists of vaccines, pharmaceutical products, stem cell therapeutics and nutraceuticals. It was also successfully expanded into other countries through additional products, including SENVELGO®, VETMEDIN® ORAL SOLUTION, and VAXXITEK® HVT IBD H5.

Boehringer Ingelheim continues to invest in its manufacturing capacity for vaccines of the highest biological safety class in Jonage/Lyon (France) as well as the expansion and renewal of the aseptic production of vaccines in North America.

We are also investing in production network modernization, digitalization, and our workforce to continuously improve supply reliability and efficiency.

Employees

As formulated in our mission statement, we know: "We are powered by our employees."

Our People Promise
This understanding is also reflected in our promise to our current and future employees, the "People Promise": Our employees are the heart of Boehringer Ingelheim.

In 2025, we employed an average of 54,346 people worldwide. This corresponds to a development of –0.4% compared to the previous year.

Our employees share a common goal: to make the lives of millions of humans and animals better. We are constantly looking for ways to break new ground and see our differences as one of our strengths. We promote individual career development and support a balance between personal and professional life.

Openness, respect & opportunity
We work in an environment with a global value chain, international customers and high, different regulatory requirements. Our company's success is based on innovation, made possible by employees from 138 nationalities in 76 countries.

Our values of respect, trust, empathy, and passion are a central component of our corporate culture. A workplace free of discrimination, where all employees are treated with openness and respect and have equal access to opportunities, is essential for our competitiveness, innovation and part of our Code of Conduct.

Every manager and all employees are responsible for acting in accordance with our corporate values and ensuring a workplace free of discrimination. We foster a work environment where colleagues feel valued, respected, and safe to share their ideas, perspectives, and experiences.

With "Our Behaviors" we have defined how we will succeed. They provide the link from our purpose "Transforming lives for generations", values, and business goals to our daily actions.

Employee offer
Experts from different areas of the company are jointly developing our employee rewards and benefits to meet the needs of our people in the best possible way. The offers include, for example, company pension plans, other forms of financial planning, and comprehensive health-related benefits.

This is also reflected in our program for the well-being of our employees. We focus on people and promote physical, mental, and social health as well as financial security. This also includes support services and training for employees and managers.

Our flexible and mobile working models support our employees at every life stage and matter to their personal situation. The opportunity to temporarily work abroad is an example of this. Since 2025, this offer has been open to all employees worldwide.

Training and development
An important cornerstone for our people development are our training programs. With 37 scientific, technical and commercial training courses and dual study programs, our company offers a wide range of opportunities to get started in professional life. In 2025, an average of 807 talents worldwide were enrolled in our vocational training program. 237 apprentices started at our German sites. The selection of training positions and dual study programs is closely coordinated with our departments to ensure that the curricula and training programs also meet our company needs.

In addition, lifelong learning and the further development of our employees are an integral part of our corporate strategy. We empower our employees to remain at the forefront of their field and also to open up new perspectives. In this way, we meet the requirements of the constantly changing health and labor markets.

With the Boehringer Ingelheim University, we promote this sustainable learning culture and link organizational goals with the skills of our employees. The content is accessible via a digital learning platform, the "Virtual Campus". The learning catalog includes over 55,000 learning units, of which our colleagues have curated more than 1,500 internally.

In addition, we specifically promote the development of managers with the company's internal "Leadership Academy". Leaders are essential to a positive work environment and a culture in which employees are supported and encouraged. Through the Academy, we offer targeted training for different leadership roles and help to create a common understanding of leadership.

Award
The renewed certification as a "Global Top Employer" by the Top Employers Institute is a result of our sustainable people strategy. Consistently high scores for development topics underpin how we empower our employees to develop their own path, both professionally and personally.

Our company has been one of the top employers in several countries and regions for eleven years. In 2025, we received this award in 30 countries. Boehringer is one of the top 3 employers in South Korea and one of the top 20 in Germany. Our company has also received regional recognitions in Asia-Pacific, Europe, Latin America, and the Middle East.

Exchange and feedback
We aspire to be an employer of choice and continuously improve our working environment. Therefore, we have set up channels for feedback and exchange. Examples are employee manager dialogues, which are held at least biannually, or our global employee survey.

Sustainable Development for Generations

As a leading healthcare company, we help millions of people and animals around the globe to live healthier, longer lives. Sustainability is firmly anchored in our corporate values.

Our sustainability strategy, "Sustainable Development for Generations", focuses on health for humans, animals, our employees and communities, and the planet. We aim to embed sustainability in everything we do. Our 2030 commitments are in alignment with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (UN SDGs) and the Paris Climate Agreement. Our sustainability strategy is based on three pillars:

MORE HEALTH – Good Health for People and Animals
Our ambition is to develop better therapies and solutions for global healthcare challenges. This pillar addresses healthcare and wellbeing across the entire patient continuum of care: from pharmaceutical innovation over prevention and healthcare delivery to tackling access. Each program features projects and initiatives to meet the needs of our patients, customers, and broader societal healthcare challenges.

MORE POTENTIAL – Good Health for Communities and Our People
We build on our culture to activate our employees and partners to make an impact. This pillar integrates efforts that enable our people to realize their potential through our culture and leadership approach. It also aims to improve healthcare through social engagement models.

MORE GREEN – Good Health for Our Planet
A healthy planet is essential for the health of people, animals, and communities. An intact environment can foster the health of entire societies. The pillar aims to reduce the environmental footprint of our operations, promote sustainable resource use along the value chain, and raise awareness on environmental sustainability to protect current and future generations.

By 2030, we aim to achieve the following commitments:

MORE HEALTH: expanding access to healthcare for 50 million people, investing EUR 35 billion in health innovation and research to tackle non-communicable diseases and an additional EUR 250 million in partnerships to combat emerging infectious diseases.

MORE POTENTIAL: improving the lives of 50 million people around the globe by collaborating with partners, financially supporting social entrepreneurs and social startups, and engaging employees. We collaborate and create solutions that achieve more economically sustainable, inclusive, and healthy communities.

MORE GREEN: We will be carbon neutral in our operations (Scope 1 and 2), cut our resource footprint by half across the value chain and continue to create best practices in a range of areas, from water stewardship and waste-to-landfill to tackling anti-microbial resistance.

Integrity – Strong foundations for sustainability
Integrity is the foundation of all our sustainability initiatives. Through ethical standards, respect for human rights and strong governance, we create a framework that enables responsible growth.

In 2025, we strengthened our compliance culture through initiatives like the Compliance & Integrity Day, with a focus on targeted rules enabling risk ownership in business and fostering a strong speak-up culture. Here we initiated a global communication campaign and awareness activities, including a new Integrity Minute encouraging to speak up also in longstanding working relationships.

Ethics and Code of Conduct
Our Code of Conduct sets the ethical standards and guiding principles across the relevant compliance areas affecting our business activities. Our three pillared approach includes "How we change lives", "Together we excel" and "Our speak-up culture." We act with honesty, adhering to relevant laws, regulations and corporate principles, ensuring we make the right choices. Accountability, respect, and mutual support guide us in making decisions affecting our patients and customers, our people, and the organization.

Reporting potential misconduct is a crucial element in maintaining our integrity. We provide multiple reporting channels, including through line managers, Compliance Officers, Human Resources, or the speak-up portal, accessible both internally and externally. We align our speak-up process with the German Supply Chain Due Diligence Act and other relevant grievance mechanism requirements.

Human Rights
Our approach to Human Rights aligns with the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights. These principles are embedded in our company culture through their incorporation into our Code of Conduct, Supplier Code of Conduct, Human Rights Policy Statement and Environmental, Health, Safety & Sustainability guidelines. We are a member of the "Pharmaceutical Supply Chain Initiative" (PSCI) and align our guidelines with PSCI principles.

Since 2023, we strengthened our commitment by implementing a multilayered governance structure and appointing a Human Rights Officer to enhance oversight and address our due diligence and reporting obligations under the Modern Slavery & Child Labor Act Laws and the German Supply Chain Due Diligence Act (LkSG). In 2025, we improved our Human Rights due diligence and risk management process through continuous optimization of its efficiency and effectiveness, e.g., adjusting supplier-targeted questionnaires, adapting risk rating and risk levels and by introducing an effectiveness measures concept.

Governance
Effective sustainability management requires defined roles, responsibilities, and accountability. Boehringer Ingelheim's governance approach connects Board and Executive oversight with operational accountability, ensuring sustainability is embedded throughout the organization.

Our strategic approach to sustainability is overseen by the Board of Managing Directors (BMD). To support the management of Boehringer Ingelheim's sustainability strategy, we have established a dedicated internal sustainability governance structure led by the "Sustainability Executive Committee" (SEC). The BMD has delegated respective cross-functional responsibility and decision-making to the SEC, however, retains responsibility for approving the corporate sustainability strategy "Sustainable Development for Generations" and its commitments. Performance against these commitments is regularly monitored by the BMD.

The SEC acts as the highest cross-functional governance body for sustainability in Boehringer Ingelheim and is comprised of ten senior executives. The SEC has the decision authority for the implementation and execution of the "Sustainable Development for Generations" strategy and its related programs. The SEC's mandate also includes key strategies regarding other sustainability matters at Boehringer, including the update of relevant corporate policies and cross-functional decisions on the management of impacts, risks, and opportunities. The responsibilities of the SEC are defined in internal governance policies, which are reviewed and approved by the BMD.

The SEC further supports and advises the organization on integrating sustainability considerations into critical business processes. The Chief Sustainability Officer reports twice per year to the BMD on the company's 2030 sustainability commitments, key non-financial metrics, and the progress of the "Sustainable Development for Generations" strategy.

The SEC is supported by an external sustainability advisory board, an independent group that advises on complex material sustainability topics.

Key 2025 Milestones

In 2025, we continued our strategic focus on broadening access to healthcare, which we believe is our most significant contribution to the UN SDGs. To achieve this, we continued to drive nine sustainability programs through which we, as a company, can create positive impact for society and minimize our environmental footprint. The key achievements include:

- Boehringer received a gold medal from EcoVadis in the most recent sustainability assessment, placing us among the top 5% of all companies rated in the previous 12 months. This underscores our commitment to embedding sustainability further into our core business.

- Our "Angels" initiative aims to optimize the quality of treatment in existing stroke centers:
  - In 2025, over 1,200 organizations were added to the network and a ca. 75,000 doctors, 150,000 nurses, and 20,000 paramedics have received skills training. The "Angels" initiative is now the largest stroke community in the world, encompassing more than 286,000 healthcare professionals from almost 10,000 hospitals in 169 countries and helped 23.7 million stroke patients to date.

  - The "FAST Heroes" program – an award-winning educational initiative targeted at young children to increase awareness of early stroke symptoms in families and local communities – has been implemented at more than 15,000 schools and reached over 1.1 million children.

  - "Angels" continues to evolve its strategy to cover the entire patient journey through the "Angels Regions" approach. An "Angels Region" is a geographic area where stroke care is optimized across the entire stroke network and patient journey: from public awareness to emergency response and hospital treatment. This is achieved through close collaboration with hospitals, emergency medical services (EMS), local authorities, and public education initiatives. By the end of 2025 and within only two years, 87 "Angels Regions" were established, worldwide.

- We continued to support the "Abraçar" health care program for respiratory patients in Brazil. This program offers access to screening, diagnosis, and treatment for Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD) patients, reaching around 60,000 people annually within the Brazilian public healthcare system. In 2025, we further developed the program to include the diagnosis of patients with Interstitial Lung Disease (ILD). This expansion builds on our partnerships with municipal healthcare management and the Brazilian Pulmonology Medical Society.

- In partnership with Farmacias Similares in Mexico, we continued to operate a new access model. As the third-largest pharmacy chain worldwide, Farmacias Similares operates approximately 9,000 pharmacies and employs around 8,000 physicians. This collaboration focuses on expanding access to our medications for lower-income populations. Our long-term goal is to provide holistic treatment to 210,000 patients by 2030. In 2025, we provided affordable diabetes treatment to more than 60,000 patients.

- In 2025, we kicked-off a collaboration with the American Diabetes Association to develop early interventions and risk reduction for CRM disease in the "diabetes belt" in southeastern United States.

- We have established 16 new country initiatives in 2025 addressing access to healthcare challenges under the MORE HEALTH umbrella.

- Through our "Stop Rabies" program, we deliver on-the-ground solutions to prevent rabies, collaborating with governmental and non-governmental organizations, health authorities, veterinarians, dog owners, and other groups. The program focuses on the three pillars: vaccination, education, and surveillance. It contributes to the global goal of eliminating human dog-mediated rabies by 2030. By 2038, we aim to provide 500 million vaccine doses and educate 15 million children.
  - In 2025, we provided 48 million rabies vaccine doses and supported vaccination campaigns in endemic countries. This includes strategic collaboration with the Global Alliance for Rabies Control (GARC), local governments, veterinary associations, and universities to perform dog and cat vaccination campaigns across the Philippines, Vietnam, Indonesia and Malaysia.

  - We reached over 300,000 children in Africa (Ghana, Kenya, South Africa), Asia (Vietnam, Thailand, Philippines, Malaysia) and Latin America (Ecuador) through various educational models to raise awareness about the rabies disease and appropriate preventative measures.

- Our product donations further support access to healthcare by providing medicines to underserved communities. In 2025, these donations reached over 162,000 patients in 41 countries.

- In 2025, we invested in nine social start-ups across Sub-Saharan Africa and one in Latin America. An example is our investment in Kasha Global Inc. (Nairobi, Kenya), a company which enables access to medicines and data-driven solutions in six African countries, tailored specifically to women.

- In collaboration with Villgro Africa, we work with high-impact social start-ups to strengthen their business models and operational readiness to attract investment funding and scale their solution. Since 2018, we have supported 43 social start-ups through our investment readiness program, with eight companies currently in our 2025 cohort. Medikea (Dar es Salaam, Tanzania), a digital health platform expanding medication access in underserved communities, demonstrates this approach in action. With our investment readiness support in 2025, Medikea developed a stronger business model and attracted an impact investor from our investor circle. This is a proof that early-stage backing and expertise can unlock the capital needed to drive growth and impact at scale.

- "Making More Health" aims to create healthy, thriving, and self-sustaining communities worldwide through a systemic approach. In our Social Innovation arm, a total of 42 social entrepreneurs were supported through collaboration with Ashoka in 2025. We continued our Social Innovation Hubs (SIH) work with a second cohort, in six different countries. The aim of this program is to collaborate closely with social entrepreneurs in a structured, year-long program on various health topics.

- The "Making More Health Together" convention 2025 with this year's theme "Shaping Tomorrow, by Seeding Today," aimed to discuss and collaborate on innovative solutions for pressing healthcare issues and to build a strong network of complementary stakeholders to create sustainable social impact The participants came from a range of sectors, such as industry, civil society, academia, impact financing, and social entrepreneurship. In addition, we organized an Investor's Day to facilitate further collaboration and deals between potential investors and investees.

- We take a holistic approach to employee wellbeing across four dimensions: mental, physical, social, and financial. We regularly train managers and employees and make wellbeing resources easily accessible. This builds on our internal "BE SAFE" program, which has been instrumental in creating a safer work environment by increasing safety awareness and promoting responsible conduct. In 2025, a new "BE SAFE" transformation program was initiated to strengthen our safety culture even further and an updated Occupational Health Strategy was developed alongside a new organizational set-up. Moreover, a Mental Health toolkit was made available for all employees, and a specific Mental Health training for leaders was launched. We train selected employees worldwide to become health and wellbeing ambassadors ("Health Navigators").

- Our volunteering program provides all employees with opportunities to contribute to our sustainability strategy and support external partners and social entrepreneurs we collaborate with. In 2025, we strategized our volunteering efforts even further and integrated our volunteering opportunities into one global platform, offering a range of hands-on and skills-based volunteering activities. Leveraging our time, skills, and interests to actively contribute towards our sustainability commitments, our employees spent more than 23,000 volunteering hours in 2025.

- We embedded the evaluation of Eco-Design criteria at development milestones for small molecules and biologics using the internal "EcoMediX" App and Eco-Design Lifecycle Assessments (eLCAs) in our Eco-Design Playbook 2.0. We achieved 60% of projects evaluations in 2025 (24 of 40) and 70% since the rollout in May 2024 (49 of 70). We are among the first pharmaceutical companies to fully embed Eco-Design as an integral business process across the entire R&D portfolio.

- We advanced Eco-Design via open innovation on opnMe.com, a global platform with 7,000+ users from 80 countries. Each selected project receives an USD 80,000 grant for a one-year study aimed at publication. Currently funding six projects on topics such as high-throughput mechanochemistry, stable biologics formulations, biodegradable pill bottles, trifluoroacetic acid-free solid-phase peptide synthesis, biocatalytic peptide synthesis, and chromatography for downstream biologics.

- We achieved carbon neutrality certifications of our Human Pharma sites in Kobe (Japan) and Koropi (Greece) as well as our Animal Health sites in Saint Vulbas (France) and Athens/Colbert (Georgia, USA), based on activity year 2024. At the same time, we increased global renewable electricity purchases to around 80% of the expected electricity purchases in 2025. This is primarily due to transitioning to renewable solutions at sites. In addition, we increased our renewable energy generation capacity with a new biomass power plant at our corporate headquarters, as well as expanded on-site photovoltaic generation.

- Climate contribution projects beyond our value chain captured or avoided more than 130,000 tCO_2e for 2025.

- We achieved two new Alliance for Water Stewardship (AWS) certifications for Sant Cugat (Spain) and Boehringer Ingelheim Shanghai Pharmaceuticals (BISPL, China) during 2025. We implement water management and water risk programs at all our production sites and seek "water stewardship" certification by the Alliance for Water Stewardship (AWS) at all sites affected by water scarcity. Our production sites in Fremont (California, USA), Mexico City (Mexico) have been certified previously and additionally one more production site (Boehringer Ingelheim BioChina, China) has started AWS Standard implementation. We continuously assess APIs and other trace substances in our production environment. Our "Clean Water" initiative ensures pharmaceutical traces in wastewater remain significantly below effect levels. This initiative collaborates with industrial networks and suppliers across the value chain.

- We have conducted Life Cycle Assessment (LCAs) for packaging (e.g., Eco-cooler) and products such as NEXGARD®, TRAJENTA® and SPIRIVA RESPIMAT® ensuring compliance with international environmental standards.

- Through our accelerator fund "MORE GREEN Fund" we continued to promote environmentally sustainable technologies and solutions for internal projects, focusing on decarbonization, renewable energy, energy efficiency, water stewardship, biodiversity and circular economy. It serves as an accelerator and best-practice database for implementing innovative clean technologies. Since 2020, it has supported 86 Capital Expenditures (CapEx) investment projects, six in 2025, which included:
  - Installation of solar photovoltaic panels on parking lot carports at Shanghai BISPL site (China).
  - Implementation of a reverse osmosis system for sustainable water reuse in cooling towers in Koropi (Greece).
  - Installation of a wastewater treatment evaporator at the Sant Cugat site (Spain).
  - Expansion of the on-site charging infrastructure to support Battery Electric Vehicle (BEV) adoption and 2030 targets in Milan (Italy).

Report on economic position

Macroeconomic environment

In 2025, global economic growth was surprisingly resilient, despite considerable uncertainties and political upheaval. The US introduced additional tariffs in 2025, which led to uncertainty and a change in global trade flows. According to the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the negative effects have been moderate to date, which is attributable to production and trade activities being brought forward before the introduction of the US tariffs. Supporting factors were the high investments in artificial intelligence in the United States, as well as fiscal policy measures in China aimed at counteracting the impact of tariff increases and the weakness in the real estate sector. The labor markets in some industrialized countries, including the US and Germany, showed the first signs of weakening with rising unemployment rates and falling vacancies.

According to the IMF, estimated global economic growth was +3.3%, unchanged from the previous year 2024 (+3.3%). Regional differences were apparent between industrialized and emerging market countries. Growth in the industrialized countries was at +1.6%. According to the OECD, the US economy grew by +2.0%, especially due to higher levels of investment in high-tech sectors, while growth rates in the euro zone (+1.3%) and Germany (+0.2%) were more moderate. The economies in the emerging market countries grew by +4.2%. The growth markets of Asia benefited in particular from significant investments in artificial intelligence, which led to strong demand for semiconductors and electronic products. Inflation fell from 5.8% in 2024 to 4.1% in 2025. The IMF expects inflation in most G20 countries to reach the defined targets by the end of 2025.

IQVIA, a global provider of pharmaceutical market information, estimates the size of the global pharmaceutical market in 2025 to be more than USD 1.9 trillion (EUR 1.7 trillion), which represents a year-on-year growth of +9.3%. Over the past five years, the average growth rate has been +9%. In comparison to other industries, the pharmaceutical market is shaped in the long term by the performance of the economy and, in particular, the demographics of society. In addition, the average growth of the market is influenced by new product launches and the constant improvement in global access to medical care.

In 2025, the ongoing pressure from high energy costs continued to weigh on many pharmaceutical companies – including Boehringer Ingelheim. Energy costs for production remained above average, especially in Germany, and have stabilized above the pre-pandemic level. However, the sales prices – which are often regulated – did not change, and in the US they even fell for certain medicines as a result of government measures introduced in 2025 to reduce the prices of medicinal products, including international reference pricing systems and planned import tariffs, thereby contributing to increased uncertainty for the global pharmaceutical industry. In 2025, the health systems of many countries continued to be exposed to increasing pressures due to rising costs and an aging population. In order to address these challenges, many healthcare systems relied on quick-acting measures such as mandatory price reductions for medicines, external reference pricing systems, and lengthy and complex pricing processes that delay access to innovative medicines.

Such measures carry the risk of restricting investments in new treatment options and the provision of innovative medicines. The pharmaceutical industry works closely with governments and public health authorities to meet these challenges in order to ensure and improve access to medicines in a sustainable manner, reduce delays in market approval and provide patients with innovative medicines. A reliable legal framework that promotes innovation and ensures the protection of intellectual property remains an important prerequisite for achieving this objective. The EU has therefore drawn up a guideline with a target horizon of 2029 to strengthen the life sciences by promoting innovation and expanding infrastructure, facilitating capital expenditure within the industry and developing approaches to reduce the shortage of skilled workers.

The animal health market – consisting of the pet, horse, and livestock segments – continued its growth trend in 2025. The long-term drivers of growth are primarily population growth, the rising standard of living of many people in growth markets, and the increased life expectancy of animals due to constant improvements in veterinary care and the availability of new, innovative products for treating illnesses. Additionally, the increasing humanization of the growing pet population is a key driver of increased investment in animal health by pet owners. The livestock sector is benefiting from increased demand for animal proteins and growing consumer expectations for sustainable protein production that focuses on animal welfare and emphasizes the importance of preventive animal health. In 2025, in particular, the market was influenced by the reemergence of several illnesses such as bird flu and blue tongue. This led to an urgent need for rapid vaccination and required animal health companies to bring suitable vaccines to market in a very short timeframe. In general, consolidation through mergers on the customer side is ongoing, which leads to increased competition. In the future, growth in the Animal Health business will largely be driven by therapeutic, preventative, and digital innovation. In order to be able to grow with the market, capital expenditure needs to be continuous, sustainable, and competitive.

According to the IMF, global economic growth in 2026 will amount to +3.3%. The IMF identified a stronger than expected slowdown of the labor markets as a risk. Furthermore, persistent geopolitical tensions and protectionist measures could increasingly impact investments, disrupt supply chains, and limit production growth. The expected decline in the inflation rate may not occur if there is a new increase in commodity prices due to ongoing geopolitical tensions or extreme weather events. In contrast, agreement reached in the trade negotiations could prove positive for growth, as these would lead to lower interest rates and reduce uncertainty. Similarly, faster growth in production activity through the use of artificial intelligence could bring macroeconomic benefits.

Currency development

Boehringer Ingelheim's global presence means that currency trends influence its financial performance. The US dollar (USD), the Japanese yen (JPY), the Mexican peso (MXN), and the Chinese renminbi (CNY) are particularly worthy of mention here. The US dollar fluctuated between a high of EUR/USD 1.04 (January) and a low of EUR/USD 1.17 (September) in 2025. The Japanese yen fluctuated between a low of EUR/JPY 182.50 (December) and a high of EUR/JPY 158.09 (February). The Mexican peso fluctuated between a low of EUR/MXN 22.51 (April) and a high of EUR/MXN 21.79 (December) in 2025. The Chinese renminbi fluctuated between a low of EUR/CNY 8.38 (July) and a high of EUR/CNY 7.56 (January) in 2025. Significant transactional currency risks are hedged through suitable currency instruments.

For Boehringer Ingelheim, stable and competitive financial performance and solid financing are the basis for independence, making them the focus of our actions. On this basis, we can implement our corporate purpose "Transforming lives for generations" and invest in innovation on a competitive scale, thereby making our contribution to improving human and animal health with innovative therapies.

Boehringer Ingelheim continued the positive growth trend in 2025. We recorded net sales of EUR 27,751 million, which represents a +3.6% increase relative to the previous year's net sales figure of EUR 26,796 million. Exchange rate effects adversely affected the sales trend in 2025. Adjusted for these effects, the Group achieved a growth rate of +7.3%.

In the past financial year, Boehringer Ingelheim's activities were divided into the Human Pharma and Animal Health businesses.

Human Pharma

In our Human Pharma business, we once again made our products available to more patients in 2025 thanks to new approvals in additional countries; we also further strengthened established products. An estimated 70 million patients[1] were treated with our products in 2025.

The Human Pharma business is the mainstay of Boehringer Ingelheim's activities and accounts for 81.9% of consolidated sales. Net sales in our Human Pharma business increased by +3.7% (currency-adjusted +7.4%) in the 2025 financial year to EUR 22,733 million. This growth was mainly driven by the established products of the JARDIANCE® family, as well as OFEV®. The growing licensing business – in particular the SKYRIZI® product licensed out to and sold by AbbVie – also contributed significantly to the positive development of the Human Pharma business.

In the BioXcellence division – which is also integrated in the Human Pharma business – net sales of EUR 1,470 million were +19.0% (currency-adjusted +19.3%) above the previous year's level due to the increased demand for market products from our business partners. The order situation for the entire business developed positively.

kidney disease. The JARDIANCE® family generated net sales of EUR 8,785 million, which was thus +5.1% (currency-adjusted +8.7%) higher than in the previous year.

OFEV®, the second most successful product in terms of net sales in 2025, is primarily used to treat idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis as well as two other indications – SSc-ILD (interstitial lung disease in systemic sclerosis) and PF-ILD (progressive fibrosing interstitial lung disease). OFEV® recorded net sales of EUR 3,825 million and thus achieved a growth rate of +1.6% (currency-adjusted +5.4%).

Sales of the products TRAJENTA® and JENTADUETO® for the treatment of type-2 diabetes decreased by –9.4% (currency-adjusted –5.5%) to EUR 1,469 million.

Our product SPIRIVA®, which is used to treat chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) and asthma, was developed in line with the product life cycle. At –8.9% (currency-adjusted –5.9%), net sales in 2025 of EUR 968 million were below the previous year's level, as expected.

After a strong previous year, net sales of ACTILYSE®/METALYSE® stabilized in the 2025 financial year at EUR 619 million, which equates to a decline of –1.7% (currency-adjusted increase of +1.5%). They therefore remain among our five top-selling products.

Net sales growth of +30.6% (currency-adjusted +39.6%) was achieved for the licensing income provided by SKYRIZI®. This product, which is marketed globally by our partner AbbVie, is based on the substance risankizumab, which was largely developed by Boehringer Ingelheim and is used to treat moderate to severe plaque psoriasis and psoriatic arthritis. Additionally, the medicine is approved in further markets for the treatment of moderately to severely active Crohn's disease and for the treatment of moderately to severely colitis ulcerosa.

The Human Pharma business grew in all regions in currency-adjusted terms compared with the previous year. In 2025, the region USA generated net sales of EUR 7,562 million and remained the region with the highest net sales with a share of 33.3%. Net sales fell by –4.0% (currency-adjusted increase of +0.2%).

The EUCAN region (Europe and Canada) followed with net sales of EUR 5,620 million and a 24.7% share in 2025. This corresponds to a growth of +4.2% (currency-adjusted +4.4%).

The region emerging markets recorded a slight decline of –2.9% in net sales (currency-adjusted increase of +3.3%). Overall, net sales in these countries fell to EUR 4,059 million, which represented a 17.9% share of net sales.

Japan accounted for 5.7% of total net sales in the Human Pharma business. Here, net sales rose by +4.9% (currency-adjusted +8.2%) to EUR 1,306 million due to the significantly weaker Japanese yen (JPY) relative to the Euro (EUR).

With Global Licences, we generated net sales of EUR 2,716 million. This corresponds to a growth rate of +35.5% (currency-adjusted +44.8%).

In BioXcellence, we recorded a sales growth of +19.0% (currency-adjusted +19.3%). This resulted in net sales of EUR 1,470 million, corresponding to a share of net sales of 6.5%.

Our top-selling Animal Health medicines come from the pet business: the antiparasitic NEXGARD® recorded sales growth of +3.8% (currency-adjusted +8.5%) to EUR 1,404 million in 2025 and therefore remained the highest-selling product family in the portfolio of the Animal Health business in the 2025 fiscal year. Due to the continued growth and the market launches of NEXGARD® PLUS and NEXGARD® COMBO, the NEXGARD® family was one of the top-selling brands in the Animal Health industry in 2025 and was able to continue the strong growth path from previous years.

Sales development for the antiparasitic FRONTLINE® and the HEARTGARD® medicine was negative. FRONTLINE® sales decreased by −7.3% (currency-adjusted −5.0%) to EUR 370 million, while sales of HEARTGARD® recorded a decline of −8.5% (currency-adjusted −4.4%) to EUR 216 million.

Report on expected developments

Boehringer Ingelheim can look back on a successful financial year in 2025, in which we achieved our objectives in terms of our contribution to the well-being of patients, livestock, and pets. Despite the very volatile environment, we were able to ensure the company's sustainable development and growth.

The global economic developments of the past year will continue to impact the 2026 financial year and will further challenge us. We expect global inflation rates to decline and to converge towards long-term targets. Even if the ongoing global decline in inflation continues, we see risks which may have a negative impact on price stability. At the same time, we are observing the rising geopolitical uncertainties and the associated potential risks for the global economy. Existing geopolitical tensions increase in particular uncertainty about oil price developments. Protectionist measures by individual countries can adversely affect trade relations and disrupt supply chains. Energy prices, particularly in Europe, are expected to ease again in the medium term. So, our expectations for the world economy for next year remain cautious.

We believe opportunities will outweigh risks for Boehringer Ingelheim in 2026 and plan to invest in this opportunity accordingly. This will enable us to continue to contribute, improve the lives of humans and animals and grow sustainably. However, a more exact outlook remains difficult in the current economic situation.

In addition to increasing geopolitical tensions, the greatest uncertainty over the coming years will be the potential impact of monetary policy measures and various government economic recovery, sustainability, and support programs on the respective government's budget planning and whether this will result in policy shifts related to innovative medicines. We expect high single digit market growth in 2026 for prescription pharmaceuticals but are also observing increasing global institutional efforts to lower the prices of medicinal products. In view of this development, the financial ability to act with regard to sustainable growth and innovation remains of great importance to us.

We also expect moderate market growth in the Animal Health business in the new financial year, for which research and innovation are of central importance. Together with our business partners, we intend to continue to provide our customers with innovative solutions. For Boehringer Ingelheim, various new launches in both the pet and livestock segments will enable growth in the magnitude of the market.

Our consistently high R&D expenditure, which once again increased in 2025, is in line with our strategic focus on continuing to drive growth and the flow of new products. In 2025, we once again achieved our goal to enhance our internal pipeline through external innovation and partnerships. We will continue to actively pursue this strategy in 2026. We invest in our own and external R&D after close investigation of the therapeutic benefit and the associated prospects for success. The continuous development and expansion of our research and development pipeline indicates short-, medium-, and long-term growth potential. We expect to see a further increase in R&D investments in new medicines in 2026 and intend to reach new milestones in research and development as well as multiple new market approvals.

In addition to patent expiry, the major challenges facing the research-driven pharmaceutical industry are the increasing amount of investment in R&D as well as bigger hurdles and increased costs associated with product approvals. On the sales side, the already mentioned increasing cost burden on the healthcare system is intensifying the pressure on the sales prices of medicines.

In conjunction with the long planning and development cycles for new products, growing public cost pressure means that our business is less predictable. This requires us to quickly recognize and seize opportunities in both Human Pharma and Animal Health while also continuously monitoring and adjusting costs and business processes. In 2025, we implemented measures in all our business areas to accelerate the speed of our response to changes, reduce the complexity of the organization, and optimize the cost base. In this way, we are creating potential for capital expenditure and securing the company's long-term success.

Boehringer Ingelheim develops therapies that transform lives – today and for generations to come. As a family owned company, we have thereby ensured our competitiveness and long-term entrepreneurial independence since we were founded in 1885. We are confident that we will achieve our ambitious targets in all of our business areas, thanks to our great innovative strength, which rests on a competitive portfolio of prospective products, our global presence, and the support of our highly qualified and motivated employees.

Narrative

Purpose: To authorize and award a blanket purchase order for Tasers for the Nassau County Police Department.

Discussion:

The Nassau County Police Department requests sole source approval for the purchase of Taser X26P ECW's and accessories. There are limited ECW options available, and any switch to another ECW would require a larger purchase, test and evaluation period and re-training.

Impact on Funding/Term: The maximum amount authorized under this purchase order shall be Five Million Dollars ($5,000,000.00) from PDPDH1573 BB210 PWCAPCAP 00005 50702 and 00005.

Recommendation: Department of Shared Services, Office of Purchasing, recommends awarding a blanket purchase order to Axon Enterprise, Inc., as the sole source provider.

In the Matter of Axon Enterprise, Inc., a corporation.	Docket No. 9389

ORDER RETURNING MATTER TO ADJUDICATION AND DISMISSING COMPLAINT

The Commission voted to issue an administrative complaint on January 3, 2020, consistent with the directive that Congress set forth in the FTC Act.[1] Thereafter, the parties chose to file in federal court a complaint alleging, inter alia, that the FTC's administrative adjudication process is constitutionally deficient. On April 8, 2020, the federal district court dismissed Axon's complaint due to a lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Axon appealed to the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. In September 2020, Axon filed an Emergency Motion to Stay Administrative Trial with the Ninth Circuit, asking the court to temporarily stay the evidentiary hearing scheduled before this Commission pending consideration of Axon's appeal. In October 2020, the Ninth Circuit granted Axon's motion. As a result, the administrative adjudication process was stayed. That federal court challenge resulted in years of litigation going all the way up to the Supreme Court, which rendered a decision on the jurisdictional issue in April 2023.

At this point—nearly four years after this merger challenge was first filed and six years after the deal was consummated—the constitutional challenge has now been remanded to the federal district court in which it began. In that federal court litigation, Axon has now filed an Amended Complaint raising, yet again, constitutional challenges to the Commission's adjudication process. The Commission anticipates those challenges will likely result in years of additional litigation, further delaying the administrative adjudication that would reach the merits of the antitrust action here.

[1] Congress directed the Commission to enforce the FTC and Clayton Acts through administrative adjudication. 15 U.S.C. §§ 21(b), 45(b). The Commission can also bring a federal court action seeking preliminary relief under Section 13(b) of the FTC Act when necessary to prevent a merger's consummation pending administrative adjudication, and the Commission will sometimes seek to permanently enjoin a merger in federal court under Section 13(b) when it is jointly bringing an action with State law enforcement authorities, see FTC v. H.J. Heinz Co., 246 F.3d 708, 714 (D.C. Cir. 2001), and St. Alphonsus Med. Center-Nampa Inc. v. St. Luke's Health Sys., Ltd., 778 F.3d 775 (9th Cir. 2015), but that was not the case here.

Every anticompetitive merger harms markets and adversely affects the American people, and the allegations in the complaint suggest this one is no different. The complaint states that this merger eliminated competition between two rivals, effectively creating a monopoly and harming both police departments and communities who fund them. As it does with any enforcement action, however, the Commission must constantly evaluate the deployment of its limited agency resources to ensure maximal efficacy and utility. Here, there are a variety of factors we must consider in pursuit of those priorities, including the increasingly unlikely possibility of reaching a timely resolution of the antitrust merits that led to the filing of our complaint in the first place.

Based on the totality of the circumstances, we have come to the difficult conclusion that the public interest requires that this litigation no longer be continued.

Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED THAT this matter be, and it hereby is, returned to adjudication; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED THAT the Complaint in this matter be, and it hereby is, DISMISSED.

POLICE COMMISSIONER

DATE: March 10, 2026

TO: Nassau County Division of Purchasing

FROM: Lieutenant George La Rosa, Serial No. 8427, Shield No. 356, Commanding Officer, Firearms Training Unit

SUBJECT: SOLE SOURCE JUSTIFICATION, Axon Taser X26P Electronic Control Weapon (ECW)

The Nassau County Police Department requests sole source approval for the purchase of replacement Taser X26P ECW's and accessories. Axon is the sole manufacturer for the Taser X26P, which currently issued to Department members. This ECW has been in use with the Department since 2013. Department members have been trained and outfitted with the Taser X26P and its components. There are limited ECW options available, and any switch to another ECW would require a larger purchase, test and evaluation period and re-training.

Thank you for the consideration.

Respectfully,

George La Rosa

PART I

Statements contained in this Annual Report on Form 10-K that are not historical are "forward-looking statements" within the meaning of Section 27A of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Securities Act"), and Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"), including statements regarding our expectations, beliefs, intentions and strategies regarding the future. We intend that such forward-looking statements be subject to the safe-harbor provided by the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Such statements give our current expectations or forecasts of future events; they do not relate strictly to historical or current facts. Words such as "may," "will," "should," "could," "would," "predict," "potential," "continue," "expect," "anticipate," "future," "intend," "plan," "believe," "estimate," and similar expressions, as well as statements in future tense, identify forward-looking statements. However, not all forward-looking statements contain these identifying words.

We cannot guarantee that any forward-looking statement will be realized, although we believe we have been prudent in our plans and assumptions. Achievement of future results is subject to risks, uncertainties and potentially inaccurate assumptions. Many events beyond our control may determine whether results we anticipate will be achieved. Should known or unknown risks or uncertainties materialize, or should underlying assumptions prove inaccurate, actual results could differ materially from past results and those anticipated, estimated or projected. You should bear this in mind as you consider forward-looking statements. This Annual Report on Form 10-K lists various important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from historical and expected results, which are set forth more fully in Part I, Item 1A. These factors are intended as cautionary statements for investors within the meaning of Section 27A of the Securities Act and Section 21E of the Exchange Act. Readers can find them under the heading "Risk Factors" in this Annual Report on Form 10-K, and investors should refer to them. You should understand that it is not possible to predict or identify all such factors. Consequently, you should not consider any such list to be a complete set of all potential risks or uncertainties.

Except as required by law, we undertake no obligation to publicly update forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise. You are advised, however, to consult any further disclosures we make on related subjects in our Form 8-K, 10-Q and 10-K reports to the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"). Our filings with the SEC may be accessed at the SEC's web site at www.sec.gov.

Item 1. Business

Overview

Axon Enterprise, Inc. ("Axon," the "Company," "we" or "us") is a technology leader in global public safety. In 2022, we announced our moonshot goal to cut gun-related deaths between police and the public in the United States in half by 2033.

Axon is building the public safety operating system of the future by integrating a suite of hardware devices and cloud software solutions that not only revolutionize modern policing but also cater to federal agencies, corrections, justice and enterprise-level security needs. Axon's suite includes cloud-hosted digital evidence management solutions, productivity and real-time operations software, body cameras, in-car cameras, TASER energy devices, drone and robotic security, and training solutions.

Our hardware and software solutions advance our mission to (i) make the bullet obsolete, (ii) reduce social conflict, and (iii) enable a fair and effective justice system. Our products solve some of society's most challenging problems and our mission attracts top talent. We aim to invent and deliver public safety products that progressively make the right things easier and the wrong things harder every day.

Our research & development ("R&D") investments support continuous innovation on behalf of our customers. Our financial strategy is to build highly recurring, highly profitable businesses and to drive growth through this purposeful product innovation.

Axon's operations comprise two reportable segments:

1. Software and Sensors: We develop, manufacture and sell fully integrated hardware and cloud-based software solutions that enable law enforcement to capture, securely store, manage, share and analyze video and other digital evidence. Our software offerings also support productivity and real-time operations. The Software and Sensors segment includes the sale of sensors, including body cameras, in-car cameras, other hardware sensors, warranties on sensors, and other products, as well as recurring cloud-hosted software revenue, related non-recurring professional services revenue, and revenue from certain software, including on-premise licenses.

2. TASER: Axon is the market leader in the development, manufacture and sale of conducted energy devices ("CEDs"), which we sell under our brand name, TASER. The TASER segment includes the manufacture and sale of CEDs, batteries, accessories and extended warranties, digital subscription training content, virtual reality ("VR") training content, TASER Evidence.com license revenue, and other professional services tied to TASER and VR deployments.

For further information about our reportable segments and sales by geographic region, refer to Note 1 of Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Axon employees are distributed across multiple geographies and report to work via a remote-hybrid model, which leverages both in-person collaboration environments as well as cloud-based software tools that enable remote productivity. Our headquarters in Scottsdale, Arizona and our hubs in Seattle, Washington; San Francisco, California; Boston, Massachusetts; Atlanta, Georgia; and Sterling, Virginia house the majority of our in-person employees located in the United States, including members of our executive management team, and sales, marketing, certain engineering, manufacturing, finance and other administrative support functions. We also have subsidiaries and/or offices located in Australia, Belgium, Canada, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, India, Italy, the Netherlands, Spain, the United Kingdom and Vietnam.

Key Product Category Revenue Drivers: What We Offer

Axon products are generally cloud-connected, designed to drive better outcomes and customer experiences, and sold via mutually reinforcing integrated subscription plans. Our key revenue drivers belong to three broad product categories:

- Software: Axon is building a suite of cloud-based, Software-as-a-Service ("SaaS") solutions that integrate with our sensors and TASER devices to benefit customers and drive annual recurring revenue, which totaled

Table of Contents

$1.0 billion[1] as of December 31, 2024. We have many SaaS solutions, which can best be trisected into three categories: digital evidence management, productivity and real-time operations solutions. Axon Evidence is the world's largest cloud-hosted public safety data repository of public safety video data and other types of digital evidence. Our productivity suite, which includes Axon Records and artificial intelligence ("AI"), is designed to save officers time spent writing reports and doing paperwork. Our real-time operations capabilities, which include Axon Respond, integrates location data, signal alerts and video feeds to provide a complete picture of evolving situations.

- Sensors: Axon devices address many needs, including transparency, real-time situational awareness, and accurate capture and integration of evidence with software workflows. Product categories within sensors include Axon Body cameras, Axon Fleet in-car systems, drones and robotics, and other devices that work with our software. Our software solutions also support an open ecosystem of connected devices produced by other vendors.

- TASER: We develop smart devices, tools and services that support public safety officers in de-escalating situations, avoiding or minimizing use of force and aiding consumer personal protection. These tools include TASER devices, VR training services and consumer devices. Research has shown that TASER devices are the most effective less-than-lethal force option, with the lowest likelihood of injury to officers and assailants. Since our inception in 1993, TASER devices have been adopted by a majority of U.S. state and local law enforcement and are used daily to help keep communities safe. Global adoption of TASER devices remains early and we are expanding into new geographies. Axon VR solutions make public safety training more accessible, relevant and affordable — with the goal of using new immersive VR technologies to better prepare officers for real-life situations in the field.

Sales and Distribution: Who We Sell To and Where We Deliver

We think of our core customers as falling into roughly four categories of funding sources: U.S. state and local governments, the U.S. federal government, international government customers and commercial enterprises. Additionally, the types of customers who find value in our product offerings are expanding beyond law enforcement to include customers such as attorneys, corrections, fire and emergency medical services personnel, commercial enterprise security, frontline enterprise workers, and the U.S. military.

Axon's sales force and strong customer relationships represent key strategic advantages. The majority of our revenues are generated via direct sales, including our online store, although we do leverage distribution partners and third-party resellers. No customer represented more than 10% of total net sales for the years ended December 31, 2024, 2023 or 2022. As we diversify into new markets, we have been investing in sales personnel and strategic headcount additions to support growth in these markets.

Governmental agencies generally have the ability to terminate our contracts, in whole or in part, for reasons including non-appropriation of funds. We continue to monitor developments in federal government funding.

Resources

Manufacturing and Supply Chain

We perform light manufacturing, final assembly and final test operations at our facilities in Scottsdale, Arizona and own substantially all of the equipment required to develop, prototype, manufacture and assemble our finished products. We have continued to maintain both our ISO 9001 and our ISO 9001:2015 certifications.

We continue to take steps to diversify our supply chain and global manufacturing footprint, which positions us well to manage supply chain disruptions. Material availability has mostly stabilized from prior supply chain challenges while general levels of risk continue to exist in all businesses that manufacture products. Supplier decommitments remain a top area of risk. However, we have put programs in place to mitigate this risk. We proactively manage our supply chain down to third tier suppliers to mitigate and overcome material shortages. These actions align to our strategic model to help meet strong product demand while also preparing us to stagger factory work schedules as needed, which enables us to meet compressed build schedules over short periods of time. We continue to adjust strategic inventory levels in both raw materials and finished goods based on areas of risk to mitigate potential supply disruptions.

[1] Calculated as monthly recurring license, integration, warranty, and storage revenue for the year ended December 31, 2024. Annual recurring revenue is a forward-looking performance indicator that management believes provides more visibility into the growth of our revenue generated by our highest margin, recurring services. Annual recurring revenue should be viewed independently of revenue and deferred revenue because it is an operating measure and is not intended to be combined with or to replace GAAP revenue or deferred revenue, as they can be impacted by contract start and end dates and renewal rates. Annual recurring revenue is not intended to be a replacement or forecast of revenue or deferred revenue.

In light of our broad domestic and international supplier base, we are continuously monitoring our supply chain to manage through potential impacts, identifying alternate shipping and logistic sources, and working with foreign regulators to ensure that our suppliers can provide high quality parts. Despite past supply chain disruptions relating to material shortages and port constraints, we remain focused on actively managing our supply chain by strengthening strategic relationships, securing secondary and alternate sourcing, adjusting build plans, maintaining strategic inventory and utilizing flexible logistics to support growing demand while minimizing customer disruptions.

Even as we continue to expand our second sourcing of materials across our supply chain, we still obtain some unique components from single source suppliers. However, because we own substantially all of the injection molded component tooling used in their production, we believe we could obtain alternative suppliers in most cases with varying levels of interruption. In addition, we also have programs to hold additional raw materials (such as resins, battery components and critical semiconductors) to mitigate supply interruptions and better manage costs. For additional discussion of sources and availability of raw materials, refer to Note 1 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

We offer both limited and extended manufacturer's warranties on our Axon devices and CEDs. For additional information about our warranties, refer to Note 1 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Intellectual Property

We protect our intellectual property with U.S. and foreign patents, U.S. and foreign trademark registrations, and U.S. copyright registrations. Our patents and pending patent applications relate to technology used by us in connection with our products. We also rely on international treaties, organizations and laws to protect our intellectual property. As of December 31, 2024, we hold over 330 U.S. patents, over 150 U.S. registered trademarks, over 270 international patents and over 460 international registered trademarks, as well as numerous pending patent and trademark applications.

We continuously assess whether and where to seek formal protection for particular innovations and technologies based on such factors as the commercial significance to our operations and our competitors' operations in particular countries and regions, our strategic technology or product directions in different countries, and the degree to which intellectual property laws exist and are meaningfully enforced in different jurisdictions. We have the exclusive rights to many Internet domain names, primarily including "Axon.com," "Evidence.com" and "TASER.com." We also vigorously protect our intellectual property, including our patents and trademarks against third-party infringement.

We also execute non-disclosure agreements with employees, consultants and key suppliers to help ensure the confidentiality of our trade secrets.

Competition

Sensors — Connected Cameras and Digital Evidence Management Software: The body camera and in-car video/automatic license plate readers industry is highly competitive. Our competition includes 10-8 Video, 365Labs, Axis Communications AB, Digital Ally Inc., Duress, Getac Technology Corporation, Halo Body Cameras, Hikvision, Hytera, IONODES, i-PRO, LensLock Inc., Motorola Solutions, M-View, Oracle, Patrol Eyes, Pinnacle Response, Pro-Vision, Recoda, Reveal Media, Safe Fleet, Utility Associates, Versaterm Inc., WCCTV, Wolfcom Enterprises, Wrap Technologies Inc. and Zepcam B.V., Applied Concepts Inc., Genetec Inc. and Insight LPR.

The market for software solutions to improve public safety agency workflows is both highly fragmented and highly competitive. Our cloud-based digital evidence management system, Axon Evidence, competes with both cloud-based platforms and on-premises based systems designed by third parties or developed internally by an agency's technology staff. Our competition includes FileOnQ, FotoWare, Genetec Inc., IBM, i-PRO, Motorola Solutions, NICE, OpenText Corporation, Oracle, QueTel Corporation, Revir Technologies, Utility Associates and Vidizmo, LLC, among others.

Key competitive factors in this product category include product performance, product features (including live-streaming, GPS tracking and pre-event buffering), battery life, product quality and warranty, total cost of ownership, data security, data and information workflows, company reputation and financial strength, and customer satisfaction and relationships.

Productivity and Real-Time Operations Software — Records Management System ("RMS") and Axon Fusus: The RMS vertical area is competitive and highly fragmented. We have identified more than 50 software providers, including 365Labs, Beacon Software Solutions Inc., Caliber Public Safety (parent, Harris Computer Systems), Central Square Technologies (formerly Superion, TriTech and Aptean), CivicEye, Core Technology Corporation, CSI Technology Group, EForce Software, Executive Information Services Inc., Hexagon AB, Kologik, LawSoft Inc., Mark43 Inc, Motorola Solutions, Niche Technology Inc., Saab, SmartCop, SOMA Global, Sopra Steria, Southern Software, Sun Ridge Systems Inc. and Tyler Technologies. In addition, not all law enforcement agencies use software for report writing — some still use paper. We believe our network of camera sensors and digital evidence management platform give us a strategic advantage in these product categories. Our Axon Fusus offering competes both with real-time operations platforms that ingest body camera video feeds, like Genetec's Citigraf, Motorola's CommandCentral Aware and Utility's Strax Response, Flock Safety's FlockOS, Hitachi Vantara's Visualization Platform, and MIDL Technology, as well as platforms that ingest video feeds exclusively from surveillance cameras, like Hexagon's Connect, Live Earth and Spatialitics's GeoShield, among others.

Draft One: The AI-enabled report narrative drafting space is relatively new but fast growing. We have identified a few providers in this space, including Abel, Blueline AI, GovWorx, Karda Analytics, Mark43's ReportAI, Policereports.ai, and Truleo.

VR De-Escalation Training for Law Enforcement, Corrections and Private Security: Our VR Training platform competes with several other companies in the space who offer simulation scenarios, including simulated training on the use of both lethal and less-than-lethal alternatives. Our competition in this space includes Adaptive VR Ltd., Apex Officer, Hologate GmbH, InVeris Training Solutions Inc., Laser Shot Inc., MILO, OperatorXR, Street Smarts VR, Ti Training Corp, V-Armed, VirTra Inc. and Wrap Technologies, among others.

Key competitive factors in this product category include scale of content library, integration to additional sensors and devices (e.g. haptic suit, TASER), ease of use, visual fidelity and realism, quality of immersion experience (enhanced by capabilities such as eye tracking and speech recognition) and portability.

Axon Air: Our end-to-end drone management software platform competes with a select set of companies in the space who offer drone programs and flight management software solutions. Our competition in this space includes Auterion Ltd., BRINC Drones' LiveOps, Flock Safety's Aerodome, Motorola Solutions' CAPE, Paladin Drones' Watchtower and Votix, LLC, among others. Key competitive factors in this product category include integration and compatibility with various drone hardware providers and other technology systems used by first responders (e.g., digital evidence management), drone program management and real-time situational awareness capabilities, intuitiveness of the user interface, the level of training and customer support provided (particularly for the drone-as-first-responder use case), the customization and flexibility allowed by the platform to meet specific operational needs and requirements of different customers (e.g., customizable flight restrictions) and the autonomy capabilities provided by the platform (e.g., creation of autonomous missions).

Our indoor tactical drone hardware platform, Sky-Hero, competes with a few other companies in the space, including BRINC, Indoor Robotics, XTEND, and FLIR. Key competitive factors in this product category include variety and weight limits of compatible payloads, battery life and associated flight range, maneuverability and size, autonomy and onboard intelligence (including ability to navigate in GPS denied environments), sensor and imaging technology, durability and robustness of the drone, cost and maintenance required, reliability and security of communication and control systems, the simplicity of the drone piloting user interface and the training required to operate the drones.

Dedrone by Axon: The counter drone space is fast growing and very fragmented. Within it, Dedrone competes with Advanced Protection Systems, Anduril, ApolloShield, ARTSys360, Aselsan, Belgian Advanced Technology Systems, Big Bang Boom Solutions, Bligther Surveillance Systems, BlueHalo, BSS Holland, CACI, Cerbair, Chess Dynamics, DEFSYS, Department 13, D-Fend, DroneDefence, Droneshield, Dynamite Global Strategies, DZYNE Technologies, EDGE, EdgeSource, Elbit Systems, ELT Group, ESG, Fortem Technologies, FN Herstal, General Atomics, Gradiant, Guardion, Havelsan, Hensoldt, Hertz New Technologies, IEC Infrared Systems, Indra, L3 Harris, Leidos, Leonardo DRS, LiveLink Aerospace, Lockheed Martin, Marduk, MBDA, MC2 Technologies, Meteksan Savunma, Metis, MSI Defense Systems, MyDefence, Northrop Grumman, NSO Group, Openworks, QinetiQ, Raytheon, Regulus, Rheinmetall, SAAB, SAIC, SAMI Advanced Electronics, Securiton, Sensofusion, Sentrycs, Sentry View Systems, Skycope, Skylock, Skysafe,

Table of Contents

SNC, Sopra Steria, SRC, Teledyne FLIR, Terma, Thales, TRD Systems, UAVOS, Unifly, Vector Solutions, Vigilant Drone Defense, Vorpal, Whitefox Defense, and Zen Technologies, among others.

Key competitive factors in this product category include the breadth and accuracy of detection sensors (e.g., pan-tilt-zoom cameras, radar, and acoustic) and multi-sensor fusion approaches, the chosen methodology for radio frequency-based detection (e.g., RF signature matching or RF demodulation), integration of detection platforms with robust mitigation solutions (e.g., jammers, cyber-takeover, kinetic and high-energy), the capacity to improve detection through scale and continuous exposure to diverse drone makes and models in areas of high drone activity (e.g., urban centers, active war zones) and the seamless interoperability with existing security and defense ecosystems

TASER for Professional Users: Our CEDs compete with a variety of less-than-lethal alternatives to firearms, including rubber bullets or rubber baton rounds, such as those made by Combined Systems, Inc.; pepper spray and pepper spray projectiles, such as those made by Byrna Technologies Inc. (dba Fox Labs), SABRE Corporation and Mace Security International, Inc.; traditional stun guns, such as those made by UZI and Jolt; hand-held remote restraint devices involving a tether, such as those made by Wrap Technologies Inc.; laser dazzlers that cause temporary blindness, such as those made by B.E. Meyers & Co., Inc.; stun grenades, such as those made by Combined Systems, Inc.; long-range acoustic devices, such as those made by Genasys Inc.; and police batons and night sticks, such as those made by Monadnock and Armament Systems and Procedures, Inc. TASER devices offer advanced technology, versatility, portability, effectiveness, built-in accountability systems and low injury rates, which enable us to compete effectively against other less-than-lethal alternatives. TASER devices also offer connectivity to our cloud network, which allows law enforcement agencies and other professional users to more effectively manage their less-than-lethal programs and automate use-of-force reporting.

The key competitive factors in this product category include a device's accuracy, effectiveness, reputation, safety, cost, ease of use, and exceptional customer experience. The design maturity of the TASER platform, as well as our development and sale of a multi-shot device, are also key competitive differentiators. We are aware of competitors providing competing CED products primarily outside of the United States.

TASER for Personal Safety: In the private citizen space, TASER devices compete with firearms and other less-than-lethal self-defense options such as stun guns and pepper spray-based products. Leading competitors in the less-than-lethal space include Byrna Technologies, Inc., Mace, PepperBall, SABRE, Salt Supply Co. and Vipertek. The TASER StrikeLight competes in the flashlight category, in which there are dozens, if not hundreds, of competitors, including tactical flashlight providers with and without stun gun capabilities.

TASER Bolt and TASER Pulse are not stun guns, and have different capabilities, including neuromuscular incapacitation functionality. The broader market for personal safety and home defense is far-reaching, and categories range from threat detection and accountability (e.g., dash and doorbell cameras), to home security (e.g., home alarms, locks and response services) to personal defense (e.g., firearms, stun guns, TASER devices, pepper spray, tactical flashlights and personal alarms), to personal tracking and emergency notification mobile applications.

The primary benefit of TASER devices is in less-than-lethal incapacitation. Other competitive factors include a device's cost, effectiveness, safety, ease of use, and available training options.

Non-Axon trademarks are property of their respective owners.

Seasonality

Our business operations are influenced by municipal budget cycles. Additionally, new product introductions can significantly impact the cadence of net sales, product costs and operating expenses. Municipal law enforcement budgets tend to feature a mix of fiscal years that end in either June, September or December, while U.S. federal budget year end is in September. However, historical seasonal patterns, municipal budgets or historical patterns of product introductions should not be considered reliable indicators of our future net sales or financial performance.

Governmental Regulation

We are subject to a variety of laws and regulations in the United States and abroad that involve matters central to our business, including laws and regulations related to: privacy and data protection, security, retention and deletion; rights of publicity; content; intellectual property; regulation of certain of our CEDs as firearms; advertising; marketing; distribution; electronic contracts and other communications; competition; consumer protection; telecommunications; product liability; taxation; labor and employment; sustainability; economic or other trade prohibitions or sanctions; securities; and online payment services. A number of federal and state legislative proposals in the United States could impose new obligations in areas affecting our business. Foreign laws and regulations can impose different obligations or be more restrictive than those in the United States.

These U.S. federal and state and foreign laws and regulations, which in some cases can be enforced by private parties in addition to government entities, are constantly evolving and can be subject to significant change. As a result, the application, interpretation, and enforcement of these laws and regulations are often uncertain and may be interpreted and applied inconsistently from country to country and inconsistently with our current policies and practices. See "Item 1A. Risk Factors – Legal and Compliance Risks" for additional details.

Radio Spectrum and Unmanned Aerial and Ground-Based Robotic Devices

Certain of our products utilize radio spectrum to provide wireless voice, data and video communications services. The allocation of spectrum is regulated in the United States and other countries and limited spectrum space is allocated to wireless services and specifically to public safety users. We manufacture and market products in spectrum bands already made available by regulatory bodies. If current products do not comply with the regulations set forth by these regulatory bodies, we may be unable to sell our products or could incur penalties. Our results could be negatively affected by the rules and regulations adopted from time to time by the U.S. Federal Communications Commission ("FCC"), Innovation, Science and Economic Development Canada, the European Union Directorate-General for Environment or regulatory bodies in other countries. Regulatory changes in current spectrum bands may also require modifications to some of our products so they can continue to be manufactured and marketed.

Axon body cameras, docks, Axon Fleet vehicle cameras and Axon Signal devices are subject to the FCC's rules and regulations in the United States, as well as rules and regulations as applicable outside of the United States. These regulations affect our CEDs with Axon Signal technology, including the TASER 7 CED, Signal Performance Power Magazine ("SPPM"), the TASER 10 CED, and future CEDs implementing wireless technology. Compliance with government regulations could increase our operations and product costs and impact our future financial results.

Additionally, some of our products depend on drones or other unmanned aerial and ground-based systems that operate on the radio spectrum. We have also recently started offering hardware sensors combined with software to detect, identify, track and mitigate drones through our acquisition of Dedrone. The FCC, the Federal Aviation Administration and other agencies at the federal, state and local levels (as well as in foreign jurisdictions) are beginning to address some of the numerous certification, regulatory and legal challenges associated with drones, but a comprehensive set of standards and enforcement procedures has yet to be developed. Changes to the regulation of drones or other unmanned aerial systems may impact our future financial results.

Axon and TASER CEDs

For our CED products, we rely on the opinions of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives ("ATF"), including the determination that a device that does not expel projectiles by the action of an explosive is not classified as a firearm. Changes in laws, regulations, and interpretations outside of our control may result in our products being classified or reclassified as firearms. If this were to occur, our private citizen demand could be substantially reduced because consumers would be required to comply with federal, state or local firearm transfer requirements prior to purchasing our product. For additional details, see "Item 1A. Risk Factors – Legal and Compliance Risks."

Federal regulation of sales in the United States: The majority of our currently offered CEDs are not classified as firearms regulated by the ATF. However, the ATF regulates the TASER 10 CED as a firearm under the Gun Control Act of 1968 due to a technological advancement specific to the propulsion design of the TASER 10 CED cartridges. In the event we make the TASER 10 CED available to our private citizen and enterprise customers, demand could be substantially reduced as a result of this classification because non-governmental end-users would be required to comply with federal, state or local firearm transfer requirements prior to purchasing the TASER 10 CED. In addition, the implications of such classification on use-of-force standards and regulations could impact our ability to sell the TASER 10 CED to law enforcement and government entities. Because Axon must maintain a federal firearms license to manufacture and sell the TASER 10 CED, we are subject to periodic compliance inspections by the ATF. License violations discovered by the ATF can result in fines, penalties, warning letters or license revocation, leading to disruptions in operations. Further, we are required to administer, track and remit firearm and ammunition excise taxes as applicable.

Our CED products are also subject to testing, safety and other standards by organizations such as the American National Standards Institute, the International Electrotechnical Commission, the National Institute of Standards and Technology and Underwriters Laboratories. These regulations also affect CEDs with Axon Signal technology, including SPPM technology, and the TASER 7 and TASER 10 battery packs.

Federal regulation of international sales: Our CEDs are considered a "crime control" product by the U.S. Department of Commerce ("DOC") for export directly from the United States, which requires us to obtain an export license from the DOC for the export of our CED devices from the United States to any country other than Canada. Future products and services may require classifications from the DOC before they may be shipped internationally. Our inability to obtain DOC export licenses or classifications on a timely basis for sales of our products and services to our international customers could significantly and adversely affect our international sales. Although the TASER 10 CED is regulated by the ATF for domestic sales, the DOC has ruled that the product's unique propulsion design has no impact on its export classification and the export classification of the TASER 10 CED remains consistent with all other TASER CED models.

Federal regulation of foreign national employees: Our CED development and production is also considered controlled "technology" by the DOC and is categorized as a "deemed export" for any foreign national employees exposed to the technology within the United States. Consequently, we must obtain export licenses from the DOC for any deemed export within the United States made to a foreign national employee exposed to the controlled technology. Deemed export licenses are subject to DOC approvals and issued licenses require annual status reports for the stated employees. Inability to obtain proper licensing could curtail our ability to execute R&D and production related to CED technology.

State and local regulation: Our CEDs are controlled, restricted or, less frequently, prohibited by some state and local governments. Other jurisdictions may ban or restrict the sale of our TASER-branded devices, or restrict their use through changes to use-of-force laws or regulations, and our product sales may be significantly affected by additional state, county and city governmental regulation. The change in the TASER 10 CED's propulsion design may impact how the TASER 10 CED is regulated at the state and/or local level depending on each state's firearm laws.

International regulation of foreign imports and sales: Certain jurisdictions prohibit, restrict or require a permit for the importation, sale, possession or use of our CEDs (and other select Axon products), including in some countries by law enforcement agencies, impacting our international sales opportunities.

U.S. and international regulation of component movements globally: We rely on a global supply chain of components across our product lines with most final assembly occurring in the United States. Export of these components is subject to shifting regulatory landscapes imposed by both foreign and U.S. authorities. Abrupt changes to these regulations can result in delays or interruptions to final product supplies. Additionally, ATF regulation of certain imports of the TASER 10 CED components may impact our supply chain agility.

International regulation of foreign-based operations: We maintain foreign operations in several countries globally for purposes of logistics, selling, general and administrative ("SG&A") services, and R&D support. Depending on these activities, applicable regulations may include business activity licensing and registration, import permits and recordkeeping, warehousing and storage security and permitting, and government reporting. Any failure to comply with these requirements could impact our ability to sell, support or develop our products and services both internationally and in the United States.

We offer products and services that some jurisdictions determine to be "prohibited" or "controlled" weapons under applicable local arms brokering regulations. Consequently, jurisdictions with such regulations, particularly those that are signatories to the Arms Trade Treaty, can require certain covered groups and our employees to receive weapons brokering licenses. Brokering license issuance and approval is not always guaranteed and is subject to the applicable policy of the approving jurisdiction. Denial or limitations on brokering activity can impact the ability of individual employees to proceed with weapons brokering activity in certain instances.

Federal Procurement Regulations

Our U.S. government business is subject to specific procurement regulations, such as the Federal Acquisition Regulation, and a variety of socioeconomic and other requirements imposed by executive order and statute. These requirements, although customary in U.S. government contracts, increase our performance and compliance costs. These costs might increase in the future, thereby reducing our margins, which could have an adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flows. In addition, the U.S. government will likely continue to implement new requirements focused on initiatives to drive efficiencies, affordability and cost savings and other changes to its procurement practices to meet governmental interests. These initiatives and changes to procurement practices may change the way U.S. government contracts are solicited, negotiated and managed, which may affect whether and how we pursue opportunities to provide our products and services to the U.S. government, including the terms and conditions under which we do so, which may have an adverse impact on our business, financial condition, results of operations, and cash flows.

Failure to comply with applicable regulations and requirements could lead to contractual, civil, criminal, and administrative remedies such as termination, fines, penalties, repayments or compensatory or treble damages, or suspension or debarment from U.S. government contracting or subcontracting for a period of time or indefinitely. Among the causes for suspension or debarment are violations of various laws and regulations, including those related to procurement integrity, export control, U.S. government security, employment practices, protection of the environment, accuracy of records, proper recording of costs and foreign corruption. The termination of a U.S. government contract or relationship as a result of any of these violations would have an adverse impact on our operations and could have an adverse effect on our standing and eligibility for future U.S. government contracts.

Privacy Regulations

We are subject to various U.S. and foreign laws and regulations associated with the collection, processing, storage and transmission of personally identifiable information and other sensitive and confidential information. This data is wide ranging and relates to our employees, customers and other third parties, including the subjects of law enforcement. Our compliance obligations include those prescribed under laws and regulations that dictate whether, how and under what circumstances we can receive, control, process, hold and/or transfer certain data that is critical to our operations, including data shared between countries or regions in which we operate and data shared among our products and services. If one or more of the legal mechanisms for transferring data from other countries to the United States is invalidated, if we are unable to transfer data between and among countries and regions in which we operate, or if we are prohibited from sharing data among our products and services, it could affect the manner in which we provide our products and services or adversely affect our financial results. Countries may also pass legislation implementing data protection requirements or requiring local storage and processing of data or similar requirements that could increase the cost and complexity of delivering our products and services and expose us to significant penalties for non-compliance. For example, the European Parliament adopted the General Data Protection Regulation, effective May 2018, that extended the scope of European privacy laws to any entity that controls or processes personal data of European Union residents in connection with the offer of goods or services or the monitoring of behavior and imposes compliance obligations concerning the handling of personal data. Further, Vietnam's Personal Data Protection Decree, which entered into force July 1, 2023, applies to organizations (wherever based) so long as they participate in personal data processing in Vietnam. We are also subject to U.S. laws and regulations, including the California Privacy Rights Act, which provides enhanced consumer protections for California residents, a private right of action for data breaches and statutory fines and damages for data breaches or other California Consumer Privacy Act violations, as well as a requirement of "reasonable" cybersecurity, which could subject us to additional compliance costs as well as potential fines, individual claims, class actions and commercial liabilities.

Any inability, or perceived inability, by us to adequately address privacy concerns, or comply with applicable laws, regulations, policies, industry standards and guidance, contractual obligations or other legal obligations, even if unfounded, could result in significant regulatory and third-party liability, increased costs, disruption of our business and operations, and a loss of confidence and other reputational damage. Furthermore, as new privacy laws and regulations are implemented, the time and resources needed for us to comply with such laws and regulations continues to increase and become a significant compliance workstream.

Environmental Regulations

We are subject to various U.S. federal, state, local and foreign laws and regulations governing the environment, including restricting the presence of certain substances in our products and making us financially responsible for the collection, treatment, recycling and disposal of such products. The European Union has published Directives on the restriction of certain hazardous substances in electronic and electrical equipment (the "RoHS Directive") and on electronic and electrical waste management (the "WEEE Directive"). The RoHS Directive restricts the use of a number of substances, including lead. The WEEE Directive directs members of the European Union to enact laws, regulations and administrative provisions to ensure that producers of electric and electronic equipment are financially responsible for the collection, recycling, treatment and environmentally responsible disposal of certain products sold into the European Union. In addition, similar environmental legislation has been enacted in other jurisdictions, including the United States (under federal and state laws) and other countries.

In addition, the European Union has defined a regulation for the registration, evaluation, authorization and restriction of chemicals that places responsibility on companies to manage the risks from chemicals contained in products and to provide safety information about such substances. Manufacturers and importers are required to gather information on the properties of the chemical substances in their products and provide for their safe handling. As of January 5, 2021, companies supplying products in the European Union containing substances of very high concern as identified by the European Union have to submit information on these products to the European Chemicals Agency. The information in their database is then made available to waste operators and consumers.

Other countries have adopted chemical restrictions regulations, including the United States, Canada and Australia. For example, U.S. governmental authorities are increasingly focused on preventing environmental contamination from per-and polyfluoroalkyl substances ("PFAS"), which may be contained in certain Axon products. Federal and state governments and agencies are in various stages of considering and/or implementing laws and regulations requiring the reporting, restriction and/or phase-out of PFAS in products.

In addition, further environmental or climate change disclosure legislation may be enacted in the jurisdictions in which we operate, including the United States (under federal and state laws) and other countries, the cumulative impact of which could be significant. For example, the European Union's Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive and the United Kingdom's Streamlined Energy and Carbon Reporting introduce additional due diligence and disclosure requirements addressing sustainability that apply or we expect will apply, as applicable, to us over the coming years. Further, in September 2023, California passed the Climate Corporate Data Accountability Act and the Climate-Related Financial Risk Act, requiring increased climate-related reporting. While currently stayed, the SEC's recently adopted climate-related reporting requirements, to the extent they become effective, will also require extensive additional disclosure regarding sustainability.

These requirements will, and changes in environmental or climate change disclosure laws, regulations or rules could, lead to increased costs of compliance, including remediations of any discovered issues and changes to our operations. Such changes could include those related to our manufacturing practices and/or product designs, which may be significant and could negatively impact our business, results of operations, financial condition and competitive position. Any failures to comply could result in governmental action, including the imposition of fines, or demands or orders that we modify or cease existing business practices, which could adversely affect our financial results.

Human Capital Resources

Our success depends on the continued service of our employees and on our ability to continue to attract, retain and motivate top talent. To achieve this, we strive to foster a diverse and inclusive environment at Axon, offering equitable opportunities for growth and development, supported by strong compensation and benefits and by programs that build connections between our employees and their communities. Axon's mission is central to our recruiting and retention efforts.

As of December 31, 2024, we had more than 4,100 full-time employees and more than 870 temporary employees (which include contractors, interns and individual consultants). During 2024, the number of our full-time employees increased by approximately 770 or 23%, primarily in our R&D, operations and sales organizations. Employee growth was further driven by our acquisitions that were completed in the year.

We are committed to providing a comprehensive and competitive total rewards package to attract, motivate, and retain top talent. We review our programs annually to ensure they align with market practices in the industries and countries where we operate. Our global benefits include broad-based stock grants and performance-based bonuses, comprehensive healthcare and retirement benefits, paid parental and family leave, commuter benefits, unlimited paid time off for U.S. exempt employees, and flexible leave options for non-exempt and international employees. Additionally, we provide free access to virtual coaching and therapy through Modern Health, as well as support programs for employees navigating significant life events.

We prioritize career advancement and internal mobility by encouraging employees to explore traditional career paths or pursue cross-functional opportunities that often result in promotions. Employees are supported through structured mentorship and rotational programs, as well as access to self-directed virtual training platforms, role-specific on-the-job learning opportunities, and leadership and technical skill-building workshops. Our focus on development, combined with competitive benefits, enabled us to close the year with a regrettable attrition rate[2] of less than 1%, well below our annual goal of 1.5%. Employees reported a higher than 89% satisfaction score for feeling proud to work at Axon during our 2024 employee engagement survey and an 86% satisfaction score on recommending Axon as a great place to work.

[2] Regrettable attrition is defined as rolling 12-month attrition of employees rated as top performing in the prior performance rating cycle.

We are committed to maintaining a workplace where all employees feel respected and valued. We hire, evaluate, and promote employees based on merit, skills, and performance, with zero tolerance for harassment, retaliation, violence, or discrimination based on race, color, religion, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, age, disability, or veteran status. To reinforce this commitment, all employees complete anti-harassment training during onboarding and repeat it annually. Leadership training is provided throughout the year to ensure managers are equipped to address and resolve employee concerns effectively.

Health and Safety

The health and safety of our employees is of utmost importance to us. We conduct regular self-assessments and audits to ensure compliance with our health and safety guidelines and regulatory requirements. Our ultimate goal is to achieve a level of work-related injuries as close to zero as possible through continuous investment in our safety programs. We provide protective gear (e.g., eye protection, masks and gloves) as required by applicable standards and as appropriate given employee job duties.

- If demand for our products increases, our future success will depend on our ability to manage our growth and to increase manufacturing production capacity.
- Delays in product development schedules could adversely affect our revenues and cash flows.
- We expend significant resources in anticipation of a sale due to our lengthy sales cycle and may receive no revenue in return.
- If our security measures or those of our third-party providers, including cloud storage providers, are breached, resulting in unauthorized access to our and our customers' data, it could undermine the confidence in our network, data centers and services, leading to reduced customer use of our products and services and significant legal and financial exposure and liabilities.
- Catastrophic events could materially adversely affect our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.
- Uncertainty in the development, deployment, and use of AI in our products and services, as well as our business more broadly, could adversely affect our business and reputation.
- Defects or disruptions in our services could impact demand for our services and subject us to substantial liability.
- Defects in our products could reduce demand for our products or result in product recalls and result in a loss of sales, delay in market acceptance and damage to our reputation.
- Our international operations expose us to additional risks that could harm our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.
- We depend on our ability to attract and retain our key management, sales and technical personnel.
- Failure to comply with federal, state, or local regulations applicable to our firearm product, the TASER 10 CED, could result in governmental actions or litigation, potentially harming our business prospects, operating results, and financial condition.
- Failure to maintain effective internal control over financial reporting may adversely affect our ability to report our financial condition and operating results in a timely and accurate manner, which may cause investor confidence to diminish and the value of our common stock to decline.
- Our revision of previously issued consolidated financial statements may adversely affect investor confidence and could result in regulatory actions and stockholder litigation.

Financial Risks

- An increasing percentage of our revenue is derived from subscription billing arrangements that may result in delayed cash collections and may increase customer credit risk on receivables and contract assets.
- Our gross margin depends on a number of factors, including our product mix, cost structure and acquisitions we may make, any of which could cause our gross margin to fluctuate.
- Revenue for our SaaS products is recognized over multi-year contract terms, which may delay the reflection of new business in our operating results.
- Most of our end-user customers are subject to budgetary and political constraints, which may delay or prevent sales, result in cancellations, or lead to the non-renewal of contracts.
- The open bidding process introduces uncertainty in securing future contract awards.
- We hold the majority of our cash balances, some of which are not insured, at two depository institutions.

Table of Contents

- Stock transactions may have a material, unpredictable impact on our operating results and may result in dilution to existing shareholders.
- Our financial performance is subject to risks associated with changes in the value of the U.S. dollar versus local currencies.
- Unanticipated changes in our effective tax rate and additional tax liabilities could adversely affect our operating results and financial condition.
- Our revenue and operating results may fluctuate unexpectedly from quarter-to-quarter, which could impact our stock price.
- Our profitability could suffer from declines in fair value or impairment of our investments, including our strategic investments, and could fluctuate if the fair values of our investments increase.

Legal and Compliance Risks

- We may face personal injury, wrongful death, product liability and other liability claims that harm our reputation and adversely affect our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.
- Other litigation, government inquiries and regulatory actions may result in significant costs and judgments and divert management attention from our business.
- We have in the past and may in the future be subject to intellectual property infringement and other claims, which could incur substantial litigation costs, result in significant damages awards, inhibit our use of certain technologies, and divert management attention from our business.
- If we are unable to protect our intellectual property, the value of our brands and products may decrease and we may lose our competitive market advantage.
- We may be unable to enforce patent rights internationally, which may limit our ability to prevent our product features from being used by competitors in some foreign jurisdictions.
- The use of open-source software in our products, services and technologies may expose us to additional risks and harm our intellectual property rights.
- A variety of new and existing laws and/or interpretations could materially and adversely affect our business.
- We are subject to evolving corporate governance and public disclosure regulations and expectations, including with respect to environmental, social and governance ("ESG") matters, that could expose us to numerous risks.
- Our amended and restated bylaws include exclusive forum provisions that could increase costs to bring a claim, discourage claims or limit the ability of our shareholders to bring a claim in a judicial forum viewed by shareholders as more favorable for disputes.

Risks Related to our Convertible Notes

- Fulfilling our debt obligations requires significant cash resources, which may exceed our available cash flow.
- The conditional conversion feature of the Notes, if triggered, may adversely affect our financial condition and operating results.
- Conversion of the Notes may dilute the shareholder ownership and could depress the price of our common stock.
- Changes in the accounting treatment for the Notes may have a material effect on our reported financial results.
- The 2027 Note Hedge and Warrant transactions may impact the value of the Notes and our common stock.
- We are exposed to counterparty risk with respect to the 2027 note hedge transactions.

Our past financial performance may not be a reliable indicator of our future performance and historical trends should not be used to anticipate our results or trends in future periods because of the following factors and other variables affecting our operating results. You should carefully consider the trends, risks and uncertainties described below and other information in this Annual Report on Form 10-K and subsequent reports filed with or furnished to the SEC before making any investment decision with respect to our securities. If any of the following trends, risks or uncertainties actually occurs or continues, our business prospects, financial condition, results of operations or cash flows could be materially adversely affected, the trading prices of our securities could decline, and you could lose all or part of your investment. All forward-looking statements attributable to us or persons acting on our behalf are expressly qualified in their entirety by this cautionary statement.

Strategic Risks

We substantially depend on acceptance of our products and services by law enforcement agencies throughout the world. If law enforcement agencies do not continue to purchase and use our products and services, our business prospects, operating results and financial condition will be materially adversely affected.

Our largest customer vertical is U.S. federal, state and local law enforcement. Axon has a customer relationship with a substantial number of federal, state and local law enforcement agencies in the United States. At any point, whether or not related to the performance of our products and services, law enforcement agencies may elect to no longer purchase or use our CEDs or other products and services. For example, we believe that in the past our sales were adversely impacted by negative coverage and publicity surrounding our products and services and their use and this could occur in the future, including as a result of factors beyond our control. If law enforcement agencies no longer purchase our products and services, or materially decrease their purchases, our business prospects, operating results and financial condition will be materially adversely affected.

We substantially depend on sales of our CEDs, and if these products do not continue to be widely accepted, our business prospects, operating results, and financial condition could be diminished.

For the years ended December 31, 2024, 2023 and 2022, we derived a significant portion of our revenues from sales of CEDs and related products and services, whether sold individually or as part of a subscription plan offering. We anticipate that these products will continue to account for a significant portion of our revenue for the foreseeable future. The acceptance of these devices is critical to our business prospects, operating results and financial condition. If we cannot continue to meet customer demands or achieve more widespread market acceptance of these products, our business prospects, operating results, and financial condition will be materially adversely affected.

Demand for CED products is affected by several factors, many of which are beyond our control, including continued market acceptance of our products by our customers, technological change, and growth or contraction of the economy in general. Additionally, our CEDs and other offerings or products could fail to maintain or attain sufficient customer acceptance for many reasons, including:

- our failure to predict market demand accurately, whether as a result of a failure to anticipate demand for product features or functionality or to supply offerings that meet this demand;
- real or perceived defects, errors or failures;
- negative publicity about product performance or effectiveness;
- delays in releasing to the market our improved offerings or enhancements, or defects, errors or failures while releasing such offerings or enhancements;
- real or perceived failure to offer complementary products that enhance the functionality of our offerings;
- introduction or anticipated introduction of competing products; and
- budget constraints or other limitations for our customers.

A decrease in the selling prices of or demand for these products, or their failure to maintain broad market acceptance, would significantly harm our competitive position, business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

If we are unable to design, introduce, sell and deploy new products or new product features successfully, our business and financial results could be adversely affected.

Our future success will likely depend on our ability to develop new products or product features that achieve market acceptance in a timely and cost-effective manner and in a way that is responsive to customer demand. The development of new products and product features is complex, time-consuming and expensive, and we may experience delays or incur significant additional costs in completing the development and introduction of new products. We may choose to carry higher levels of inventory to mitigate the risk of production delays, which may expose us to an increased risk of obsolescence.

We have devoted, and continue to devote, significant resources to develop and deploy SaaS solutions to a large number of customers. If there is a substantial increase of new customers in a small window, we may have difficulty deploying these solutions in a way that meets market demand. Increases in customer demand may require us to change our

Table of Contents

IT infrastructure, expand our IT infrastructure or replace our IT infrastructure entirely. Scaling and adapting our IT infrastructure is likely to be complex and require additional technical expertise. If we are required to make any changes to our IT infrastructure, we may incur substantial costs and experience delays or interruptions in our solutions. These delays or interruptions may cause customers to become dissatisfied with our solutions and move to competing providers. Our failure to accommodate increased traffic, increased costs, inefficiencies or failures to adapt to new technologies or customer requirements and the associated adjustments to our IT infrastructure could harm our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Additionally, customers' requirements for these products are complex and varied. If we cannot develop scalable solutions that can be consistently configured for customers with minimal effort or grow and maintain a professional services team that can consistently configure our products to meet the requirements of large numbers of customers in a timely and cost-effective manner, our ability to broadly scale SaaS solutions could be negatively impacted, and our business prospects, operating results and financial condition could be negatively impacted.

We cannot provide any assurance that products that we may develop in the future will achieve market acceptance. If we fail to develop new products or new product features on a timely basis that achieve market acceptance, our business, financial results and competitive position could be adversely affected.

We face risks associated with rapid technological change and new competing products.

The technology associated with law enforcement devices and software receives significant attention and is rapidly evolving. The introduction of products embodying new technologies and the emergence of new industry standards can render existing products obsolete and unmarketable. In particular, AI and machine learning technologies are rapidly developing and as these technologies are incorporated into our products and the operations of our customers, the pace of change has in the past and may in the future continue to accelerate. Additionally, we expect our products to meet and keep pace with evolving security standards and requirements of our industry and customers, including those of the U.S. federal government and international governments. While we have some patent protection in certain key areas of our Axon devices, CEDs and SaaS technology, new technology may result in competing products that operate outside our patents and could present significant competition for our products, which could adversely affect our business, financial results and competitive position. Additionally, our competitors may develop competing technologies or products with superior features or lower costs, respond quicker to emerging technologies, conduct more extensive marketing campaigns, have greater financial, marketing, manufacturing and other resources, and may be more successful in attracting potential customers, employees and strategic partners. If we cannot compete effectively, our business and financial results could be adversely affected.

Our future success depends on our ability to expand sales through direct sales and distributors and our inability to increase direct sales or recruit new distributors would negatively affect our sales.

Our distribution strategy is to pursue sales through multiple channels primarily through direct sales and independent distributors. We focus on direct sales to larger agencies and our inability to grow sales to these agencies in this manner would materially adversely affect our business prospects, operating results, and financial condition. In addition, our inability to establish relationships with and retain distributors who we believe can successfully sell our products would materially adversely affect our business prospects, operating results, and financial condition. If we do not competitively price our products, meet the requirements of our distributors or end-users, provide adequate marketing support, or comply with the terms of our distribution arrangements, our distributors may fail to aggressively market our products or may terminate their relationships with us. These developments would likely have a material adverse effect on our sales. Our reliance on the sales of our products by others also makes it more difficult to predict our revenue, cash flow, and operating results.

In certain states and foreign jurisdictions, we have chosen to sell directly with law enforcement customers rather than through established distribution channels. However, some of our customers may have strong working relationships with distributors, and we may face resistance to this change. Failure to overcome this resistance and successfully establish direct relationships with our customers could negatively impact sales, or our competitors may be better positioned by continuing to sell through distributors, which could adversely affect our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Negative publicity could adversely impact sales, which could cause our revenues or operating results to decline.

Table of Contents

Our business depends on the reputation of the Axon brand. If we are unable to maintain the position of the Axon brand, our business may be adversely affected by diminishing the appeal of the brand to our customer base. This could result in lower sales and earnings.

Our reputation and our brands have in the past been, and could in the future be, damaged by negative publicity, whether or not merited or as a result of actions that are within our control. Negative publicity could relate to our company, our brands, our products, our supply chain, our packaging, our employees or any other aspect of our business. We could experience negative publicity (which may be raised by consumer advocacy groups, third-party interest groups, investors, employees or other stakeholders) for a variety of reasons, including as a result of product safety issues, threatened or pending legal or regulatory proceedings, product claims, advertising and promotional practices, sustainability or policy issues, materials sourcing or cybersecurity incidents. Negative publicity that damages one of our brands could be compounded by having an adverse effect on our other brands or our company as a whole.

In addition, unfavorable media or investor and analyst reports related to our industry, company, brand, marketing, personnel, operations, business performance, or prospects may affect our common stock price and the performance of our business, even if the publicity is not directly related to our company or our brands and even if the publicity is not accurate. Furthermore, the speed at which negative publicity is disseminated has dramatically increased through use of electronic communication, including social media outlets, websites and other digital platforms. Alternatively, our employees may knowingly or inadvertently use digital or social media platforms in ways that may not be aligned with out digital or social media strategy and could damage our reputation or our brands. Our success in maintaining and enhancing our brand depends on our ability to adapt to rapidly changing media environments. Adverse publicity or negative commentary from any media outlet could damage our reputation, require us to expend substantial resources to remedy the damage or reduce the demand for our products and services, which would all adversely affect our business and financial results.

Acquisitions of, or investments in, other products, technologies or businesses could disrupt our business, dilute shareholder value, and adversely affect our operating results.

Our business strategy has included, and may continue to include, acquiring or investing in other complementary products, technologies, or businesses. Identifying and negotiating these transactions can be time-consuming, difficult, and expensive. Additionally, our ability to close these transactions has previously, and may in the future, depend on obtaining third-party approvals, such as government regulatory approvals and clearances, which are beyond our control. Consequently, we can make no assurance that these transactions once undertaken and announced, will close.

Acquisitions or investments may present unforeseen operating difficulties and expenses. If we acquire businesses, technologies or products, we may encounter difficulties in successfully integrating the acquired personnel, operations, systems, technologies, or products successfully, or effectively managing the combined business. Anticipated benefits of such transactions may not materialize due to factors such as:

- inability to integrate or profitably benefit from acquired products, technologies or businesses;
- failure to obtain regulatory approvals, clearances or certifications;
- exposure to new regulations related to the acquired products, technologies, or business that are unexpectedly burdensome, negatively impact existing products, technologies or business, or require significant investment in order to achieve compliance;
- unanticipated costs, liabilities, or risks related to the transaction, such as those arising from litigation, government inquiries, regulatory actions;
- identified or unknown security vulnerabilities in acquired technologies that expose us to additional security risks or delay integration;
- cultural misalignment with the acquired company, as well as disruptions to our workplace environment or investor perception;
- unionization or labor organization efforts leading to work stoppages, strikes, or disruptions in business operations;
- incurrence of costs related to the transaction and integration;
- difficulty integrating the accounting and information systems, operations and personnel of the acquired business;
- inability to enhance the acquired technologies and platforms to meet the quality, performance, and brand standards expected by our customers;

Table of Contents

- difficulties and additional expenses associated with supporting legacy products and hosting infrastructure of the acquired business;
- challenges aligning the acquired company's revenue recognition policies and forecasting methods;
- write-offs of acquired assets or investments, credit risks, or other financial impacts associated with acquired customers;
- challenges transitioning acquired customers to our systems, processes, and contractual terms;
- diversion of management's attention;
- harm to existing business relationships with business partners and customers;
- loss of key employees;
- diversion of critical resources, including substantial portions of available cash, away from other parts of our business;
- shareholder dilution resulting from the issuance of new equity to finance the transaction;
- incurrence of debt on unfavorable terms, repayment difficulties, or significant financial liabilities arising out of the acquisition or investment; and
- exposure to adverse tax consequences, substantial asset depreciation, or deferred compensation expenses.

We cannot assure you that the anticipated benefits of any acquisition or investment will be realized, that projected synergies will materialize, or that we will not be exposed to unknown liabilities or risks. Integrating an acquired technology, asset, or business into our operations can be challenging, complex, and costly, and we cannot assure you that we will be successful or that the anticipated benefits of the acquisitions or investments that we complete will outweigh their costs. If our integration and development efforts are unsuccessful and the anticipated benefits of the acquisitions we complete are not achieved, our business prospects, operating results and financial condition could be adversely affected.

In connection with these types of transactions, we may issue additional equity securities that would dilute our shareholders, use cash that we may need in the future to operate our business, incur debt on terms unfavorable to us or that we are unable to repay, incur large charges or substantial liabilities, encounter difficulties integrating diverse business cultures and values or become subject to adverse tax consequences, substantial depreciation, or deferred compensation charges. These challenges could adversely affect our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

We may not successfully manage our growth or plan for future growth.

Since our founding in 1993, we have experienced rapid growth. The growth and expansion of our business places a continuous and significant strain on our management, operational, and financial resources. Further growth of our operations to support our customer base, our expanding third-party relationships, our information technology systems, and our internal controls and procedures may not be adequate to support our operations. Managing our growth will also require significant expenditures and allocation of valuable management resources, including the challenges of integrating, developing, and motivating a growing employee base in various countries around the world.

In addition, our rapid growth may make it difficult to evaluate our future prospects. Our ability to forecast our future results of operations is subject to a number of uncertainties, including our ability to effectively plan for and model future growth. We have encountered in the past, and may encounter in the future, risks and uncertainties frequently experienced by growing companies in rapidly changing industries. If we fail to achieve the necessary level of efficiency in our organization as it grows, or if we are not able to accurately forecast future growth, our business would be harmed.

We depend on the services of our executive officers, including Patrick W. Smith, our Chief Executive Officer. Our failure to retain executive officers could adversely impact our business.

Our future success depends upon our ability to retain executive officers, including Patrick W. Smith, and any failure to do so could adversely impact our new product development, business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Among other qualifications, Patrick W. Smith is the founder of Axon and brings extensive executive leadership experience in the technology industry, including the management of worldwide operations, sales, service and support as well as technology innovation as an inventor listed on over 50 U.S. patents. Mr. Smith has been instrumental in building the public safety operating system of the future by integrating a suite of hardware devices and cloud-based software solutions that lead to modern policing and help save lives. From the early days of founding the organization to today as a market leader, Mr. Smith's expertise has brought forth entirely new product categories, including the less-than-lethal TASER de-escalation platform, body cameras and cloud software that modernize public safety.

The loss of any of our senior management, including Patrick W. Smith, could interrupt our ability to execute our business plan, as such individuals may be difficult to replace.

Operational Risks

Unavailability of materials or higher costs could adversely affect our financial results.

We depend on domestic and international suppliers for the delivery of components used in the assembly of our products. Our reliance on third-party suppliers creates risks related to our potential inability to obtain an adequate supply of components or sub-assemblies and reduced control over pricing and timing of delivery of components and sub-assemblies, including single or sole-source components used in the manufacture of our products. Specifically, we depend on suppliers of sub-assemblies, machined parts, injection molded plastic parts, printed circuit boards, semiconductors, custom wire fabrications and other miscellaneous custom and off-the-shelf parts for our products. Although we may implement long-term agreements with strategic suppliers to mitigate the risk of supply continuity, disruptions remain possible. Additionally, if our suppliers do not allocate sufficient production, they may decommit from agreed supply levels, or inaccurately forecast demand, we may face reduced access to components and need to secure new suppliers. As the scale of our hardware production increases, we need to accurately forecast, purchase, warehouse and transport components at high volumes to our manufacturing facilities. If we are unable to accurately match the timing and quantities of component purchases to our actual needs, we may incur costs related to unexpected production disruption, storage, transportation, expedite, and write-offs, which may harm our business prospects and financial condition.

The TASER 10 CED presents additional supply chain challenges due to its unique design and regulatory requirements, including, for example, the regulation of imports and exports of certain TASER 10 CED components. We also purchase raw materials for TASER 10 CEDs from a limited number of suppliers, some of which may be subject to market price fluctuations that we may be unable to pass through to our customers. Because of the unique requirements of TASER 10 CEDs, we cannot change suppliers easily. Any delay or interruption in the supply of the raw materials that are used in TASER 10 CEDs could impair our ability to manufacture and deliver TASER 10 CEDs, harm our reputation, or cause a reduction in revenues.

A significant number of our raw materials or components comprise petroleum-based products or incur some form of landed cost associated with transporting the raw materials or components. Our freight and import costs and the timely delivery of our products could be adversely affected by the materialization or re-emergence of a number of factors that could reduce the profitability of our operations, including, for example: higher fuel costs (including increased petroleum prices as a result of, among other things, climate change-related regulations); supply chain shortages; potential port closures or shipping disruptions; customs clearance issues; increased government regulation or regulatory changes for imports of foreign products into the United States and exports from foreign sources; and delays created by war, terrorist attacks or threats, public health issues, national disasters or work stoppages. We are also subject to supply chain disruption if any of our suppliers violate legislation that bans the import of goods based on their method of production, such as using forced labor or sanctioned raw material suppliers. This may also result in negative publicity regarding our production methods, and alleged unethical or illegal practices of any of our suppliers could adversely affect our reputation. Any interruption of supply for any material components of our products could significantly delay the shipment of our products and have a material adverse effect on our revenues, profitability and financial condition. For example, there have been and may continue to be disruptions in the semi-conductor supply chain that could negatively impact our ability to make our products.

If significant tariffs or other restrictions continue to be placed on foreign imports by the United States, our sales and results of operations may be harmed. For example, ongoing trade tensions between the United States and China have led to a series of significant tariffs on the importation of certain product categories into the United States over recent years. In retaliation for these tarrifs, China has recently placed restrictions on the export of certain raw materials, including gallium and germanium. Further, President Trump has proposed significantly increased tariffs on foreign imports into the United States, particularly from China, Mexico and Canada. Such tariffs could have a significant impact on our business, particularly the importation of products used in our business that are manufactured outside the United States, or could result in our products exported from the United States being subject to retaliatory tariffs imposed by other countries. We also source certain raw materials from foreign countries, as do some of our suppliers. The implementation of tariffs and trade restrictions as well as changes in trade policies between the United States and such foreign countries could lead to increases in our supply costs and make it more difficult to obtain suppliers and may have an adverse effect on our supply chain from a cost and sourcing perspective. If we attempt to renegotiate prices with suppliers or diversify our supply chain in response to tariffs, such efforts may not yield immediate results or may be ineffective. We might also consider increasing prices to the end consumer; however, this could reduce the competitiveness of our products and adversely affect net sales. If we fail to manage these dynamics successfully, gross margins and profitability could be adversely affected. Increased tariffs or trade restrictions implemented by the United States could have a material adverse effect on our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Material adverse developments in domestic and global economic conditions, or the occurrence of other sufficiently disruptive world events, could materially adversely affect our revenue and results of operations.

Global economic uncertainty continues to pose risks to our business, driven by factors such as ongoing conflicts in Gaza and Ukraine, the volatility of interest rates, high inflation, changes in U.S. immigration policy, an actual recession or fears of a recession, trade policies and tariffs, and geopolitical tensions. Our inability to offset price inflation in our materials, components, shipping or labor through increased prices to customers with long-term fixed-price contracts and formula-based or long-term fixed-price contracts with suppliers could adversely affect our business prospects, operating results and financial condition. Global supply chain and labor market challenges could also negatively affect our and our suppliers' performance. Interest rate increases have also created financial market volatility and could further negatively impact financial markets, lead to an economic downturn or recession, or have an adverse effect on our financial results. Economic slowdowns can also negatively impact municipal and state tax collections and put pressure on law enforcement budgets, which may increase the risk that our customers will be unable to appropriate funds for existing or future contracts with us. In addition, geopolitical risks could affect our customers' budgets and policies. These and other factors may adversely affect customer demand and ability to pay, cause decrease in sales, and negatively impact the realizability of our accounts and notes receivable and contract assets.

If demand for our products increases, our future success will depend on our ability to manage our growth and to increase manufacturing production capacity.

A significant increase in demand for our products may require us to expand our production capacity while maintaining product quality. Our primary strategies to meet this challenge include introducing additional shifts, increasing the physical size of our assembly facilities, hiring additional production staff, and implementing additional customized manufacturing automation equipment. As we develop additional products, we may need to bring new equipment online, implement new systems, technology, methods and processes, and hire personnel with different qualifications. The costs associated with implementing new manufacturing technologies, methods and processes, including the purchase of new equipment, and any resulting delays, inefficiencies or loss of sales, could harm our financial results. The investments we make in equipment, technologies or personnel may not yield the anticipated labor and material efficiencies, and we may experience difficulty in attracting, integrating and retaining qualified personnel. Our inability to meet any future increase in sales demand or effectively manage our expansion could have a material adverse effect on our revenues, operating results and financial condition.

Delays in product development schedules may adversely affect our revenues and cash flows.

The development of CEDs, devices, sensors, and software is complex and time-consuming. Achieving market acceptance requires accurately anticipating customer needs and delivering products that adapt to evolving demands in a timely and cost-effective manner. Customers may require product features and capabilities that our current products do not have. If we fail to develop products that satisfy customer requirements, our ability to create or increase demand for our products could be adversely affected.

Without the timely and cost-effective introduction of new products, services, and enhancements, our offerings will likely become less competitive over time, in which case our competitive position and operating results could suffer. New products and services, and enhancements to existing products and services, can require long development and testing periods and significant investment, including substantial R&D, development of different engineering and manufacturing workflows, and adjustments to our data and analytics infrastructure. Our focus on our SaaS platform also presents complex development issues. Significant delays in new product or service releases or problems in creating new products or services could adversely affect our business, growth prospects, operating results, cash flows, and competitive position.

We expend significant resources in anticipation of a sale due to our lengthy sales cycle and may receive no revenue in return.

Before committing to purchase our products, our end-user customers typically consider a wide range of issues such as product benefits, training costs, the cost to use our products in addition to or in place of other products, budget constraints and product reliability, safety and efficacy. Because we sell to various types of non-government and government entities of multiple sizes, including national agencies, state agencies, county agencies and municipal agencies, which can require varying levels of approvals followed by appropriations, the length of our sales cycle may range from a few weeks to as long as several years. Adverse publicity surrounding our products or the safety of such products has in the past, and could in the future, lengthen our sales cycle with customers. We believe that in the past our sales were adversely impacted by negative coverage and publicity surrounding our products or the use of our products. We may incur substantial selling costs and expend significant effort in connection with the evaluation of our products by potential customers before they place an order. If these potential customers do not purchase our products, we will have expended significant resources and received no revenue in return.

If our security measures or those of our third-party providers, including cloud storage providers, are breached, resulting in unauthorized access to our or our customers' data, it could undermine confidence in our network, data centers, and services leading to reduced customer use of our products and services and significant legal and financial exposure and liabilities.

Security breaches of our products and services could result in the unauthorized release, gathering, monitoring, misuse, loss or destruction of our customers' data. Additionally, breaches of our network or data security measures or those of our third-party providers —including cloud storage providers, suppliers and vendors—could disrupt the security of our internal systems and business applications, impair our ability to provide products and services to our customers and protect the privacy of their data, result in product development delays, result in theft or misuse of our intellectual property or other assets, require us to allocate more resources to improve technologies, or otherwise materially adversely affect our business. Supply chain vulnerabilities, such as compromised third-party software, hardware, or components, could further expose our systems to cyber risks which could materially adversely affect our business.

Because the techniques used to obtain unauthorized access, or to sabotage systems, change frequently, grow more complex over time, and generally are not recognized until launched against a target, we may be unable to anticipate these techniques or to implement adequate preventative measures. The delayed detection of sophisticated threats could allow attackers to remain undetected within our systems for extended periods, increasing the potential damage to our operations, intellectual property, and customer data. Moreover, our security measures and those of our third-party service providers or customers have not in the past and may not in the future immediately detect such security breaches if they occur. Although we have developed systems and processes that are designed to protect our data and user data, to prevent or detect data loss and security breaches, we have been in the past and are likely to remain a frequent target of third-party cybersecurity intrusion attempts and we cannot assure that such measures will provide absolute security. We have in the past and may in the future incur significant costs in protecting against or remediating cyber-attacks.

We also face increasing and evolving disclosure obligations related to cyber and other security events. Despite rigorous processes, we risk failing to meet all our existing or future disclosure obligations or having our disclosures misinterpreted. National security or public safety considerations may also affect, or in limited instances prevent, our public disclosure of a cybersecurity incident in certain circumstances.

We devote significant resources to engineer secure products and ensure security vulnerabilities are mitigated, and we require our third-party service providers to do so as well. Remote-work arrangements may increase our exposure to cyberattacks due to vulnerabilities in unsecured devices, networks, and employee environments. Breaches could occur during transfer of data-to-data centers or at any time, and result in unauthorized physical or electronic access to our or our customers' data. Third parties may attempt to fraudulently induce employees or customers into disclosing sensitive information such as usernames, passwords or other information to gain access to our data or our customers' data. Additionally, hackers may develop and deploy viruses, worms and other malicious software programs that attack or gain access to our networks and data centers. Recent developments in the threat landscape include use of AI and machine learning by attackers to automate, enhance, and evade detection during cyberattacks, along with an increased number of cyber extortion and ransomware incidents. These attacks can feature higher financial ransom demands and demonstrate increasing sophistication, including novel ransomware techniques, diverse methodologies, and advance capabilities such as adaptive malware and deepfake-enabled phishing schemes. Increasing socioeconomic and political instability in some countries has heightened these risks. In addition, retaliatory acts by foreign governments in response to Western sanctions could include cyber-attacks that could directly or indirectly impact our operations.

A security breach could expose us to a risk of loss or inappropriate use of proprietary and sensitive data, or the denial of access to this data. A real or perceived security breach could also result in a loss of confidence in the security of our products and services, damage our reputation, disrupt our business, subject us to third-party lawsuits, regulatory fines or investigations or otherwise subject us to legal liability, negatively impact our future sales and significantly harm our business prospects, operating results and financial condition. Even the perception of inadequate security may damage our reputation and negatively affect our ability to win new customers or retain existing customers.

Catastrophic events could materially adversely affect our business prospects, operating results, and financial condition.

A disruption or failure of our systems or operations in the event of a major earthquake, weather event, fire, water shortage, explosion, failure to contain hazardous materials, industrial accident, utility failure, cyber-attack, terrorist attack, public health crisis, pandemic, or other catastrophic event could cause delays in completing sales, providing products and services, or performing other mission-critical functions. A catastrophic event that results in the destruction or disruption of any of our critical operations, or of the capacity, reliability or security of our information technology systems, could harm our ability to conduct normal business activities and our operating results, as well as expose us to claims, litigation and governmental investigations and fines. Such events may also jeopardize employee safety and availability, causing additional delays or operational challenges. In addition, catastrophes may put pressure on federal, state and municipal government budgets, which may increase the risk that our customers will be unable to appropriate funds for existing or future contracts with us. These and other factors may adversely affect customer demand and their ability to pay, cause decrease in sales, and negatively impact the realizability of our accounts receivable and contract assets. Furthermore, service delays or failures during such events could damage our reputation, especially with public safety customers, and erode trust in our ability to deliver reliable solutions during critical times.

Public health emergencies have adversely affected workforces, economies and financial markets globally, and led to an economic downturn in the past and may do so again in the future.

We may also face threats to our physical security, including to our facilities and the safety and well-being of our people. In addition to the potential catastrophic events described above, these threats could involve insider threats, workplace violence, or civil unrest, which could adversely affect our company. Our customers and suppliers face similar risks that, if realized, could also adversely impact our operations. Such acts could cause delays, manufacturing downtime, or other impacts that could detrimentally impact our ability to perform our operations. We could also incur unanticipated costs to remediate impacts and lost business.

If our backup and mitigation plans are insufficient to minimize business disruption, our financial results could be adversely affected. We are continuously monitoring our operations and intend to take appropriate actions to mitigate the risks arising from catastrophic events, but there can be no assurances that we will be successful in doing so.

Uncertainty in the development, deployment, and use of AI in our products and services, as well as our business more broadly, could adversely affect our business and reputation.

We offer systems and tools that incorporate AI-based technologies, including generative AI, for our customers. We also leverage and expect to continue leveraging AI-based technologies for internal use to drive efficiency in our business operations. As with many new and emerging technologies, AI presents numerous risks and challenges to our internal business operations and our customers. For example, unexpected failures or inaccuracies in AI-driven systems could expose our customers to operational risks, particularly in high-stakes use cases such as law enforcement or public safety.

The development, adoption, integration and use of generative AI technology remains in the early stages and consequently, our AI technology may contain material defects or errors. Additionally, ineffective or inadequate AI or generative AI governance, development, use or deployment practices by us or third parties could result in unintended consequences. For example, AI algorithms that we use may be flawed or may be (or perceived to be) based on datasets that are biased or insufficient, a risk raised by the ACLU in a report dated December 10, 2024. Biases in AI models could result in discriminatory outcomes, eroding trust among customers and communities we serve.

Any latency, disruption, or failure in our AI systems, third-party AI systems that we utilize, or infrastructure could cause delays or errors in our offerings. Additionally, inadequate governance, testing, or quality assurance processes could result in flawed deployments, including those that result in physical harm or which produce erroneous or harmful outputs that may damage our reputation and expose us to legal liabilities. Correcting such defects or errors may be costly and time-consuming and could harm our business. Failure to adequately train customers on the use and limitations of AI-driven products could also compound these risks. Thoroughly testing generative AI models is challenging due to their complexity and the unpredictability of their outputs. Developing, testing, and deploying resource-intensive AI systems may require additional investment and increase our costs. There also may be real or perceived social harm, environmental harm, unfairness or other outcomes that undermine public confidence in the deployment and use of AI. Furthermore, third parties may deploy AI technologies in a manner that reduces customer demand for our products and services. Competitive pressures may also drive rapid AI development or deployment, increasing the risk of releasing inadequately tested or unreliable features. Any of the foregoing may result in decreased demand for our products and services or harm to our business, financial results, or reputation.

The legal and regulatory landscape surrounding AI technologies is rapidly evolving and uncertain, particularly in areas of intellectual property, cybersecurity, privacy, and data protection. For example, there is uncertainty around the validity and enforceability of intellectual property rights related to our development, deployment and use of AI. Cyber attacks that use AI may also become increasingly frequent and effective. Additionally, third parties that license AI technologies to us may impose unfavorable licensing terms or terminate the licenses altogether, requiring us to seek licenses from alternative sources to avoid disruptions in feature delivery.

Compliance with new or changing laws, regulations, or industry standards relating to AI may impose significant operational costs and may limit our ability to develop, deploy or use AI technologies. In part due to our global scope and law enforcement customer base, we may face heightened scrutiny and regulatory requirements, which could further increase compliance costs and limit our ability to develop, deploy or use our AI solutions or other AI technologies. For example, the AI Act in the European Union imposes compliance requirements on a variety of AI uses by law enforcement, as well as on the companies that develop those products, including us. Other jurisdictions may adopt similar measures in the future. In the future, we may voluntarily or involuntarily initiate recalls if our products are determined by us or a regulatory authority to be noncompliant with applicable laws and regulations. Such recalls, whether voluntary or involuntary, could result in significant expense, supply chain complications, and may harm our brand, business, prospects, financial condition and operating results. Please also see "Operational Risks—Defects in our products could reduce demand for our products or result in product recalls and result in a loss of sales, delay in market acceptance, and damage to our reputation" in Part I, Item 1A of this Annual Report on Form 10-K below for additional information.

We may also face increased scrutiny regarding data privacy and security risks related to the data we use to train and evaluate AI models, as breaches or misuse of this data and associated terms and conditions could expose us to significant liabilities. For example, while we do not use customer data to train AI models today, we do occasionally use data obtained from the Axon Customer Evidence Improvement Program ("ACEIP") for evaluation and we may use ACEIP data to also train models in the future, while ensuring proper consents and compliance with applicable laws. This approach reflects our commitment to responsible data usage and governance. However, there remains a significant risk in the nature of data used by third-party providers to train the AI models we rely on, including whether such third-party providers have trained AI models on data that they did not have proper consents for. Failure to appropriately respond to this evolving landscape may result in legal liability, regulatory action, or brand and reputational harm.

Defects or disruptions in our services could impact demand for our services and subject us to substantial liability.

We rely on third-party cloud service providers located in the United States and other countries to deliver our cloud services. The use of these cloud service providers gives us greater flexibility in efficiently delivering a more tailored, scalable customer experience, but also exposes us to additional risks and vulnerabilities. Lack of availability of this infrastructure could be due to several potential causes such as technical failures, natural disasters, fraud or security attacks that we cannot predict or prevent. Interruptions in our service, or loss or corruption of digital evidence, may reduce our revenue, cause us to issue credits or pay penalties, cause customers to file litigation against us, cause customers to terminate their subscriptions, and adversely affect our renewal rates and our ability to attract new customers.

Our business will also be harmed if our customers and potential customers believe our service is unreliable. Since our customers use our services for important aspects of their operations, any errors, defects, disruptions in service or other performance problems could hurt our reputation and may damage our customers' operations. Additionally, the inability to recover or restore lost or corrupted digital evidence in a timely manner could result in significant reputational damage. This risk is particularly acute for law enforcement and public safety customers, where service reliability is critical, and disruptions could have serious operational or legal consequences. As a result, customers could elect not to renew our services or to delay or withhold payment to us. Delayed resolution of service outages or technical defects could also lead to prolonged dissatisfaction and erosion of customer trust. We could also lose future sales or customers may make warranty or other claims against us, which could result in an increase in our warranty expense, an increase in collection cycles for and decline in the collectability of accounts receivable or in the convertibility of contract assets to cash, and an increase in the expense and risk of litigation.

Defects in our products could reduce demand for our products or result in product recalls and result in a loss of sales, delay in market acceptance, and damage to our reputation.

Complex components and assemblies used in our products may contain undetected defects that could be subsequently discovered at any point in the life of the product. Errors or defects in our products, including software-related errors or defects, may only be discovered after they have been tested, commercialized and deployed. In such event, we may incur significant additional development costs and product recall, repair or replacement costs, or liability for personal injury or property damage caused by such errors or defects. In particular, defects in products designed for public safety or law enforcement use could undermine customer and community trust, erode confidence in our brand, and result in heightened scrutiny or regulatory enforcement. Our reputation or brand may be damaged as a result of these problems and may result in difficulty retaining current customers and securing new contracts. Defects in our products could result in a loss of sales, delay in market acceptance, damage to our reputation and increased warranty costs, which could adversely affect our business, financial results and competitive position.

Additionally, we are subject to the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Act of 1972, as amended by the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act of 2008, which empowers the Consumer Products Safety Commission to exclude from the market products that are found to be unsafe or hazardous, and similar laws under foreign jurisdictions. We could also face challenges with cross-border compliance if products are recalled in multiple jurisdictions, further increasing operational and financial burdens. Under certain circumstances, the Consumer Products Safety Commission or comparable foreign agencies could require us to repurchase or recall one or more of our products. If we were required to remove, or we voluntarily remove, our products from the market, our reputation could be tarnished, and we might have large quantities of finished products that we could not sell. A recall of critical components may also disrupt manufacturing and delay delivery of other products in our portfolio, compounding the adverse effect on our business.

Our international operations expose us to additional risks that could harm our business prospects, operating results, and financial condition.

We have significant international operations and plan to continue growing internationally by acquiring existing entities and setting up new legal entities in new markets. In certain international markets, we have limited operating experience and may not benefit from first-to-market advantages or otherwise succeed. Our international operations expose us to other risks, including:

- restrictions on foreign ownership and investments, along with stringent foreign exchange controls, could limit our ability to repatriate cash earned in countries outside the United States;
- import and export requirements, tariffs, trade disputes, product certification mandates, sanctions, and customs could hinder our ability to offer products or services in certain countries or obtain necessary parts and components to manufacture products;
- longer payment cycles in certain countries, heightened credit risk, and higher instances of payment fraud;
- uncertainty regarding liability for our products and services, including uncertainty resulting from local laws and lack of legal precedent; and
- differing labor laws and customs, existence of workers' councils and labor unions, and other challenges caused by distance, language, and cultural differences.

Our suite of products is export-controlled under both United States and international regulatory bodies. Changes in U.S. foreign policy, foreign governmental status and evolving international human rights policy objectives may impact Axon's ability to obtain licenses for a given destination or customer.

Trade regulations include, among other categories, environmental regulations, climate- and sustainability-related regulations, tax and statutory financial regulations, export and import controls, customs and duties regulations, internal control and disclosure rules, privacy and data protection requirements, anti-corruption laws, and other local laws prohibiting corrupt payments to governmental officials, and competition regulations.

Violations of these laws and regulations could result in fines and penalties, criminal sanctions against us, our directors, officers, or employees, as well as prohibitions on the conduct of our business and on our ability to offer our products and services in one or more countries. They could also materially adversely affect our brand, international growth efforts, ability to attract and retain employees, business, and operating results. Although we have implemented policies and procedures designed to ensure compliance with these laws and regulations, there can be no assurance that our directors, officers, employees, contractors, or agents will not violate our policies nor that enforcement actions by regulators will be consistent. Furthermore, inconsistent enforcement of local laws and regulations in some jurisdictions may increase compliance uncertainty and risk.

We depend on our ability to attract and retain our key management, sales and technical personnel.

Our success depends upon the continued service of our key management personnel. Although we have entered into employment agreements with our key personnel, including Mr. Smith, these agreements have no specific duration and constitute at-will employment, which means they may terminate their employment with us at any time. Additionally, we do not maintain any key person insurance on any of our officers or employees. Any changes in our senior management team, even in the ordinary course of business, may be disruptive to our business. Such changes may result in a loss of institutional knowledge and cause disruptions to our business. Losing any member of our existing senior management team could also damage key seller relationships, lead to unanticipated replacement, recruitment and training costs, and make it more difficult to operate our business and achieve our business goals. Additionally, if our senior management team fails to work together effectively or execute our plans and strategies on a timely basis as a result of management turnover or otherwise, our business could be harmed.

Our success also depends on our ability to continue to attract, retain and motivate qualified technical employees. Our ability to compete effectively and our future success depends on our continuing to identify, hire, develop, motivate and retain highly skilled personnel. In particular, we compete with many other companies for employees with high levels of expertise in our industry, as well as for skilled engineers (including those with highly sought after experience in fields such as data science or AI), sales, and operations professionals. Job candidates may also be threatened with legal action under agreements with their existing employers if we attempt to hire them, which could impact hiring and result in a diversion of our time and resources. In addition, we are selective in our hiring process which requires significant investment of time and resources from internal stakeholders and management. At times, we have experienced, and we may continue to experience, difficulty in hiring personnel who meet the demands of our selection process and with appropriate qualifications, experience, or expertise, and we may not be able to fill positions as quickly as desired. In addition, our recruiting personnel, methodology, and approach may need to be altered to address a changing candidate pool and profile. We may not be able to identify or implement such changes in a timely manner.

Restrictive U.S. immigration policies and regulatory changes may also affect our ability to hire, mobilize or retain some of our global talent. Many of our technical personnel are foreign nationals entering the United States on work visas, primarily under the H-1B visa classification. The H-1B visa classification enables U.S. employers to hire qualified foreign nationals in positions that require an education at least equal to a bachelor's degree. U.S. immigration laws and regulations are subject to legislative and administrative changes, as well as changes in the application of standards and enforcement. Future restrictions on the availability of work visas could restrain our ability to acquire the skilled professionals needed to meet our customers' requirements, which could have a material adverse effect on our business. The scope and impact of these changes remain unclear, however a narrow interpretation and vigorous enforcement of existing laws and regulations could adversely affect the ability of entities with which we subcontract to utilize foreign nationals and/or renew existing foreign national consultants on assignment. There can be no assurance that we will be able to keep or replace all foreign nationals currently employed, or continue to acquire foreign national talent at the same rates as in the past.

In addition, our compensation arrangements, such as our equity incentives, may not always be successful in attracting new employees and retaining and motivating our existing employees. In particular, we may face challenges in hiring personnel, particularly for executive-level engineering talent, whether as a result of competition with other companies or other factors. We have had and expect to continue to have unique equity incentives designed to attract and retain long-term employees. We utilize these plans to align pay and performance and drive shareholder returns while reducing near-term cash expenditures. Our equity incentives and ongoing stock and option grants are subject to having sufficient shares under our stock plan and any new plans or increases in the number of shares available for grant under existing plans must be approved by our shareholders. If we are unable to obtain shareholder approval, we may be unable to attract and retain top talent, including senior executives. Our ability to attract, retain and motivate employees may also be adversely affected by common stock price volatility. The loss of the service of one or more of our key personnel could adversely impact our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Failure to comply with federal, state, or local regulations applicable to our firearm product, the TASER 10 CED, could result in governmental actions or litigation, potentially harming our business prospects, operating results, and financial condition.

The TASER 10 CED is primarily regulated by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (the "ATF"), which regulates the manufacture, sale and import of firearms in the United States primarily under the National Firearms Act of 1934, the Gun Control Act of 1968, and the Firearms Owners' Protection Act of 1986, which have been amended from time to time.

The ATF conducts periodic audits of our facilities that hold federal firearms licenses. If we fail to comply with ATF rules and regulations, the ATF may limit our activities or growth related to the TASER 10 CED, fine us, or, ultimately, suspend our ability to produce and sell the TASER 10 CED product line. Such audits may also expose operational inefficiencies or create delays that affect production timelines or access to necessary permits. Also, various state and local laws, regulations, and ordinances relating to firearm characteristics, features and sales govern the TASER 10 CED product line. Axon and local distributors must comply with state and local laws, regulations, and ordinances pertaining to firearm and magazine sales in the jurisdictions where the TASER 10 CED is sold. Non-compliance with such laws could expose us to legal liability, reputational harm, and additional costs with remedying violations. Additionally, certain TASER 10 CED components are regulated for import into the United States by the ATF and are subject to ATF import permits that limit Axon's ability to source from some suppliers leading to a potential decrease in supply chain agility. Supply chain constraints or an inability to source TASER 10 CED components could have a material adverse effect on our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Federal and state legislatures frequently consider legislation relating to the regulation of firearms, including the amendment or repeal of existing legislation. Existing laws may also be affected by future judicial rulings and interpretations. These possible changes to existing legislation or the enactment of new legislation may seek to restrict the makeup of a firearm, mandate the use of certain technologies in a firearm, remove existing legal defenses in lawsuits, set minimum age limits to purchase certain firearms, or ban the sale and, in some cases, the ownership of various types of firearms and accessories. In addition, evolving public sentiment or political pressure regarding firearm regulation could impact customer demand for TASER 10 CEDs, especially in jurisdictions with stricter firearm laws. Such restrictions or bans could have a material adverse effect on our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Failure to maintain effective internal control over financial reporting may adversely affect our ability to report our financial condition and operating results in a timely and accurate manner, which may cause investor confidence in our company to diminish and the value of our common stock to decline.

Preparing our consolidated financial statements involves many complex manual and automated processes, which depend on individual data input or review and require significant management judgment. The increasing complexity of our operations, including growth in international markets and expansion of product offerings, further heightens the risk of control deficiencies. Acquired businesses may have insufficient internal controls, which may have been identified or unidentifiable during diligence, that could require significant remediation efforts and create additional risks of financial misstatements during integration. One or more of these processes may result in errors that may not be, and in the past have not been, immediately detected and could result in a material misstatement or other errors in our consolidated financial statements. Such errors may be more likely to occur when implementing new systems and processes, particularly when implementing evolving and complex accounting rules. The Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 requires, among other things, that as a publicly traded company we disclose whether our internal control over financial reporting and disclosure controls and procedures are effective.

A material weakness is a deficiency, or combination of deficiencies, in internal control over financial reporting, such that there is a reasonable possibility that a material misstatement of our annual or interim financial statements will not be prevented or detected on a timely basis. While we continually undertake steps to improve our internal control over financial reporting as our business changes, we may not be successful in making the improvements and changes necessary to be able to identify and remediate control deficiencies or material weaknesses on a timely basis. Our ability to address deficiencies may also be constrained by resource limitations, including access to skilled accounting personnel, particularly during periods of rapid growth or cost pressures. We identified a material weakness in our internal control over financial reporting as of December 31, 2024 related to a failure to design and maintain effective controls related to revenue recognition for our customer contracts. Specifically, we did not design and maintain controls to update our revenue recognition policies to reflect changes in product offerings or terms and conditions of arrangements with customers to ensure revenue was appropriately recognized and disclosed in accordance with U.S. GAAP. We are working to remediate the material weakness as further discussed in Item 9A of this Annual Report on Form 10-K. If we cannot successfully remediate identified control deficiencies, including any current or future material weaknesses in our internal control over financial reporting: the accuracy and timing of our financial reporting may be adversely affected; our liquidity, access to capital markets and perceptions of our creditworthiness may be adversely affected; we could face difficulty forecasting our financial results accurately, impacting decision-making by investors and analysts; we may be unable to maintain compliance with securities laws, stock exchange listing requirements and debt instruments' covenants regarding the timely filing of periodic reports; we may be subject to regulatory investigations and penalties; investors may lose confidence in our financial reporting; we may suffer defaults under our debt instruments; and our common stock price may decline.

Our revision of previously issued consolidated financial statements may adversely affect investor confidence and could result in regulatory actions and stockholder litigation.

The revision of certain of our previously issued financial statements to correct errors related to our historical conclusions of principal vs. agent accounting under Accounting Standards Codification, Revenue from Contracts with Customers ("ASC 606") may have the effect of eroding investor confidence in the Company and our financial reporting and accounting practices and processes and may raise reputational issues for our business. Such revision may also result in stockholder litigation against us, or adverse regulatory consequences. Any such regulatory consequences, litigation, claim or dispute, whether successful or not, could subject us to additional costs, divert the attention of our management, or impair our reputation. Each of these consequences could have a material adverse effect on our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Financial Risks

An increasing percentage of our revenue is derived from subscription billing arrangements that may result in delayed cash collections and may increase customer credit risk on receivables and contract assets.

Our strategy includes maintaining a significant portion of our business through a subscription model, which aligns with the municipal budgeting process of our customers and allows for multiple product offerings to be combined into existing subscriptions. This approach differs from a traditional hardware sale, where the entire hardware payment is commonly invoiced upon shipment, by spreading payments over the subscription or installment period. While this model provides predictable recurring revenue, it impacts liquidity, as cash is received in multiple installments rather than upfront.

We record an estimate of expected credit losses and perform ongoing reviews of trade accounts receivables. However, if we become aware of information related to the creditworthiness of a major customer, or if future actual default rates on receivables in general differ from those currently anticipated, we may have to adjust our expected credit loss reserve. Such adjustments could negatively impact earnings and require additional resources for collections or restructuring customer payment terms. Furthermore, our reliance on municipal and government customers may heighten the risk of delayed payments during periods of political or economic instability, such as government shutdowns or reduced tax revenues. Any of these factors could adversely affect our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Our gross margin depends on many factors, including our product mix, cost structure, and acquisitions we may make, any of which could cause our gross margin to fluctuate.

Our gross margin could decline in future periods due to adverse impacts from various factors, including:

- changes in product mix;
- changes in shipment volume;
- increased warranty costs;
- sales discounts;
- expanding into new markets or lower-margin markets, including those with distinct pricing and cost structures, through acquisitions or internal development;

- higher production costs;

Table of Contents

- increases in materials, labor, manufacturing, or supply chain logistics;
- excess inventory and obsolescence charges;
- increased amortization of purchased intangible assets, especially from acquisitions; and
- how well we execute on our strategy and operating plans.

Any of these factors could result in significant fluctuations in our gross margin. This variability and unpredictability could lead to our inability to meet internal expectations or those of securities analysts or investors for a particular period. Failure to meet or exceed such expectations for these or any other reasons may adversely affect the market price of our stock.

Revenue for our SaaS products is recognized over multi-year contract terms, which may delay the reflection of new business in our operating results.

Our SaaS revenue is generally recognized ratably over the terms of the contracts, which ranges from one to ten years. As a result, most of the SaaS revenue we report each quarter is the result of agreements entered into during previous quarters. Consequently, current trends, whether positive or negative, may not be fully reflected in our revenue results for several periods, and a decline in new or renewed SaaS contracts in any period may not be immediately reflected in our reported financial results for that period, but could result in a decline in our revenue in future reporting periods. If any of our assumptions about revenue from our SaaS delivery model are incorrect, our actual results could differ materially from those anticipated, estimated, or projected.

Most of our end-user customers are subject to budgetary and political constraints, which may delay or prevent sales, result in cancellations, or lead to the non-renewal of contracts.

A significant portion of our end-user customers are government agencies, which typically lack direct control over their budgets. These budgets are often influenced by legislative processes and political considerations, limiting the agencies' ability to allocate funds as they see fit. There can be no assurance that the economic and political pressures will not adversely affect sales of our products.

Additionally, government procurement processes are often subject to scheduling delays and uncertainties, which can disrupt anticipated sales. Federal agencies, in particular, are vulnerable to broader governmental challenges, such as funding and debt limit constraints, which has previously resulted in government shutdowns, including those in 2018 and 2019, and additional shutdowns narrowly avoided more recently.

While we enter into contracts for the delivery of products and services in the future, and anticipate that these contracts will be completed, if agencies fail to appropriate funds in future year budgets, terminate contracts for convenience, or if other cancellation clauses are invoked, this would prevent us from recognizing anticipated revenue and cash flow. Contracts terminated without cause generally allow us to recover only our incurred costs, committed expenses, and a portion of profits, if any, on the work completed prior to termination. We may or may not be able to recover all the costs incurred during the start-up phase of a terminated contract.

The unexpected termination of significant contracts could result in substantial revenue shortfalls. If these shortfalls are not offset by corresponding reductions in expenses, our financial performance and overall business could be adversely affected. We cannot anticipate if, when, or to what extent our customers might terminate their contracts with us.

The open bidding process introduces uncertainty in securing future contract awards.

Governmental agencies often procure products and services through an open bidding process, which typically involves publishing a list of requirements and soliciting proposals from potential vendors. To compete successfully in these requests for proposals, we must accurately estimate our cost structure for servicing a proposed contract, the time required to establish operations for the proposed customer, and the likely terms of any other third-party proposals submitted. However, we cannot guarantee that we will win future bids or that any winning bids will ultimately result in contracts with favorable terms.

Our contracts typically have fixed terms, with the possibility of extension at the discretion of the contracting entity. When these contracts expire, contracts may be reopened to competing bidders, and there is no guarantee that the contracts will be renewed or extended. In some cases, customers may initiate the bidding processes earlier than expected, resulting in increased competition prior to the anticipated end of contracts. Additionally, many of our contracts with government agencies include termination for convenience provisions that may allow our customers to terminate the contract earlier than their term length.

Failure to secure new contracts, retain existing ones, or negotiate favorable terms through the open bidding process could adversely impact our revenues, profitability, and overall financial performance.

We hold the majority of our cash balances, some of which are not insured, at two depository institutions.

We hold the majority of our cash and cash equivalents accounts at two depository institutions. Our balances with these and other institutions regularly exceed Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insurance limits for domestic deposits, as well as various foreign deposit insurance programs. For additional discussion, refer to Note 1 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

If any of these depository institutions were to fail (as seen with several U.S. bank failures in spring of 2023), and their assets were insufficient to cover deposits, or if governments did not take action to support deposits exceeding existing insurance limits, we could incur losses related to the uninsured balances. Such losses or delays in accessing funds could materially and adversely affect our liquidity, operating results and financial condition.

Stock transactions may have a material, unpredictable impact on our operating results and may result in dilution to existing shareholders.

We have historically granted and expect to continue to grant stock-based compensation to employees and non-employee directors as a means of attracting and retaining highly qualified personnel. All stock-based awards are required to be recognized in our financial statements based on their grant date fair values. The amount recognized for stock compensation expense could vary depending on a number of assumptions or changes that may occur.

Changes in the subjective and probability-based assumptions can materially affect the estimates of the fair value of the awards and timing of recognition of stock-based compensation expense and, consequently, the related amount recognized in our consolidated statements of operations and comprehensive income.

As we continue to mature, the incentives to attract, retain and motivate employees provided by our equity awards or by future arrangements may not be as effective as in the past. We may also issue equity securities to pay for acquisitions and grant stock-based awards to retain the employees of acquired companies. If we issue significant equity awards to attract additional employees, to retain our existing employees or related to acquisitions, we could incur substantial additional stock-based compensation expense and the ownership of our existing shareholders would be further diluted, which could depress the market price of our stock.

Our financial performance is subject to risks associated with changes in the value of the U.S. dollar versus local currencies.

For international customers (whether current or potential) whose contracts are or would be denominated in U.S. dollars, the relative change in local currency values creates relative fluctuations in our product pricing. These changes in international end-user costs may result in lost orders and reduce the competitiveness of our products in certain foreign markets. Additionally, intercompany sales to our non-U.S. dollar functional currency international subsidiaries are transacted in U.S. dollars, which could increase our foreign exchange rate risk caused by foreign currency transaction gains and losses.

For non-U.S. dollar denominated sales, weakening of foreign currencies relative to the U.S. dollar generally leads us to raise international pricing, potentially reducing demand for our products. Should we decide not to raise local prices to fully offset the dollar's strengthening, the U.S. dollar value of our foreign currency denominated sales and earnings would be adversely affected. We do not currently engage in hedging activities related to fluctuations in foreign currency. Fluctuations in foreign currency could result in a change in the U.S. dollar value of our foreign denominated assets and liabilities, including accounts receivable. Therefore, the U.S. dollar equivalent collected on a given sale could be less than the amount invoiced causing the sale to be less profitable than contemplated.

We also import selected components that are used in the manufacturing of some of our products. Although our purchase orders are generally in U.S. dollars, weakness in the U.S. dollar could lead to price increases for the components.

Unanticipated changes in our effective tax rate and additional tax liabilities could adversely affect our operating results and financial condition.

We are subject to income taxes in the United States and various other jurisdictions. Our effective tax rate could be impacted by changes in statutory tax rates, the geographic distribution of our earnings, and the application of top-up taxes introduced under global minimum tax regulations of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development ("OECD") framework. Our tax expense could also be impacted by changes in non-deductible expenses, excess tax benefits from stock option exercises and RSU vesting, adjustments to the valuation of deferred tax assets and liabilities, the applicability of withholding taxes, and changes in unrecognized tax benefits. Although we believe that our tax estimates are reasonable, the ultimate tax determination involves significant judgments that could become subject to audit by tax authorities in the ordinary course of business. Our estimates are based on information available to us at the time we prepare the income tax provision.

We are subject to potential tax examinations in multiple jurisdictions. While we regularly evaluate new information to adjust our tax position, there is no guarantee that the outcome of these examinations will not adversely affect our operating results and financial condition.

Our tax provision could also be impacted by changes in U.S. federal, state, local, or international tax laws, including significant tax reforms which target corporate multinationals, and proposals by the current or future administrations.

Additionally, we may be subject to additional tax liabilities due to changes in income-based taxes resulting from changes in U.S. federal, state, local, or foreign tax laws, changes in tax jurisdictions' administrative interpretations, decisions, policies and positions, results of tax examinations, settlements or judicial decisions, changes in accounting principles, changes to our business operations, including acquisitions, as well as the evaluation of new information that results in a change to a tax position taken in a prior period.

Furthermore, recommendations from the OECD for a global minimum income tax and other changes, are being implemented or considered in jurisdictions where we operate. While we believe enactment of the recommended framework in jurisdictions where we operate will result in minimal impacts to our financial results in the near term, the impact of any new tax legislation may differ materially from our estimates due to future regulatory guidance or changes in our interpretations or assumptions we have made. See "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations—Provision for Income Taxes" in Part II, Item 7 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K for additional information.

Our revenue and operating results may fluctuate unexpectedly from quarter-to-quarter, which could impact our stock price.

Several factors, including some beyond our control, may affect our revenue and operating results, potentially causing our common stock price to fluctuate, including:

- budgetary cycles of municipal, state, and federal law enforcement and corrections agencies;
- market acceptance of our products and services;
- the timing of large domestic and international orders;
- the outcome of any existing or future litigation;
- adverse publicity surrounding our products, the safety of our products, or the use of our products;
- changes in our sales mix;
- new product introduction costs;
- increased raw material expenses;
- changes in our operating expenses, including stock-based compensation expense;
- changes in foreign currency exchange rates, inflation, and interest rates;
- inventory obsolescence;
- changes in warranty reserve;

Table of Contents

- existing or future tariffs; and
- regulatory changes that may affect the marketability of our products and services.

As a result of these and other factors, we believe that short-term period-to-period comparisons of our operating results may not provide meaningful insights, and our performance in a particular period may not be indicative of our performance in any future period. Additionally, fluctuations in our revenues and operating results could lead to declines in the market price of our common stock.

Our profitability could suffer from declines in fair value or impairment of our investments, including our strategic investments, and could fluctuate if the fair values of our investments increase.

We invest a portion of available funds in a portfolio consisting of securities of various types. Our investments consist of investments in both marketable and non-marketable securities. Investments in marketable securities are measured at fair value on a recurring basis. We generally have elected to apply the measurement alternative for non-marketable securities. Under the alternative, we measure investments without readily determinable fair values at cost, less impairment, adjusted by observable price changes and we assess for impairment whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount may not be recoverable. Our future investment income may fall short of expectations due to changes in interest rates, or due to certain inherent risks involved in investments in early-stage privately held companies. For example, we have recognized and may in the future recognize an unrealized loss on an investment if we determine that our carrying amount for an investment without a readily determinable fair value is not expected to be fully recovered, which would cause our earnings performance to suffer from such losses. By contrast, we have recorded and may in the future record an unrealized gain on an investment if we determine the fair value exceeds the carrying amount, which would benefit our earnings performance.

Legal and Compliance Risks

We may face personal injury, wrongful death, product liability and other liability claims that harm our reputation and adversely affect our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Third parties often use our CED products in aggressive confrontations that may result in serious, permanent bodily injury or death to those involved. Our CED products may be associated with these injuries. A person, or the family members of a person, injured or killed in a confrontation or otherwise in connection with the use of our products, may bring legal action against us to recover damages on the basis of a number of theories, including wrongful death, personal injury, negligent design, defective product, product performance issues, or inadequate warnings or training. We are currently subject to a number of such lawsuits and have been and may be in the future subject to significant adverse judgments and settlements. We may also be subject to lawsuits involving allegations of criminal misuse of our products. We have no control over how our products are used by our customers or other end-users and cannot ensure they are used consistent with our specifications, design and warnings. While our products are designed to be non-lethal, we cannot guarantee they will be used in a manner consistent with their intended use and any misuse exposes us to litigation, reputational harm and controversy.

Although we maintain product liability insurance in amounts that we believe are reasonable, we may not be able to maintain such insurance on acceptable terms, if at all, and product liability claims could result in a potential award of monetary damages in excess of the amount of insurance coverage available to us. Because we manufacture and sell CEDs, insurance carriers may decide not to insure our products or our company in the future.

Similar to product liability claims, we face exposure to class action lawsuits related to the design, performance, safety, pricing or advertising of our products. Such class action lawsuits could also result in substantial monetary judgments, defense costs, business distraction, reallocation of internal resources, injunctions related to the sale of products and reputational harm.

If successful, the aforementioned claims could result in adverse judgments or unfavorable settlements, significant legal expenses, a diversion of management's attention and resources, and reputational harm. The outcome of any litigation is inherently uncertain and there can be no assurance that our existing or any future litigation will not have a material adverse effect on our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Other litigation, government inquiries and regulatory actions may subject us to significant costs and judgments and divert management attention from our business.

Table of Contents

We have been and could in the future be involved in numerous other litigation, government inquiries and regulatory matters relating to our products, contracts, employees and business relationships, including litigation against persons or entities we believe have infringed on our intellectual property, infringement litigation filed against us, litigation against a competitor, antitrust litigation, and enforcement actions filed against us. For additional discussion of litigation, refer to Note 13 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Such matters have resulted, and are expected to continue to result in, substantial costs to us, including in the form of attorneys' fees and costs, damages, fines or other penalties, whether pursuant to an adverse judgment or settlement, and diversion of our management's attention, which could adversely affect our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

We have in the past and may in the future be subject to intellectual property infringement and other claims, which could incur substantial litigation costs, result in significant damages awards, inhibit our use of certain technologies, and divert management attention from our business.

Many companies own intellectual property rights that are directly or indirectly related to public safety technologies. These companies periodically demand licensing agreements or engage in litigation based on allegations of infringement or other violations of their patents, trademarks, copyrights or trade secrets. These companies may also allege that their patents protect features essential to the implementation of particular technical standards. Non-practicing entities may also hold patents that are directly or indirectly related to public safety technologies. These entities may seek compensation for perceived infringement of their patents, including by filing claims against us, independent of the merit of any such claims. As we enter new markets, expand into new product categories, and otherwise offer new products, services and technologies, additional intellectual property claims may be filed against us by these companies, entities and other third parties. Additionally, our use of AI tools in our business may increase the likelihood that third parties will claim that we infringe their intellectual property rights. Intellectual property claims may also be filed against us as our current products, services and technologies gain additional market share.

If our products, services or technologies were found to infringe a third-party's proprietary rights, we could be forced to discontinue use of the protected technology or enter into costly royalty or licensing agreements to be able to sell our products, services or technologies. Such royalty and licensing agreements may not be available on terms acceptable to us or at all. We could also be required to pay substantial damages, fines or other penalties, indemnify customers or distributors, cease the manufacture, use or sale of infringing products or processes, make proprietary source code publicly available, and/or expend significant resources to develop or acquire non-infringing technologies. Our suppliers may not provide, or we may not be able to obtain, intellectual property indemnification sufficient to offset all damages, fines or other penalties resulting from any claims of intellectual property infringement brought against us or our customers. There is no guarantee that our use of conventional technology searching and brand clearance searching will identify all potential rights holders. Rights holders may demand payment for past infringements and/or force us to accept costly license terms or discontinue use of protected technology and/or works of authorship that may include, for example, photos, videos and software. Our development and sale of software-based products, including that which is related to AI or VR, increases this risk.

If we are unable to protect our intellectual property, the value of our brands and products may decrease and we may lose our competitive market advantage.

Our future success depends upon our proprietary technology. Our protective measures for this proprietary technology include patents, trademarks, copyrights and trade secret protection. However, these protective measures, as well as our efforts to pursue such protective measures, may prove inadequate. For example, the value of intellectual property protection in certain countries may not be apparent until after such protection can no longer be pursued. As such, our intellectual property protection may not extend to all countries in which our products are distributed or will be distributed in the future. Though we work to protect our innovations, we may not be able to obtain protection for certain innovations. For example, we may be unable to patent some software-based products. Furthermore, any use of AI tools to create content or code that may be incorporated into our products or services may also impact our ability to obtain or successfully defend certain intellectual property rights. The scope of any patent protection we have obtained, or may obtain, may not prevent others from developing and selling competing products. Despite our efforts, any intellectual property protection we obtain may be later determined to be insufficient or ineffective.

Our protective measures may prove inadequate for reasons outside of our control. Varying intellectual property laws across countries may lead to differences in protection between such countries. In certain countries in which our products are distributed, the ability to effectively enforce intellectual property rights may not exist. Patent requirements differ by country and certain domestic or international laws may prohibit us from satisfying these requirements, creating a risk that some of our international patents may become unenforceable. Patents for older technologies, such as those first introduced in our TASER M26 CED and TASER X26 CED, have expired or will expire due to statutory limits on patent terms. Despite policies and efforts to maintain secrecy of trade secrets and other confidential information, such information could be compromised by employees, partners or other third parties.

Once established, there is no guarantee that our intellectual property rights will remain in force. Issued patents may be re-examined and subsequently ruled invalid or unenforceable. Our registered trademarks may also be diminished or lost. For example, there is a risk that our "TASER" trademark could become synonymous with the general product category of "conducted energy devices" resulting in claims of genericness that could interfere with our enforcement efforts and create customer confusion as to product source. The right to stop others from misusing our trademarks and service marks in commerce depends, to some extent, on our ability to show evidence of enforcement of our rights against such misuse in commerce. Our efforts to stop improper use, if ineffective, may lead to the loss of trademark and service mark rights, brand loyalty and notoriety among our customers and prospective customers.

Inability to protect our intellectual property could negatively impact our commercial efforts and competitive market advantage. Regardless of the outcome, the prosecution of patent and other intellectual property claims is both costly and time-consuming. Unauthorized use of our proprietary technology could divert our management's attention from our business and could result in a material adverse effect on our business prospects, operating results and financial position.

We may be unable to enforce patent rights internationally, which may limit our ability to prevent our product features from being used by competitors in some foreign jurisdictions.

Our U.S. patents protect us from imported infringing products coming into the United States from abroad. We have filed applications for patents in foreign countries; however, these may be inadequate to protect markets for our products in these foreign countries. Each patent is examined and granted according to the law of the country where it was filed independent of whether a U.S. patent on similar technology was granted. Certain foreign countries have patent working requirements that require a patent owner to practice a patented invention within the respective country. A patent in a foreign country may be subject to cancellation, forfeiture, compulsory license or other penalty if the claimed invention has not been worked in that country. Meeting the requirements of working an invention differs by country and ranges from sales in the country to manufacturing in the country. U.S. export law, or the laws of some foreign countries, may prohibit us from satisfying the requirements for working the invention, creating a risk that some of our international patents may become unenforceable. In a country in which we do not have a patent or a country in which our patent in that country is unenforceable or unenforced, other companies and makers of similar products may be able to copy our products or features of our products without consequence, thus limiting our ability to capture market share or protect our technology, which could materially harm our business prospects and operating results.

The use of open-source software in our products, services and technologies may expose us to additional risks and harm our intellectual property.

Open-source software is typically freely accessible, usable and modifiable. Certain open source software licenses require a user who intends to distribute the open source software as a component of the user's software to disclose publicly part or all of the source code to the user's software or require the user of such software to make any derivative works of the open source code available to others on potentially unfavorable terms or at no cost. The terms of many open-source licenses have not been interpreted by courts, and there is a risk that those licenses could be construed in a manner that imposes unanticipated conditions or restrictions on our ability to commercialize our products, services and technologies. In that event, we could be required to seek licenses from third parties to continue offering our products, to re-develop our products, to discontinue sales of our products or to release our proprietary software code under the terms of an open-source license, any of which could harm our business. Although we aim to avoid any use of open source software in our products, services and technologies, and otherwise only use open source software available under permissive open source licenses, it is possible that other manners of use, including those that a third-party may allege to be in breach of a corresponding open source license, may have inadvertently occurred in deploying our products, services and technologies. If a third-party software provider has incorporated certain types of open-source software into software we license from such third-party for our products, services and technologies without our knowledge, we could be required to disclose the source code to our products, services and technologies. This could harm our intellectual property position as well as our business prospects, operating results and financial condition.

A variety of new and existing laws and/or interpretations could materially and adversely affect our business.

As detailed in "Item I. Business – Government Regulation" in this Annual Report on Form 10-K, we are subject to a variety of laws and regulations in the United States and abroad that involve matters central to our business, including laws and regulations related to: privacy, data protection, security, retention and deletion; rights of publicity; content; intellectual property; regulation of certain of our CEDs as firearms; advertising; marketing; distribution; electronic contracts and other communications; competition; consumer protection; telecommunications; product liability; taxation; labor and employment; sustainability; economic or other trade prohibitions or sanctions; securities; and online payment services. The introduction of new products and expansion of our activities in certain jurisdictions, including through acquisitions, or other actions that we may take may subject us to additional laws, regulations or other government scrutiny. There are several legislative proposals in the United States, at both the federal and state level, that could impose new obligations in areas affecting our business. In addition, foreign privacy, data protection, content, competition, sustainability and other laws and regulations can impose different obligations or be more restrictive than those in the United States.

These U.S. federal and state and foreign laws and regulations, which in some cases can be enforced by private parties in addition to government entities, are constantly evolving and can be subject to significant change. As a result, the application, interpretation, and enforcement of these laws and regulations are often uncertain and may be interpreted and applied inconsistently from country to country and inconsistently with our current policies and practices. New laws and regulations (or new interpretations of existing laws and regulations) could materially and adversely affect our business.

The cost of compliance with these laws and regulations is high and is likely to increase in the future. Additionally, these laws and regulations, or any associated inquiries or investigations or other government actions, have in the past and may in the future delay or impede the development of new products, result in negative publicity, cause customers to delay purchases, require significant management time and attention, cause us to change our business practices, and subject us to remedies that may harm our business, including civil or criminal liability, such as fines, demands or orders that we modify or cease existing business practices. For additional details, refer to "Item I. Business – Government Regulation."

We are subject to evolving corporate governance and public disclosure regulations and expectations, including with respect to ESG matters, that could expose us to numerous risks.

We are subject to changing rules and regulations promulgated by several governmental and self-regulatory organizations, including the SEC, the Nasdaq Stock Market and the Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB"). These rules and regulations continue to evolve in scope and complexity and many new requirements have been created in response to laws enacted by Congress, making compliance more difficult and uncertain. In addition, increasingly regulators, customers, investors, employees and other stakeholders are focusing on ESG matters and related disclosures. These changing rules, regulations and stakeholder expectations have resulted in, and are likely to continue to result in, increased general and administrative expenses and increased management time and attention spent complying with or meeting such regulations and expectations. For example, developing and acting on initiatives within the scope of ESG, and collecting, measuring and reporting ESG-related information and metrics can be costly, difficult and time-consuming and is subject to evolving reporting standards, including the SEC's recently adopted and stayed climate-related reporting requirements, and similar proposals by other domestic or international regulatory bodies. Foreign governments have also enacted legislation to address ESG issues, such as the UK Modern Slavery Act.

Additionally, unfavorable perception regarding our social initiatives, governance practices, diversity initiatives, the perceived or actual impacts of our products and services, environmental policies or other growing concerns of our stakeholders, could adversely affect our reputation. Any negative effect on our reputation could have an adverse effect on the size of our customer base, which could adversely affect our business and financial results. We have been, and may be in the future, subject to informal private or public inquiries and formal proxy proposals by activists urging us to take certain corporate actions related to ESG matters, which may not be aligned with our best interests. These activities may adversely affect our business in a number of ways, since responding to inquiries or proposals can be costly, time-consuming, and disruptive to our operations and could meaningfully divert our resources, including the attention of our management team and our employees.

We may also communicate certain initiatives and goals, regarding environmental matters, diversity, responsible sourcing and social investments and other ESG-related matters, in our SEC filings or in other public disclosures. These initiatives and goals within the scope of ESG could be difficult and expensive to implement, the technologies needed to implement them may not be cost effective and may not advance at a sufficient pace, and we could be criticized for the accuracy, adequacy or completeness of the disclosure. Further, statements about our ESG-related initiatives and goals, and progress against those goals, may be based on standards for measuring progress that are still developing, internal controls and processes that continue to evolve, and assumptions that are subject to change in the future. In addition, we could be criticized for the scope or nature of such initiatives or goals or for any revisions to these goals. Given the dynamic nature of ESG expectations, standards and regulations, which may change over time, we may from time to time need to update or otherwise revise our current practices, initiatives and goals, including in response to legislative or legal developments. If our ESG-related data, processes and reporting are incomplete or inaccurate, or if we fail to achieve progress with respect to our goals within the scope of ESG on a timely basis, or at all, we may be exposed to potential liability or litigation, and our reputation, business, financial performance and growth could be adversely affected.

Our amended and restated bylaws include exclusive forum provisions that could increase costs to bring a claim, discourage claims or limit the ability of our shareholders to bring a claim in a judicial forum viewed by shareholders as more favorable for disputes.

Our amended and restated bylaws provide that, unless we consent in writing to the selection of an alternative forum, the Chancery Court of the State of Delaware will be, to the fullest extent permitted by law, the sole and exclusive forum for (i) any derivative action or proceeding brought on our behalf; (ii) any action asserting a claim of breach of a fiduciary duty owed by any of our directors, officers or shareholders; (iii) any action asserting a claim arising pursuant to any provision of the Delaware General Corporation Law or of our amended and restated certificate of incorporation or our amended and restated bylaws; or (iv) any action asserting a claim against us or any of our directors or officers governed by the internal affairs doctrine. In addition, our amended and restated bylaws also provide that, unless we consent in writing to the selection of an alternative forum, the federal district courts of the United States shall be the exclusive forum for the resolution of any claim arising under the Securities Act. The exclusive forum provision in our amended and restated bylaws does not apply to suits brought to enforce any duty or liability created by the Exchange Act or any other claim for which the federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction.

The choice of forum provision may increase costs to bring a claim, discourage claims or limit a shareholder's ability to bring a claim in a judicial forum that it finds favorable for disputes with Axon or Axon's directors, officers or other employees, which may discourage such lawsuits against Axon or Axon's directors, officers and other employees. Alternatively, if a court were to find the choice of forum provision contained in our amended and restated bylaws to be inapplicable or unenforceable in an action, we may incur additional costs associated with resolving such action in other jurisdictions.

Risks Related to our Convertible Notes

Fulfilling our debt obligations requires significant cash resources, and we may not have sufficient cash flow to pay our debt.

As of December 31, 2024, we had $690.0 million in aggregate principal amount outstanding under our 2027 Notes. Our ability to meet our debt obligations, including making our scheduled payments of the principal and interest payments or refinancing our indebtedness, depends on our future performance, which is subject to economic, financial, competitive, and other factors, many of which are beyond our control. If our business fails to generate sufficient cash flow from operations to meet these obligations and fund capital expenditures, we may be required to adopt one or more alternatives, such as asset sales, debt restructuring, or raising additional equity capital, which could involve unfavorable or dilutive terms. Additionally, our ability to refinance our indebtedness will depend on market conditions and our financial standing at such time, which may not be favorable. Failure to engage in any of these activities on desirable terms could result in a default on our debt obligations.

The conditional conversion feature of the Notes, if triggered, may adversely affect our financial condition and operating results.

If the conditional conversion feature of the Notes is triggered, holders of Notes may choose to convert their Notes during specified periods at their discretion. If one or more holders elect to convert their Notes, we would be required to settle any converted principal amount in cash, which could adversely impact our liquidity. Moreover, even if no holders elect to convert their Notes, applicable accounting rules may require that we reclassify all or a portion of the outstanding principal of the Notes to a current liability. Such reclassification would materially reduce our net working capital, potentially affecting our financial flexibility and stability.

Table of Contents

Conversion of the Notes may dilute the ownership interest of our shareholders or could depress the price of our common stock.

The conversion of some or all of the Notes could dilute our shareholders' ownership interests. Upon conversion, we have the option to pay or deliver cash, shares of our common stock, or a combination of both. If we elect to settle the remainder, if any, of our conversion obligation exceeding the principal amount of the Notes with shares of our common stock or a mix of cash and stock, any sales in the public market of our common stock issuable upon such conversion could adversely affect prevailing market prices of our common stock. Additionally, the existence of the Notes may encourage short selling by market participants because the conversion of the Notes could be used to satisfy short positions, or anticipated conversion of the Notes into shares of our common stock could depress the market price of our common stock.

Changes in the accounting treatment for the Notes could have a material effect on our reported financial results.

As of January 1, 2022, we adopted ASU 2020-06, which affects the accounting treatment of the Notes. Accordingly, we do not bifurcate the liability and equity components of the Notes on our consolidated balance sheet and use the if-converted method of calculating diluted earnings per share ("EPS"). Under this method, diluted EPS will generally be calculated assuming that all the Notes were converted solely into shares of common stock at the beginning of the reporting period, unless the result would be anti-dilutive, which could adversely affect our diluted EPS. Because the principal amount of the Notes upon conversion is required to be paid in cash, and only the excess is permitted to be settled in shares, the application of the if-converted method will produce a similar result as the treasury stock method prior to the adoption of ASU 2020-06. The effect of the treasury stock method is that the shares issuable upon conversion of such Notes are not included in the calculation of diluted EPS except to the extent that the conversion value of such Notes exceeds their principal amount.

In accordance with ASU 2020-06, the Notes are reflected as a liability on our consolidated balance sheets, with the initial carrying amount equal to the principal amount of the Notes, net of issuance costs. The issuance costs have been treated as a debt discount for accounting purposes, which are and will be amortized into interest expense over the term of the Notes. As a result of this amortization, the interest expense that we recognize for the Notes for accounting purposes is greater than the cash interest payments payable on the Notes, thereby resulting in lower reported income.

Future changes made to our accounting standards related to the Notes could have a material effect on our reported financial results.

The 2027 Note Hedge and Warrant transactions may impact the value of the Notes and our common stock.

In connection with the pricing of the Notes, we have entered into 2027 Note Hedge transactions and Warrant Transactions with the option counterparties. The Note Hedge transactions are intended to reduce the potential dilution to our common stock upon any conversion of Notes and offset any cash payments we are required to make in excess of the principal amount of converted Notes. However, the Warrant transactions could have a dilutive effect on our common stock to the extent that the market price per share of our common stock exceeds the strike price of the Warrants.

Additionally, the option counterparties or their affiliates may modify their hedge positions by entering into or unwinding various derivatives tied our common stock, or by buying or selling our common stock or other securities in secondary market transactions following the pricing of the Notes. These activities could occur prior to the maturity of the Notes, or and in connection with any conversion, redemption, or repurchase of the Notes. Such actions could cause fluctuations in the market price of our common stock, either increasing or decreasing its value.

If any of the Note Hedge and Warrant transactions fail to become effective, counterparties or their affiliates may unwind their hedge positions, which could adversely affect the value of our common stock.

The potential effect of these transactions and activities on the market price of our common stock will depend in part on market conditions and other factors beyond our control, and their impact cannot be ascertained at this time. Any of these activities could adversely affect the value of our common stock.

We are exposed to counterparty risk with respect to the 2027 Note Hedge transactions.

Table of Contents

The option counterparties for the 2027 Note Hedge transactions are financial institutions, and we face the risk that any or all of them might default on their obligations under these transactions. Our exposure to this credit risk is unsecure, as the option counterparties have not secured their obligations by any collateral.

If an option counterparty becomes subject to insolvency proceedings, we will become an unsecured creditor in those proceedings with a claim equal to our exposure under the 2027 Note Hedge transactions at that time. Our exposure will depend on many factors, including an increase in the market price and volatility of our common stock.

A default by an option counterparty could lead us to suffer adverse tax consequences and result in greater dilution of our common stock than we currently anticipate. We cannot provide assurances as to the financial stability or solvency of the option counterparties, and any default could materially and adversely affect our financial results and shareholder value.

Cybersecurity Risk Management and Strategy

Our business is highly dependent on our information systems, including our ability to operate them effectively and to successfully implement new technologies, methods and processes, as well as adequate controls and cybersecurity incident recovery plans. We rely on our information systems to manage our business, data, communications, supply chain, ordering, pricing, billing, inventory replenishment, accounting functions and other processes. In addition, we must protect the confidentiality and integrity of the data of our business, employees, customers and other third parties. Our business involves the collection, processing, storage and transmission of personally identifiable information and other sensitive and confidential information. This data is wide ranging and relates to our employees, customers and third parties, including the subjects of law enforcement. Our compliance obligations include those prescribed under the laws and regulations that dictate whether, how and under what circumstances we can receive, process, hold and/or transfer certain data that is critical to our operations, including data shared between countries or regions in which we operate and data shared among our products and services.

As part of our company-wide culture of security, we maintain a formal cybersecurity and information security program that is aligned with the standards set forth by the International Organization for Standardization ("ISO"), the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants in Systems and Organization Controls 2, the Criminal Justice Information Services, the Federal Risk and Authorization Management Program and the National Institute of Standards and Technology. Our Information Security Team maintains the program, which is designed to ensure proper monitoring, prevention, detection, mitigation and remediation of cybersecurity vulnerabilities, including the prompt investigation and management of all reported or discovered security events, including cybersecurity threats and incidents, in our ordinary course of business.

Our cybersecurity and information security programs are designed to comply with key global financial regulations and cybersecurity laws in the jurisdictions in which we operate. The program includes taking several proactive steps to prepare for attempts to compromise our information systems. To provide for the availability of critical data and systems, maintain regulatory compliance, manage our material cybersecurity risks, and protect against, detect and respond to cybersecurity threats and incidents, we undertake the below listed activities:

- closely monitor emerging data protection laws and implement changes to our processes designed to comply;
- undertake regular reviews (at least annually) of our consumer facing and internal policies and statements related to cybersecurity;
- proactively inform our customers of substantive changes related to customer data handling;
- conduct annual information security training for all employees;
- recruit and retain highly skilled cybersecurity professionals, and provide regular training and development opportunities for our cybersecurity and information security employees;
- conduct regular phishing email simulations for all employees and all contractors with access to corporate email systems to enhance awareness and responsiveness to such possible threats;

Table of Contents

- through policy, practice and contract (as applicable), require employees, as well as third parties who provide services on our behalf, to treat customer information and data with care;
- perform due diligence on third-party vendors and, based on our risk assessment, put in place contractual undertakings and oversight to manage and reduce the risks associated with third-party vendors;
- run tabletop exercises to simulate a response to a cybersecurity incident and use the findings to improve our technologies, methods and processes;
- conduct regular risk assessments of our information systems to identify weaknesses, and develop and implement mitigations to improve our cybersecurity and information security program;
- conduct regular security assessments, vulnerability scans, and penetration tests (including by third-party assessment firms) of products systems and internal systems to discover vulnerabilities and apply appropriate mitigations within standardized timelines;
- maintain, implement, evaluate and update our cybersecurity technologies to address threats and vulnerabilities; and
- carry information security risk insurance that provides protection against the potential losses arising from a cybersecurity incident.

Third-Party Monitoring and External Reviews

Axon utilizes the assistance of third-party technology and providers to support our objective of protecting our information, information systems and network. Services provided by third parties to assess the performance of our cybersecurity risk management systems and procedures and to identify cybersecurity risks to the Company include assessing products and internal systems for vulnerabilities, incident response services such as computer forensics, internal and external audits for security certifications globally and overall security program maturity evaluations. Axon and our service providers have also developed systems and processes that are designed to protect our and our customers' data, to prevent data loss, and to prevent or detect cybersecurity threats and incidents.

Material findings, notable weaknesses and suggestions are presented to the Enterprise Risk and Compliance Committee of the Company's Board of Directors (the "ERC Committee") as discussed below.

Cybersecurity Management Team

Our cybersecurity and information security program, which includes data privacy, is the responsibility of our Chief Information Security Officer ("CISO"), who oversees our global information security program. Our current CISO has served in various information technology and information security roles over the past 20 years including roles at Netflix, Salesforce and Facebook, and has served as CISO since February 2024. He also has relevant degrees and certifications, including a Master of Science degree in Information Assurance from Iowa State University. The information security program has been built over the last 10 years under the leadership of experienced Information Security professionals.

Our CISO attends quarterly meetings of our Disclosure Committee and provides input on disclosures in our Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q and Annual Reports on Form 10-K, including the relevant risk factors set forth therein. Our CISO, along with the Information Security Team, also leads our Security Incident Response Team, which is responsible for investigating suspected cybersecurity threats and incidents. In the event of a possibly material cybersecurity incident, the Information Security Team also includes the following executive team members: Corporate General Counsel, Chief Legal Officer, Chief Accounting Officer, Chief Operating Officer & Chief Financial Officer and, to the extent practicable or relevant, other senior executives.

Board of Directors Oversight

As a part of its oversight of the key risks facing Axon, our Board of Directors devotes significant time and attention to data and systems protection, including cybersecurity and information security risk. While the Audit Committee of the Company's Board of Directors (the "Audit Committee") reviews any significant legal, compliance or regulatory matters that may have a material impact on our business, financial statements or compliance policies generally, it does so in consultation with our ERC Committee with respect to any such matters that involve cybersecurity, data privacy or information technology. The Chair of our ERC Committee is also a member of our Audit Committee, which facilitates close coordination between the two committees on cybersecurity, data privacy and information technology matters.

Our ERC Committee oversees our overall approach to enterprise risk management, of which cybersecurity is an important component. The ERC Committee and its Chair, in coordination with the Information Security Team and CISO, regularly review the categories of risk the Company faces, including any cybersecurity risk exposures, as well as the likelihood of occurrence, the potential impact of those risks, and the steps management has taken to monitor, mitigate and control such exposures. To facilitate these reviews, the Information Security Team and CISO report at least quarterly to the ERC Committee with respect to cybersecurity risks, including those identified through review of our business, of rising threats in the industry, and of the current state of our cybersecurity and information security program. The ERC Committee makes regular reports to the full Board of Directors regarding updates on cybersecurity and other risks.

Incident Response and Assessment Policies and Procedures

Axon has implemented our cybersecurity and information security program and cybersecurity incident response plan to protect our and our customers' data from, and mitigate the effects of, unintentional disclosure as well as cybersecurity threats and incidents of all severity levels. Our program and response plan outline actions to be taken after identifying a suspected cybersecurity threat or incident and the people responsible for managing those actions. We have also implemented disclosure controls and procedures for determining the materiality of a cybersecurity incident to outline disclosure and communications responsibilities during cybersecurity incidents of all severity levels.

In the event of a possibly material cyber incident, the Security Incident Response Team, under the direction of the Corporate General Counsel and/or the Chief Legal Officer, would collect and document information relevant to materiality and make a threshold determination as to whether such cybersecurity incident (including those occurring on the information systems of third parties) is potentially material. The Security Incident Response Team would meet with the Chair of the ERC Committee to review the preliminary findings of the Security Incident Response Team, including the possible factors in determining materiality. If the Security Incident Response Team and the Chair of the ERC Committee determine that the cybersecurity incident warrants further review after consideration of such findings and factors, the Audit Committee would be convened for a meeting (to which all members of the ERC Committee would be invited) to review the cybersecurity incident and the findings of the Security Incident Response Team and the Chair of the ERC Committee. The Audit Committee would then make a materiality determination consistent with SEC guidance and by considering relevant quantitative and qualitative factors, informed by any recommendations of the ERC Committee and/or its Chair.

Any materiality assessment that results in a determination that a cybersecurity incident is not material would be reported by the Information Security Team, or appropriate members of management, to the ERC Committee at its next scheduled meeting.

At this time, we have not identified any risks from known cybersecurity threats, including as a result of prior cybersecurity incidents, that have materially affected us, including our operations, business strategy, results of operations or financial conditions. However, we face certain ongoing risks from cybersecurity threats that, if realized, are reasonably likely to materially affect us, including our operations, business strategy, results of operations or financial condition. For additional details, refer to Item 1A in Part I of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Item 2. Properties

Our primary corporate headquarters are spread across five facilities and approximately 400,000 square feet in the Phoenix, Arizona metropolitan area. As of December 31, 2024, we had more than 31 leased locations including Phoenix and Scottsdale, Arizona; East Point and Peachtree, Georgia; Seattle, Washington; Boston, Massachusetts; San Francisco, California; Westerville, Ohio; Washington, D.C,; Melbourne and Sydney, Australia; Brussels, Belgium; Daventry and London, England; Tampere, Finland; Dietzenbach and Kassel, Germany; Delhi, India; Amsterdam, Netherlands; Ho Chi Minh City and Hanoi, Vietnam; Athens, Greece; Madrid, Spain; Rome, Italy; Toronto, Canada; and Odense, Denmark. We also own a parcel of land located in Scottsdale, Arizona.

We believe our existing facilities are well maintained and in good operating condition. We also believe we have adequate manufacturing capacity for our existing product lines. To the extent that we continue to grow and introduce new products in the future, we will need to acquire additional facilities to locate the associated production lines. However, we believe we can acquire or lease such facilities on reasonable terms. We continue to make investments in capital equipment as needed to meet anticipated demand for our products.

The majority of our locations support both of our reportable segments, except for our Vietnam, Finland, and Seattle, Washington locations, which primarily support our Software & Sensors segment.

Item 7. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations

Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations ("MD&A") is designed to provide a reader of our consolidated financial statements with a narrative from the perspective of our management on our financial condition, results of operations, liquidity and certain other factors that may affect our future results. Our MD&A should be read in conjunction with the other sections of this Annual Report on Form 10-K, including "Part I, Item 1A - Risk Factors" and "Part II, Item 8 - Financial Statements and Supplementary Data." The various sections of our MD&A contain a number of forward-looking statements, all of which are based on our current expectations and could be affected by the uncertainties and risk factors described throughout this filing. The tables in the MD&A sections below are derived from exact numbers and may have immaterial rounding differences.

Our MD&A discusses our results of operations for the year ended December 31, 2024 as compared to the year ended December 31, 2023. For a discussion and analysis of the year ended December 31, 2023 as compared to the year ended December 31, 2022, refer to Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations included in Part II, Item 7 of our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2023, filed with the SEC on February 27, 2024.

Overview

Axon is building the public safety operating system of the future by integrating a suite of hardware devices and cloud software solutions that not only revolutionize modern policing but also cater to federal agencies, corrections, justice and enterprise-level security and safety needs. Axon's suite includes cloud-hosted digital evidence management solutions, productivity and real-time operations software, body cameras, in-car cameras, TASER energy devices, robotic security and training solutions. Axon's growing global customer base includes first responders across international, federal, state, and local law enforcement, fire, corrections, and emergency medical services, as well as the justice sector, commercial enterprises, and consumers.

Our revenues for the year ended December 31, 2024 were $2.1 billion, an increase of $521.8 million, or 33.4%, from the comparable period in the prior year. We had income from operations of $58.5 million, compared to $156.9 million for the same period in the prior year. Gross margin dollars increased $285.9 million but decreased as a percentage of revenue to 59.6% from 61.2% compared to the same period in the prior year. The decrease was primarily driven by higher stock-based compensation expense and amortization of acquired intangibles. Excluding the impacts of stock-based compensation expense and intangibles amortization in costs of goods sold, adjusted gross margin increased to 63.2% for the year ended December 31, 2024, compared to 61.8% for the same period in the prior year, primarily due to an increased mix of high-margin Axon Cloud & Services revenue and investments in TASER automation and cost-reduction initiatives. Operating expenses increased $384.2 million, reflecting an increase in salaries, benefits, and stock-based compensation expenses, as well as an increase in professional and consulting expenses related to transaction costs. For the year ended December 31, 2024, we recorded net income of $377.0 million which included net realized and unrealized gains on fair value adjustments of strategic investments of $162.9 million, a net unrealized gain on marketable securities of $120.3 million, and interest income, net of $36.6 million. Net income of $175.8 million for the comparable period in the prior year reflected net unrealized losses of $80.5 million related to impairment and observable price changes for our existing investments and related warrants, interest income, net of $42.1 million, and a net unrealized gain of $38.7 million on marketable securities.

Certain prior period amounts previously reported on our consolidated financial statements have been revised to correct for immaterial errors, as described in Note 1, Note 23 and Note 24 included in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Additionally, in Q1 2025 we approved a plan to realign our business to better reflect our continued growth and expansion of product, software and service offerings. Previously reported within two reportable segments, TASER and Software and Sensors, we will prospectively reorganize our business in a manner that provides increased transparency and distinction between our hardware and software and services components. As a result of the reorganization, effective with the first quarter of fiscal year 2025, our financial results will be reported in two reportable segments, Connected Devices and Software & Services, which our CODM will use to regularly review information, allocate resources and assess performance. Connected Devices will include hardware products, such as CEDs, body cameras, and drones. Software & Services will include products that integrate with our suite of connected devices, such as Axon Evidence, RMS and other cloud services.

Table of Contents

We are currently assessing the impact of this change on our financial reporting and related segment disclosures. We intend to recast prior period segment information to conform to the new reporting structure, as necessary, to ensure consistency and comparability across reporting periods.

(1) TASER segment "Other" includes smaller categories, such as VR hardware, weapons training revenue such as revenue associated with our Master Instructor School, and TASER consumer device sales.

(2) Software and Sensors segment "Other" includes revenue from items including Signal Sidearm, Interview Room, Axon Air, partners' contra-revenue and other sensors and equipment.

Net sales for the TASER segment for the year ended December 31, 2024 increased $205.2 million, or 33.4%, as compared to the prior year, primarily due to an increase of $119.1 million in TASER devices and an increase of $53.5 million in cartridge revenue. The increase is primarily related to continued adoption of our newest device, TASER 10. The increase in revenue from Axon Evidence and cloud services of $19.2 million was driven by an increase in the number of cloud-connected TASER devices in the field and software revenue tied to our VR solution. An increase in TASER devices in the field drove the $5.8 million increase in extended warranties, as most of those devices are sold with extended warranties. The $7.5 million increase in "Other" revenue is primarily driven by increased VR hardware volume.

Net sales for the Software and Sensors segment for the year ended December 31, 2024 increased $316.7 million, or 33.4%, as compared to the prior year, as we continued to add users and associated devices to our network. The increase in the aggregate number of users and growing adoption of our premium add-on features by existing customers drove the majority of the increase in Axon Evidence and cloud services revenue of $242.3 million. Axon Body cameras and accessories revenue increased $63.8 million due to higher unit sales. Partially offsetting the increase was a $17.0 million decrease in Axon Fleet systems revenue reflecting lower unit volumes on more normalized deployment timelines. An increase in cameras and docks in the field drove the $11.0 million increase in extended warranties, as most of those devices are sold with extended warranties. The $16.5 million increase in "Other" revenue was primarily driven by demand for other product offerings within the Software and Sensors segment.

Gross Margin

As a percentage of net sales, gross margin for the TASER segment decreased to 58.6% from 60.6% for the years ended December 31, 2024 and 2023, respectively. The decrease was primarily due to increased stock-based compensation expense. Excluding the impacts of stock-based compensation expense, adjusted gross margin for the TASER segment is 62.9% for the year ended December 31, 2024, compared to 60.9% for the same period in 2023. The increase is primarily due to investments in automation and cost reduction initiatives.

As a percentage of net sales, gross margin for the Software and Sensors segment decreased to 60.2% from 61.6% for the years ended December 31, 2024 and 2023, respectively. Within the Software and Sensors segment, hardware gross margin was 37.7% for the year ended December 31, 2024, compared to 45.8% for the same period in 2023. Excluding the impacts of stock-based compensation expense and amortization of acquired intangible assets, hardware adjusted gross margin decreased to 41.4% for the year ended December 31, 2024, compared to 46.2% for the same period in 2023 primarily due to product mix and inventory reserve charges associated with legacy products. Service gross margin increased to 73.0% for the year ended December 31, 2024 compared to 72.6% for the same period in 2023. Excluding the impacts of stock-based compensation expense and intangibles amortization, service adjusted gross margin increased to 75.8% for the year ended December 31, 2024, compared to 73.6% for the same period in 2023, due to higher software revenue mix.

For the year ended December 31, 2024, we have seen an increase in stock-based compensation expense within our cost of goods sold as a result of RSUs granted in January 2024 that generally vest in five annual installments from March 2024 through March 2028. These RSUs were granted to employees whose compensation was under a specified threshold, including production-line employees. As previously disclosed in Note 15 to our consolidated financial statements included within our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2023, Patrick W. Smith, our Chief Executive Officer, agreed to compensation in a lesser amount than the Compensation Committee of our Board of Directors was otherwise willing to provide so that we could instead provide enhanced compensation opportunities to certain of our other employees.

Stock-based compensation expense increased $132.0 million in comparison to the prior year, which was primarily related to the 2024 Employee XSP and the 2024 CEO Performance Award that were approved by shareholders in the 2024 Annual Meeting of Shareholders and increased headcount.

Other SG&A expenses increased $61.2 million in comparison to the prior year, primarily driven by the following:

- Professional and consulting expenses increased $21.5 million, primarily driven by transaction costs related to business acquisitions and strategic investments for Fusus and Dedrone;
- Travel expenses increased $9.5 million, as a result of increased in-person meetings and lodging costs;
- Office and building expenses increased $7.1 million relating to building rent and property taxes;
- Supplies expenses increased $6.7 million primarily due to an increase in computer licenses.

Other R&D expenses increased $17.6 million, primarily related to increased professional and consulting expenses related to the launch of new products of $6.6 million, and increased internal cloud storage and service costs related to software product development of $3.9 million.

Interest Income, Net

Interest income, net, was as follows (in thousands):

	Year Ended December 31,

Interest income	$ 43,693	$ 49,107
Interest expense	(7,098)	(6,995)
Total interest income, net	$ 36,595	$ 42,112

The decrease in interest income for the year ended December 31, 2024 is primarily related to lower balances of available-for-sale securities during the year. There were no material changes in interest expense for the year ended December 31, 2024 when compared against the prior comparable period.

Other Income (Loss), Net

Other income (loss), net, was as follows (in thousands):

	Year Ended December 31,

Other income (loss), net	$ 286,369	$ (41,901)

In 2024, we recorded a realized gain of $93.9 million related to acquiring the remaining outstanding equity interests of two previously held strategic investments and an unrealized gain of $75.6 million related to an observable price change for an existing strategic investment and related warrants. The increase in unrealized gain on marketable securities for the year ended December 31, 2024 is driven by fair value changes for our existing marketable securities.

Table of Contents

In 2023, we recorded a net unrealized impairment loss of $71.9 million for an existing strategic investment and related warrants and an unrealized loss of $8.6 million related to observable price changes for our existing investments and related warrants.

Provision for Income Taxes

The effective tax rate was 1.2% for the year ended December 31, 2024, compared to (11.9)% for the year ended December 31, 2023. The increase in the effective tax rate is primarily driven by higher pre-tax income, which reduced the relative impact of favorable tax adjustments. The increase in current year rate is primarily driven by a lesser percentage of allowable stock based compensation adjustment in comparison to pre-tax book income. Additionally, the R&D credit was a lesser percentage of pretax income which was offset by the reversal of nontaxable gain on investments.

Provision for income taxes were as follows (dollars in thousands):

	Year Ended December 31,
	2024	2023	Change
Pre-tax income	$ 381,504	$ 157,061	$ 224,443
Provision for (benefit from) income taxes	4,470	(18,722)	23,192

Net Income

We recorded net income of $377.0 million for the year ended December 31, 2024 compared to a net income of $175.8 million in 2023. Net income per basic share was $4.98 and diluted net income per share was $4.80 for 2024, compared to net income per basic share of $2.37 and diluted net income per share of $2.33 for 2023.

Non-GAAP Measures

We utilize certain non-GAAP financial measures such as EBITDA, adjusted EBITDA, and adjusted gross margin as defined below to enhance understanding of our financial results and related measures. Beginning with our first fiscal quarter of 2024, we have added adjusted gross margin to our non-GAAP financial measures. We have adjusted for expenses that we believe are not indicative of our core operating results. To improve comparability, prior periods have been conformed to the current period presentation. We use these non-GAAP financial measures in evaluating our operating performance in comparison to prior periods. We believe that both management and investors benefit from referring to these non-GAAP financial measures in assessing our performance, and when planning and forecasting our future periods. A reconciliation of GAAP to the non-GAAP financial measures is presented below.

- EBITDA (most comparable GAAP measure: Net income) – Earnings before interest expense, investment interest income, income taxes, depreciation and amortization.

- Adjusted EBITDA (most comparable GAAP measure: Net income) – Earnings before interest expense; investment interest income; income taxes; depreciation; amortization; noncash stock-based compensation expense; fair value adjustments related to strategic investments and marketable securities; transaction and integration costs related to strategic investments and acquisitions including adjustments related to the foreign currency impact of acquired intercompany balances that were unsettled as of the reporting date and plan to be settled in the near term; inventory step-up amortization related to acquisitions; certain litigation costs and recoveries related to (1) antitrust cases we consider to be non-recurring and outside of our core operating results and (2) litigation matters for acquired companies that were unresolved at the date of the acquisition; and other unusual, non-recurring pre-tax items that are not considered representative of our underlying operating performance (listed in the tables below).
- Adjusted gross margin (most comparable GAAP measure: Gross margin) – Gross margin before noncash stock-based compensation expense, amortization of acquired intangible assets, and inventory step-up amortization related to acquisitions.

Although these non-GAAP financial measures are not consistent with GAAP, we believe investors will benefit by referring to these non-GAAP financial measures when assessing our operating results, as well as when forecasting and analyzing future periods. However, management recognizes that:

- these non-GAAP financial measures are limited in their usefulness and should be considered only as a supplement to our GAAP financial measures;
- these non-GAAP financial measures should not be considered in isolation from, or as a substitute for, our GAAP financial measures;
- these non-GAAP financial measures should not be considered to be superior to our GAAP financial measures; and
- these non-GAAP financial measures were not prepared in accordance with GAAP and investors should not assume that the non-GAAP financial measures presented in this Annual Report on Form 10-K were prepared under a comprehensive set of rules or principles.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

Summary

	December 31, 2024	December 31, 2023	Dollar Change
Cash and cash equivalents	$ 454,844	$ 598,545	$ (143,701)
Available-for-sale investments	333,235	644,054	(310,819)
Total	$ 788,079	$ 1,242,599	$ (454,520)

Our most significant source of liquidity continues to be funds generated by operating activities and available cash and cash equivalents and short-term investments. As of December 31, 2024, we had $454.8 million of cash and cash equivalents, a decrease of $143.7 million from December 31, 2023. Refer below for further discussions related to the change in cash and cash equivalents. As of December 31, 2024, we had $333.2 million of available-for-sale investments, a decrease of $310.8 million from December 31, 2023 primarily as a result of the natural maturity of short term investments reinvested into cash and cash equivalents until utilized for our acquisition activity in the period.

In addition, our revolving credit facility (the "Credit Agreement') is available for additional working capital needs or investment opportunities. The Credit Agreement provides for a senior unsecured multi-currency revolving credit facility in an aggregate principal amount of up to $200.0 million, $30.0 million of which is available for the issuance of letters of credit. As of December 31, 2024, and 2023, respectively, no amounts were drawn under the Credit Agreement. Under the terms of the line of credit, available borrowings are reduced by outstanding letters of credit. As of December 31, 2024, we had letters of credit outstanding of approximately $7.8 million under the facility and available borrowing of $192.2 million. Refer to Note 12 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K for additional details related to our Credit Agreement and outstanding letters of credit.

We believe we have access to additional financing. However, there is no assurance that such funding will be available on terms acceptable to us, or at all. We believe that our sources of funding will be sufficient to satisfy our currently anticipated cash requirements, including capital expenditures, working capital requirements, potential acquisitions or investments, income and payroll tax payments for net-settled stock awards, and other liquidity requirements through at least the next 12 months. We and our Board of Directors may consider repurchases of our common stock. Further repurchases of our common stock would take place on the open market, would be financed with available cash and are subject to authorization as well as market and business conditions.

Going forward, we expect to continue to be an opportunistic issuer of debt securities and may issue new debt securities from time to time to fund our growth or refinance future debt maturities, among other things. In addition, from time to time, we may acquire our debt securities (including our 2027 Notes) through open market purchases, redemptions, privately negotiated transactions, tender offers, exchange offers or otherwise, upon such terms and at such prices as we may from time to time determine, for cash or other consideration.

Net cash provided by operating activities in 2024 of $408.3 million consisted of $377.0 million in net income, a net add-back of non-cash income statement items totaling $104.0 million and a $72.7 million net change in operating assets and liabilities. Included in the non-cash items were $382.6 million in stock-based compensation expense, $283.2 million in fair value adjustments for the realized and unrealized gains (losses) on our strategic investments and marketable securities, $48.4 million in depreciation and amortization expense and $85.1 million in deferred income taxes. The change in fair value adjustments on strategic investments and marketable securities was primarily driven by the realized gains on the acquisition of two previously held strategic investments, an observable price change for an existing strategic investment and related warrants, and fair value gains for our marketable securities. The change in receivables and contract assets was largely attributable to increased sales in 2024, particularly for sales made under subscription plans. This was partly offset by the change in deferred revenue due to the timing of billing events. The change in inventory and accounts payable was largely due to advanced raw material purchases for Axon Body 4 and TASER 10 CEDs to support future sales. The change in deferred income taxes was primarily driven by R&D capitalization and additional GAAP expense for unvested stock-based compensation, partially offset by non-taxable unrealized net investment gains.

Investing activities

Net cash used in investing activities was $490.6 million for the year ended December 31, 2024 compared to cash provided by investing activities of $12.5 million for the comparable period in the prior year. The net investing cash outflow is driven by $621.8 million related to acquiring two previously held strategic investments, $113.4 million for strategic investments, and $78.8 million for purchases of property and equipment, net of proceeds, partially offset by $1.0 billion of proceeds from calls, maturities and sales of available-for-sale investments, less purchases of $680.0 million. This net cash outflow is primarily driven by greater acquisition and strategic investment activities in the current period, when contrasted with the prior comparable period.

Financing activities

Net cash used in financing activities was $45.4 million for the year ended December 31, 2024, compared to cash provided by financing activities of $41.3 million for the comparable period in the prior year. The net financing cash outflow in the current period is driven by the payment of income and payroll taxes on behalf of employees who net-settled stock awards during the period, whereas the net financing cash inflow in the prior comparable period was primarily driven by net proceeds from our ATM offering and cash received from the exercise of stock options where shares were sold to cover the exercise price, partially offset by the payment of income and payroll taxes on behalf of employees who net-settled stock awards during the period.

Contractual Obligations

The following table outlines our future contractual financial obligations by period in which payment is expected, as of December 31, 2024 (in thousands):

	Total	Short Term	Long Term
Operating lease obligations	$ 69,466	$ 13,791	$ 55,675
Purchase obligations	909,675	504,270	405,405
Principal and interest payable on our convertible senior notes	699,996	3,383	696,613
Total contractual obligations	$ 1,679,137	$ 521,444	$ 1,157,693

Operating lease obligations include operating leases for office space, manufacturing and logistical functions, discussed further within Note 18 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K. We regularly evaluate our real estate needs to identify opportunities to reduce long-term cash requirements where practicable.

Purchase obligations include both open purchase orders and other purchase commitments, discussed further within Note 13 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K. The open purchase orders represent both cancellable and non-cancellable purchase orders with key vendors, which are included in this table due to our strategic relationships with these vendors.

In December 2022, we issued $690.0 million aggregate principal amount of our 2027 Notes (the "Notes") in a private offering, which aggregate principal amount included the exercise in full of the initial purchasers' option to purchase up to an additional $90.0 million principal amount of the Notes. The Notes mature on December 15, 2027 and bear interest at a fixed rate of 0.50% per annum, payable semiannually in arrears on June 15 and December 15 of each year, beginning on June 15, 2023. On or after December 22, 2025, we may redeem for cash all or any portion of the notes in accordance with the optional redemption terms of the convertible debt agreement. For additional details, refer to Note 12 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Obligations related to our uncertain tax positions have been excluded from the table above because of the uncertainty surrounding the timing and final amounts of any settlement. For additional details, refer to Note 14 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Critical Accounting Estimates

We have identified the following accounting estimates as critical to our business operations and the understanding of our results of operations. The preparation of this Annual Report on Form 10-K requires us to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amount of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of our consolidated financial statements, and the reported amounts of revenue and expenses during the reporting period. While we do not believe that a significant change in these estimates is reasonably likely, there can be no assurance that our actual results will not differ from these estimates.

Inventory

Inventories are stated at lower of cost and net realizable value, using a standard cost method which approximates the first-in, first-out method. Additional provisions are made to reduce excess, obsolete or slow-moving inventories to their net realizable value. These provisions are based on our best estimate after considering historical demand, projected future demand, inventory purchase commitments, industry and market trends, and a variety of other factors. Changes in these underlying assumptions can materially affect our provisions and the resulting net realizable value of our inventories. For additional discussion, refer to Note 1 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Revenue Recognition

We derive revenue from two primary sources: (1) the sale of physical products, including CEDs, Axon cameras, Axon Signal-enabled devices, corresponding hardware extended warranties, and related accessories such as Axon docks, cartridges and batteries, among others, and (2) subscriptions to our Axon Evidence digital evidence management SaaS offering (including data storage fees and other ancillary services), which includes varying levels of support. To a lesser extent, we also recognize revenue from training, professional services and other software and SaaS services. We apply the five-step model outlined in ASC 606, as discussed further in Note 1 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

A performance obligation is a promise in a contract to transfer a distinct good or service to the customer, and is the unit of account in ASC 606. For contracts with multiple performance obligations, we allocate the contract transaction price to each performance obligation using our estimate of the standalone selling price ("SSP") of each distinct good or service in the contract. Revenues are recognized upon transfer of control of promised products or services to customers in an amount that reflects the consideration we expect to receive in exchange for those products or services. Revenue is recognized net of allowances for returns. For additional discussion, refer to Note 2 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

We determine the term of our arrangements based on identifying the contract with the customer. In certain of our arrangements, the customer may have termination rights. In these instances, we determine if there is a substantive penalty. For contracts with a substantive penalty, the accounting term will be the legal contract term, inclusive of the periods for which the customer termination rights exist. In these contracts with no substantive penalty, we also consider if the option for our customer to purchase additional goods or services represents an additional performance obligation in the form of a material right.

The timing of revenue recognition may differ from the timing of invoicing to customers. We generally have an unconditional right to consideration when we invoice our customers and record a receivable. We record a contract asset when revenue is recognized prior to invoicing, or a contract liability (deferred revenue) when revenue will be recognized subsequent to invoicing. For additional discussion, refer to Note 1 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Valuation of Goodwill, Intangible and Long-lived Assets

We evaluate whether events and circumstances have occurred that indicate the remaining estimated useful life of long-lived assets and identifiable intangible assets, excluding goodwill and intangible assets with indefinite useful lives, may warrant revision or that the remaining balance of these assets may not be recoverable. Such circumstances could include a change in the product mix, a change in the way products are created, produced or delivered, or a significant change in the way products are branded and marketed. In performing the review for recoverability, we estimate the future undiscounted cash flows expected to result from the use of the assets and their eventual disposition. The amount of the impairment loss, if impairment exists, is calculated based on the excess of the carrying amounts of the assets over their estimated fair values computed using discounted cash flows. As such, the key inputs into this analysis are inherently subject to uncertainty and require significant judgments to be made.

Finite-lived intangible assets and other long-lived assets are amortized over their estimated useful lives. We do not amortize goodwill and intangible assets with indefinite useful lives; rather such assets are tested for impairment at least annually or sooner whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the assets may be impaired. In performing our annual impairment assessments for goodwill and indefinite-lived intangible assets, we consider a variety of factors including (1) events impacting the carrying value or composition of a reporting unit or asset group, respectively, (2) changes in the macroeconomic environment, (3) adverse changes in our financial performance, (4) industry and market conditions, among others. Any significant changes in these underlying assumptions may significantly affect our impairment conclusions and net book value of corresponding assets in our consolidated financial statements. Based on our annual impairment assessments in the fourth quarter of 2024, no goodwill or indefinite-lived intangible asset impairment was indicated. For additional details, refer to Note 1 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Income Taxes

We recognize federal, state and foreign current tax liabilities or assets based on our estimate of taxes payable or refundable in the current fiscal year by tax jurisdiction. We also recognize federal, state and foreign deferred tax assets or liabilities, as appropriate, for our estimate of future tax effects attributable to temporary differences and carry forwards.

Our calculation of current and deferred tax assets and liabilities is based on certain estimates and judgments and involves dealing with uncertainties in the application of complex tax laws. Our estimates of current and deferred tax assets and liabilities may change based, in part, on added certainty or finality to an anticipated outcome, changes in accounting or tax laws domestically and internationally, or changes in other facts or circumstances.

Deferred tax assets are required to be reduced by a valuation allowance if it is more likely than not that some portion or all of the net deferred tax assets will not be realized. In evaluating our ability to recover our deferred income tax assets, we consider all available positive and negative evidence, including our operating results, the future reversals of deferred tax liabilities, forecast of future taxable income and available tax planning strategies that could be implemented to realize the net deferred tax assets. Failure to achieve forecasted taxable income can affect the realization of net deferred tax assets. We exercise significant judgment in determining our provision for income taxes, our deferred income tax assets and liabilities, and our future taxable income for purposes of assessing our ability to utilize any future tax benefit from our deferred income tax assets.

We operate in multiple tax jurisdictions and are subject to audit in these jurisdictions, generally years after our returns are filed. These returns could be subject to material adjustments or differing interpretations of the tax laws. We record uncertain tax positions when it has been determined that it is more-likely-than-not that a tax position will not be sustained upon examination by taxing authorities based on the technical merits of the position. We use the criteria established in the accounting guidance to determine whether an item meets the definition of more-likely-than-not. The Company's policy is to recognize these uncertain tax positions when the more-likely than-not threshold is met, when the statute of limitations has expired or upon settlement. Changes in assessments may result in income tax benefit or additional expense in our consolidated financial statements. For additional details, refer to Note 14 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Stock-Based Compensation

We have historically utilized stock-based compensation for key employees and non-employee directors as a means of attracting and retaining talented personnel. We recognize compensation expense for our stock-based compensation program, which includes grants of service-based restricted stock units ("RSUs"), performance-based restricted stock units ("PSUs"), and performance-based stock options ("stock options").

Vesting of performance stock units is contingent upon the achievement of certain performance criteria including, successful and timely development and market acceptance of future product introductions and ongoing market performance, among others. Compensation expense for performance awards is recognized based on our best estimate of the probability of the performance criteria being satisfied using the most currently available projections, adjusted at each balance sheet date.

Our performance-based restricted stock units include eXponential stock units ("XSUs") granted under the Axon Enterprise, Inc. 2024 Employee eXponential Stock Plan (the "2024 Employee XSP") and the 2024 CEO Performance Award discussed further in Note 1 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report. Stock-based compensation expense associated with the 2024 XSU awards is recognized over the requisite service period, which is considered the longest explicit, implicit or derived service period for each respective tranche. We utilized Monte Carlo simulations to evaluate a range of possible future stock price goals over the term of the awards at each of the respective grant dates, the median of which was used as the basis for the derived service period for each tranche. Furthermore, we measured the grant date fair value of each tranche utilizing a Monte Carlo simulation which considered various assumptions, including expected volatility and an illiquidity discount. This simulation is based on a subjective assessment of our forward-looking financial projections, taking into consideration statistical analysis. There is significant judgment required to determine the requisite service period, grant date fair value, and probability of the performance criteria being satisfied. Changes in the subjective and probability-based assumptions can materially affect the estimates of the fair value of the awards and timing of recognition of stock-based compensation and consequently, the related amount recognized in our consolidated statements of operations and comprehensive income. For additional details, refer to Note 1 and Note 16 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Contingencies and Accrued Litigation Expense

We are subject to the possibility of various loss contingencies arising in the ordinary course of business, including product-related and other litigation. We consider the likelihood of loss or impairment of an asset or the incurrence of a liability, as well as our ability to reasonably estimate the amount of loss in determining loss contingencies. An estimated loss contingency is accrued when it is probable that an asset has been impaired or a liability has been incurred and the amount of loss can be reasonably estimated. We regularly evaluate current information available to us to determine whether such accruals should be adjusted and whether new accruals are required. We do not believe any currently identified claims or litigation will materially affect our financial condition, results of operations or cash flows. However, litigation is subject to inherent uncertainties. If an unfavorable ruling were to occur, it may cause a material adverse impact on the financial condition, results of operations or cash flows for the period in which the ruling occurs, or future periods. For additional details, refer to Note 13 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Strategic Investments

We have strategic investments which include equity and debt investments in a number of non-public technology driven companies. The strategic investments are generally accounted for under the ASC 321 measurement alternative for equity securities without readily determinable fair values, as there are no quoted market prices for the equity investments. Accordingly, the equity investments will be carried at cost less impairment. These investments will be subsequently remeasured to fair value upon observable price changes in an orderly transaction for the identical or similar investments. Additionally, if a qualitative assessment identifies impairment indicators, then the equity investments must be evaluated for impairment and written down to fair value in the event carrying value exceeds fair value. The debt strategic investment and the associated embedded derivatives are accounted for utilizing the fair value option and remeasured through earnings on a periodic basis. For additional details relating to our valuation techniques, refer to Note 1 and Note 8 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Business Combinations

When we acquire a business, we allocate the purchase consideration to the liabilities assumed, intangible assets and other assets acquired based on their estimated respective fair values. The excess of the fair value of purchase consideration over the fair values of these identifiable assets and liabilities is recorded as goodwill. Additionally, in step acquisitions in which we acquire incremental equity interests that provide us control of a business, the previously held equity interest is remeasured to fair value at the date the controlling interest is acquired.

Critical estimates used in valuing certain acquired intangible assets include, but are not limited to, significant assumptions with respect to time and resources required to recreate the assets acquired, actual and forecasted cash flows, long-term growth rates, market royalty rates, and discount rates associated, amongst other factors. The values and estimated useful lives assigned to intangible assets acquired in business combinations impact the amount and timing of future amortization expense. Remeasurement of previously held equity interests to fair value is also dependent on these estimates. Our estimates of fair value are based upon assumptions believed to be reasonable, but which are inherently uncertain and unpredictable and, as a result, actual results may vary. For additional details, refer to Note 21 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Item 7A. Quantitative and Qualitative Disclosures About Market Risk

Interest Rate Risk

We typically invest in a limited number of financial instruments, consisting principally of investments in money market accounts, certificates of deposit, and corporate and municipal bonds with a typical long-term debt rating of "A" or better by any nationally recognized statistical rating organization, denominated in U.S. dollars. All of our cash equivalents and investments are treated as "available-for-sale". To quantify our interest rate risk exposure, we perform a sensitivity analysis based on hypothetical changes in interest rates. Based on investment positions as of December 31, 2024, a hypothetical 100 basis point increase in interest rates across all maturities would result in a $0.7 million decline in the fair market value of the portfolio. Such losses would only be realized if we sold the investments prior to maturity. For additional details, refer to Note 1 in Part II, Item 8 of this Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Additionally, we have access to a $200.0 million line of credit borrowing facility which bears interest at SOFR plus 1.25 to 1.75% per year determined in accordance with a pricing grid based on our net leverage ratio and consolidated interest coverage ratio. Under the terms of the line of credit, available borrowings are reduced by outstanding letters of credit, which totaled $7.8 million at December 31, 2024. At December 31, 2024, there was no amount outstanding under the line of credit, and the available borrowing under the line of credit was $192.2 million. We have not borrowed any funds under the line of credit since its inception; however, should we need to do so in the future, such borrowings could be subject to adverse or favorable changes in the underlying interest rate.

There have been no other material changes in our primary risk exposures or management of risks since the prior year.

Exchange Rate Risk

Our results of operations and cash flows are subject to fluctuations due to changes in foreign currency exchange rates, in each case compared to the U.S. dollar, related to transactions by our foreign subsidiaries. The majority of our sales to international customers are transacted in foreign currencies and therefore are subject to exchange rate fluctuations on these transactions. The cost of our products to our customers increases when the U.S. dollar strengthens against their local currency, and we may have more sales and expenses denominated in foreign currencies in future years which could increase our foreign exchange rate risk. Additionally, intercompany sales to our non-U.S. dollar functional currency international subsidiaries are transacted in U.S. dollars which could increase our foreign exchange rate risk caused by foreign currency transaction gains and losses.

To date, we have not engaged in any currency hedging activities. However, we may enter into foreign currency forward and option contracts with financial institutions to protect against foreign exchange risks associated with certain existing assets and liabilities, certain firmly committed transactions, forecasted future cash flows and net investments in foreign subsidiaries. However, we may choose not to hedge certain foreign exchange exposures for a variety of reasons, including, but not limited to, the prohibitive economic cost of hedging particular exposures. As such, fluctuations in currency exchange rates could harm our business in the future.

There have been no other material changes in our primary risk exposures or management of risks since the prior year.

Note 1 - Organization and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Axon Enterprise, Inc. ("Axon", the "Company", "we" or "us") is a market-leading provider of public safety technology solutions. Our mission is to protect life in service of promoting peace, justice and strong institutions.

The accompanying consolidated financial statements include the accounts of Axon Enterprise, Inc. and our subsidiaries. All intercompany accounts, transactions and profits have been eliminated.

Basis of Presentation and Use of Estimates

The accompanying consolidated financial statements have been prepared in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America ("GAAP"). The preparation of these consolidated financial statements requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the consolidated financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Significant estimates and assumptions in these consolidated financial statements include:

- revenue recognition,
- stock-based compensation,
- business combinations,
- inventory valuation and related reserves,
- valuation of goodwill, intangible and long-lived assets,
- valuation of strategic investments,
- recognition, measurement and valuation of current and deferred income taxes, and
- recognition and measurement of contingencies and accrued litigation expense.

We believe that estimates used in the preparation of these consolidated financial statements are reasonable; however, actual results could differ materially from those estimates.

Revision of Previously Issued Financial Statements

In preparing the condensed consolidated financial statements as of September 30, 2024, we identified errors in our previously issued financial statements related to our historical conclusions of principal vs. agent accounting of certain reseller arrangements under ASC 606. The identified errors impacted our previously issued 2021 and 2022 annual financial statements, 2023 quarterly and annual financial statements, and 2024 quarterly financial statements through June 30, 2024. We have made adjustments to correct the prior period amounts presented in these financial statements accordingly. Furthermore, we have made adjustments to correct for other previously identified immaterial errors.

We assessed the materiality of the errors on prior period consolidated financial statements in accordance with SEC Staff Accounting Bulletin No. 99, "Materiality," codified in ASC 250, Accounting Changes and Error Corrections. Based on this assessment, we concluded that the error correction is not material to any previously issued interim or annual financial statements on either a quantitative or qualitative basis. A summary of the revisions to the previously reported financial information is included in Note 23 and Note 24.

Out of Period Adjustment

During the 2024 year-end close process, we identified immaterial errors in our previously issued financial statements related to accounting for certain contract terms and conditions in accordance with ASC 606. We assessed the materiality of the errors in combination with the errors described above on prior period consolidated financial statements in accordance with SEC Staff Accounting Bulletin No. 99, "Materiality," codified in ASC Topic 250, Accounting Changes and Error Corrections and concluded that the errors are not material, individually and in the aggregate, to any previously issued financial statements and that the correction of this misstatement in 2024 was also not material to the current fiscal year on either a quantitative or qualitative basis. We corrected these errors as an out of period adjustment during the year ended December 31, 2024 with a decrease to revenue of $3.3 million and a decrease to net income of $2.3 million. These errors originated in prior years and were immaterial to each respective prior period.

Concentration of Credit Risk

Financial instruments that potentially subject us to concentrations of credit risk consist of accounts and notes receivable, contract assets and cash. Historically, we have experienced an immaterial level of write-offs related to uncollectible accounts.

We hold the majority of our cash and cash equivalents accounts at two depository institutions. As of December 31, 2024, the aggregate balances in such accounts were $376.8 million. Our balances with these two institutions regularly exceed Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insured limits for domestic deposits and various deposit insurance programs in countries such as Australia, Belgium, Canada, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, India, Italy, the Netherlands, Spain, the United Kingdom and Vietnam. To manage the related credit exposure, management continually monitors the creditworthiness of the financial institutions where we have deposits.

Major Customers and Suppliers

No customer represented more than 10% of total net sales for the years ended December 31, 2024, 2023 or 2022. At December 31, 2024 and 2023, no customer represented more than 10% of the aggregate balance of accounts and notes receivable and contract assets. For additional details, refer to Note 2.

We currently purchase both off-the-shelf and custom components, including finished circuit boards, injection-molded plastic components, small machined parts, custom cartridge components, electronic components and sub-assemblies from suppliers located in the United States, Taiwan, Mexico, China, Vietnam, Thailand and the Republic of Korea. We may source from other countries as well. Although we currently obtain components from single source suppliers, we own substantially all injection-molded component tooling, designs and test fixtures used in production for all custom components. As a result, we believe we could obtain alternative suppliers in most cases. We acquire most of our components on a purchase order basis and do not currently have significant long-term purchase contracts with most component suppliers.

Segment Information

Our operations comprise two reportable segments: the development, manufacture and sale of fully integrated hardware and cloud-based software solutions that enable law enforcement to capture, securely store, manage, share and analyze video and other digital evidence (collectively, the 'Software and Sensors" segment); and the manufacture and sale of CEDs, batteries, accessories, extended warranties and other products and services (collectively, the "TASER" segment). In both segments, we report sales of products and services. Service revenue in both segments includes sales related to Axon Evidence. In the Software and Sensors segment, service revenue also includes other recurring cloud-hosted software revenue and related professional services. Collectively, this revenue is sometimes referred to as "Axon Cloud revenue."

Reportable segments are determined based on discrete financial information provided to our Chief Executive Officer who is our chief operating decision maker ("CODM"). In deciding how to allocate resources and assess performance, the CODM reviews adjusted gross margin by operating segment, consolidated financials and revenue by major geography, and product and service lines. Specifically, the CODM reviews adjusted gross margin by segment to evaluate segment profitability, identify cost trends and make operational decisions to support our segments. Consolidated financials provide a holistic view of our overall financial health to guide capital allocation and entity wide decisions. Disaggregated views of revenue by major geography and product line support the evaluation of specific market and product performance to understand customer trends. There are no operating segments that are aggregated. Furthermore, there are no inter-segment sales. Assets and other expense items, such as research and development and selling, general, and administrative expenses, are not provided to the CODM by segment, as our CODM does not evaluate our operating segments using this discrete information. As such, these items are not relevant to adjusted gross margin leveraged by the CODM to assess segment performance. As a result, they are not disclosed by segment. We perform an analysis of our reportable segments at least annually. The vast majority of our long-lived assets, including property, plant and equipment and right-of-use lease assets are located within the United States. International long-lived assets are immaterial. Additionally, the majority of our revenues are generated within the United States.

During the year ended December 31, 2024, the segment measure of profit and loss used by the CODM was changed from gross margin to adjusted gross margin, defined as gross margin before stock-based compensation expense, amortization of acquired intangible assets and inventory step-up amortization related to acquisitions. Each of the aforementioned components of our segment measure of profit and loss, adjusted gross margin, are included within other segment items. This change in segment measure allows the CODM to better assess operating results over time and is consistent with how the CODM evaluates our businesses. Accordingly, we have updated our segment disclosure for the years ended December 31, 2023 and 2022 to conform to the new presentation. For additional details, refer to Note 20.

Geographic Information

The majority of our sales to international customers are transacted in foreign currencies and are attributed to each country based on the shipping address of the distributor or customer. For the years ended December 31, 2024, 2023 and 2022, no individual country outside the United States represented more than 10% of net sales. Substantially all of our assets are located in the United States. For additional details, refer to Note 2.

Cash, Cash Equivalents and Investments

We have cash, cash equivalents and investments, which at December 31, 2024 comprised cash, money market funds, commercial paper, corporate bonds, term deposits, U.S. government bonds, U.S. Treasury bills, and agency bonds. Cash equivalents and investments at December 31, 2023 also included U.S. Treasury inflation-protected securities. We place our cash and cash equivalents with high quality financial institutions. Although we deposit our cash with multiple financial institutions, our deposits regularly exceed federally insured limits. Cash and cash equivalents include funds on-hand and highly liquid investments purchased with initial maturity of three months or less. Short-term investments include securities with an expected maturity date within one year of the balance sheet date that do not meet the definition of a cash equivalent, and long-term investments are securities with an expected maturity date greater than one year and less than three years in accordance with our investment policy.

We report available-for-sale investments at fair value as of each balance sheet date and record any unrealized gains or losses within accumulated other comprehensive loss as a component of stockholders' equity. The cost of securities sold is determined on a specific identification basis, and realized gains and losses are included in other income (loss), net within the consolidated statements of operations. Income tax effects are released from accumulated other comprehensive loss for unrealized gains or losses when the gains or losses are realized and are taxed at the statutory rate based on jurisdiction of the underlying transaction. When the fair value is below the amortized cost of an available-for-sale investment, an estimate of expected credit losses is made. Credit losses are recognized through the use of an allowance for credit losses account in the consolidated balance sheets and subsequent improvements in expected credit losses are recognized as a reversal of an amount in the allowance account. If we have the intent to sell the security or it is more likely than not that we will be required to sell the security prior to recovery of its amortized cost basis, then the allowance for the credit loss is written-off and the excess of the amortized cost basis of the asset over its fair value is recorded in the consolidated statements of operations. We do not intend to sell the investments and it is not more likely than not that we will be required to sell the investments before recovery of their amortized cost bases. There were no credit losses recorded on our investment portfolio during the years ended December 31, 2024, 2023, and 2022.

Restricted Cash

Restricted cash balances were $11.9 million and $2.1 million as of December 31, 2024 and 2023, respectively. This increase is primarily attributable to a payment held in escrow related to the potential construction of our headquarters building in Scottsdale, Arizona. Restricted cash also includes funds held in international bank accounts for various operating and financing activities. As of December 31, 2024, approximately $11.8 million was included in prepaid expenses and other current assets on our consolidated balance sheet, with the remainder in other long-term assets.

Inventory

Inventories are stated at the lower of cost or net realizable value, using a standard cost method which approximates the first-in, first-out method. Additional provisions are made to reduce excess, obsolete or slow-moving inventories to their net realizable value. These provisions are based on our best estimate after considering historical demand, projected future demand, inventory purchase commitments, industry and market trends and conditions among other factors. We evaluate inventory costs for abnormal costs due to excess production capacity and treat such costs as period costs. Raw materials include an immaterial amount of work-in-process inventory.

Property and Equipment

Property and equipment are stated at cost, net of accumulated depreciation and amortization. Additions and improvements are capitalized, while ordinary maintenance and repair expenditures are charged to expense as incurred. Depreciation is calculated using the straight-line method over the estimated economic life.

Software Development Costs

We expense software development costs, including costs to develop software products or the software component of products and services to be marketed to external users, before technological feasibility of such products is reached.

Software development costs also include costs to develop software programs to be used solely to meet our internal needs and applications. We capitalize development costs related to these software applications once the preliminary project stage is complete and it is probable that the project will be completed and the software will be used to perform the intended function. Additionally, we capitalize qualifying costs incurred for upgrades and enhancements to existing software that result in additional functionality. Costs related to preliminary project planning activities, post-implementation activities, maintenance and minor modifications are expensed as incurred. Internal-use software development costs are amortized on a straight-line basis over the estimated useful life of the software.

We evaluate the useful lives of these assets on an annual basis and test for impairment whenever events or changes in circumstances occur that could impact the recoverability of these assets.

Leases

We determine if a contract contains a lease at inception. At commencement, lease contracts are evaluated for classification as an operating or finance lease. Operating lease right-of-use ("ROU") assets and liabilities are recognized based on the present value of future minimum lease payments over the lease term at the commencement date. As most of our leases do not provide an implicit rate, we use our estimated incremental borrowing rate based on the information available at the commencement date in determining the present value of future payments. Additionally, we use the portfolio approach in determining the discount rate used to present value lease payments. We give consideration to our 2027 Notes, line of credit, macroeconomic factors, as well as publicly available data for instruments with similar characteristics when estimating our incremental borrowing rates. The operating lease ROU asset also includes any lease payments made and initial direct costs incurred and excludes lease incentives.

We have operating leases for office space, manufacturing and logistical functions. Leases with an initial term of 12 months or less are not recorded on the balance sheet; we recognize lease expense for these leases on a straight-line basis over the lease term. We do not have any material variable lease costs associated with our operating leases. For leases beginning on or after January 1, 2019, we account for lease components separately from non-lease components for all asset classes.

Our operating leases have remaining terms of less than one to approximately 12 years, some of which include one or more options to renew for up to five years, and some of which include options to terminate the leases within one year. The exercise of lease renewal options is at our sole discretion and such options are included in ROU assets and liabilities for renewal periods that are reasonably certain of exercise. Certain of these lease agreements include stated rental payment escalations. Our lease agreements do not contain any material residual value guarantees or material restrictive covenants.

We may enter into sales-type finance leases as an alternative means to realize value for our body cameras and related accessories. For sales-type finance leases where we are the lessor, we recognize our selling profit on a gross basis at lease commencement within net sales from products and cost of product sales, respectively. Interest income is recognized over the lease term within interest income, net. The current and long-term portions of our investment in sales-type leases are included in prepaid expenses and other current assets and other long-term assets, respectively. Given the immateriality of our finance lease activity as of December 31, 2024, no further disclosure considerations related to finance leases are necessary.

Valuation of Goodwill, Intangible and Long-lived Assets

We evaluate whether events and circumstances have occurred that indicate the remaining estimated useful life of long-lived assets and identifiable intangible assets, excluding goodwill and intangible assets with indefinite useful lives, may warrant revision or that the remaining balance of these assets may not be recoverable. Such events and circumstances could include a change in the product mix, a change in the way products are created, produced or delivered, or a significant change in the way products are branded and marketed. In performing the review for recoverability, we estimate the future undiscounted cash flows expected to result from the use of the assets and their eventual disposition. The amount of impairment loss, if impairment exists, is calculated based on the excess of the carrying amounts of the assets over their estimated fair values computed using discounted cash flows.

Finite-lived intangible assets and other long-lived assets are amortized using the straight-line method over the estimated useful life. We do not amortize goodwill and intangible assets with indefinite useful lives; rather such assets are tested for impairment at least annually or sooner whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the assets may be impaired. We test goodwill and intangible assets for impairment on an annual basis on December 31, 2024 and on an interim basis when certain events and circumstances exist.

During the years ended December 31, 2024 and December 31, 2023, long-lived asset impairment charges were immaterial. During the year ended December 31, 2022, we recorded $5.3 million of impairment charges, the majority of which were related to the cease-use of a portion of our Seattle office.

No impairment charges were recognized related to goodwill or intangible assets during the years ended December 31, 2024, 2023, and 2022.

Customer Deposits

We require deposits in advance of shipment for certain customer sales orders. Additionally, customers may elect to make deposits with us related to contracts for our products and services that were not executed as of the end of a reporting period. Customer deposits are included in other current liabilities in the consolidated balance sheets.

Revenue Recognition, Receivables, Contract Assets, and Deferred Revenue

We derive revenue from two primary sources: (1) the sale of physical products, including CEDs, Axon cameras, Axon Signal-enabled devices, corresponding hardware extended warranties, and related accessories such as Axon docks, cartridges and batteries, among others, and (2) subscriptions to our Axon Evidence digital evidence management SaaS offering (including data storage fees and other ancillary services), which includes varying levels of support. To a lesser extent, we also recognize revenue from training, professional services and other software and SaaS services. We apply the five-step model outlined in ASC 606. For additional discussion, refer to Note 2.

We enter into contracts that can include various combinations of products and services, each of which is generally distinct and accounted for as a separate performance obligation. A performance obligation is a promise in a contract to transfer a distinct good or service to the customer, and is the unit of account in ASC 606. For contracts with multiple performance obligations, we allocate the contract transaction price to each performance obligation using our estimate of the standalone selling price ("SSP") of each distinct good or service in the contract. Revenues are recognized upon transfer of control of promised products or services to customers in an amount that reflects the consideration we expect to receive in exchange for those products or services. Performance obligations to deliver products, including CEDs, Axon cameras and related accessories, such as docks, cartridges and batteries, are generally satisfied at the point in time we ship the product, as this is when the customer obtains control of the asset under our standard terms and conditions. In certain contracts with non-standard terms and conditions, these performance obligations may not be satisfied until delivery or formal customer acceptance occurs. Performance obligations to fulfill service-type extended warranties and provide our SaaS offerings, including Axon Evidence and other cloud services, are generally satisfied over time as the customer receives and consumes the benefits of these services over the stated service period.

We determine the term of our arrangements based on identifying the contract with the customer. In certain of our arrangements, the customer may have termination rights. In these instances, we determine if there is a substantive penalty. For contracts with a substantive penalty, the accounting term will be the legal contract term, inclusive of the periods for which the customer termination rights exist. In these contracts with no substantive penalty, we also consider if the option for our customer to purchase additional goods or services represents an additional performance obligation in the form of a material right.

While our products and services may be sold on a standalone basis, we generally combine our hardware products and services together and sell them to our customers in single transactions where the customer can make payments over a multi-year period. These sales may include payments for upfront hardware and services, as well as payments for hardware and services to be provided at a future date. Additionally, we offer customers the ability to purchase CED cartridges and certain services on an unlimited basis over the contractual term. Due to the nature of these arrangements whereby we are obligated to deliver products at the customer's request, we account for these arrangements as stand-ready obligations, and recognize revenue ratably over the contract period. Cost of product sales is recognized when control of hardware products or accessories has transferred to the customer.

We recognize shipping costs as an expense in cost of product sales when the control of hardware products or accessories has transferred to the customer. Sales tax collected on sales is netted against government remittances and, thus, recorded on a net basis. Payment terms and conditions vary by contract type and geography, but our standard terms are that payments are due within 30 days from the date of invoice.

The timing of revenue recognition may differ from the timing of invoicing to customers. We generally have an unconditional right to consideration when we invoice our customers and record a receivable. We record a contract asset when revenue is recognized prior to invoicing, or a contract liability (deferred revenue) when revenue will be recognized subsequent to invoicing. Contract asset amounts that will be invoiced during the subsequent 12-month period from the balance sheet date are classified as current assets and the remaining portion is recorded within other long-term assets on our consolidated balance sheets. Deferred revenue that is expected to be recognized during the subsequent 12-month period from the balance sheet date is recorded as current deferred revenue and the remaining portion is recorded as long-term deferred revenue. Generally, customers are billed in annual installments.

Contract assets generally result from our subscription programs where we satisfy a hardware performance obligation upon shipment to the customer, and the right to the portion of the transaction price allocated to that hardware performance obligation is conditional on our future performance of a SaaS service obligation under the contract. We recognize a portion of the amount allocated to hardware products shipped to the customer as accounts receivable when invoiced to the customer, and record the remaining allocated value as a contract asset as we have generally fulfilled our hardware performance obligation upon shipment. Unbilled accounts receivable expected to be invoiced and collected within 12 months were $5.6 million as of December 31, 2024, and were included in accounts and notes receivable, net on our consolidated balance sheet.

Contract liabilities generally consist of deferred revenue on our subscription programs where we generally invoice customers at the beginning of each annual contract period and record a receivable at the time of invoicing when there is an unconditional right to consideration. Deferred revenue is composed mainly of unearned revenue related to our Axon Evidence SaaS platform, secure cloud-based storage, service-type extended warranties, stand-ready obligations in our cartridge programs, and rights to future CED, Axon camera and related accessories hardware in our subscription programs. For additional discussion, refer to Note 2.

Reserve for Expected Credit Losses

Sales are typically made on credit, and we generally do not require collateral. We are exposed to credit losses primarily through sales of products and services. Our expected loss allowance methodology for accounts receivable, contract assets, notes receivable and off-balance-sheet exposures is developed using historical collection experience, published or estimated credit default rates for entities that represent our customer base, current and future economic and market conditions and a review of the current status of customers' trade accounts receivables. We review receivables for U.S. and international customers separately to better reflect different published credit default rates and economic and market conditions. Additionally, specific reserve amounts are established to record the appropriate provision for customers that have a higher probability of default. Our monitoring activities include account reconciliation, dispute resolution, payment confirmation, consideration of customers' financial condition and macroeconomic conditions. Balances are written off when determined to be uncollectible. Accounts and notes receivable, contract assets and off-balance-sheet exposures are presented net of a reserve for expected credit losses, which totaled $5.6 million and $4.0 million as of December 31, 2024 and 2023, respectively. This reserve represents our best estimate and application of judgment considering a number of factors, including those listed above. In the event that actual uncollectible amounts differ from our estimates, additional expense could be necessary. For additional discussion, refer to Note 4.

Deferred Commissions

We recognize an asset for the incremental costs of obtaining a contract with a customer, which consist primarily of sales commissions. These costs are ascribed to or allocated to the underlying performance obligations in the contract and amortized consistent with the expected recognition timing of the revenue for the underlying performance obligations.

For contract costs related to performance obligations with an amortization period of one year or less, we apply the practical expedient to expense these sales commissions when incurred. These costs are recognized as incurred within SG&A expenses in the consolidated statements of operations and comprehensive income. For additional discussion, refer to Note 2.

Cost of Product and Service Sales

Cost of product sales represents manufacturing costs consisting of materials, labor and overhead related to finished goods and components. Shipping costs incurred related to product delivery are also included in cost of products sold. Cost of service sales includes third-party cloud services, software maintenance and support costs – including personnel costs, associated with supporting Evidence.com and other software related services.

Advertising Costs

We expense advertising costs in the period in which they are incurred. We incurred advertising costs of $4.4 million, $1.9 million and $2.3 million in the years ended December 31, 2024, 2023 and 2022, respectively. Advertising costs are included within SG&A expenses in the consolidated statements of operations.

Warranty Reserves

We warranty our CEDs, Axon cameras and certain related accessories from manufacturing defects on a limited basis for a period of one year after purchase and, thereafter, will replace any defective unit for a fee. We estimate and record a liability for standard warranty at the time products are sold. The estimates are based on historical experience and reflect our best estimates of costs to be incurred over the warranty period. Adjustments may be required when actual or projected costs differ. Variations in component failure rates, repair costs and the point of failure within the product life cycle are key drivers that impact our periodic re-assessment of the warranty liability.

Revenue related to separately priced extended warranties is initially recorded as deferred revenue at its allocated amount and subsequently recognized as net sales on a straight-line basis over the warranty service period. Costs related to extended warranties are charged to cost of product sales when the costs become probable and can be reasonably estimated.

Changes in our estimated warranty reserve were as follows (in thousands):

Balance, beginning of period	$ 7,374	$ 811	$ 2,822
Utilization of reserve	(5,992)	(1,499)	(2,209)
Adjustment to reserve due to business combinations	1,311	—	—
Warranty expense	5,591	8,062	198
Balance, end of period	$ 8,284	$ 7,374	$ 811

Research and Development Expenses

We expense as incurred R&D costs that do not meet the qualifications to be capitalized. R&D costs include payroll costs and stock-based compensation for the personnel involved in R&D functions, as well as indirect manufacturing costs and supplies, consulting services and internal infrastructure costs incurred in connection with product research and development. We incurred R&D expense of $441.6 million, $303.7 million and $233.8 million in 2024, 2023 and 2022, respectively.

Income Taxes

Income taxes are accounted for under the asset and liability method. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized for the future tax consequences attributable to differences between the financial statement amounts of assets and liabilities and their respective tax bases, and for operating loss and tax credit carryforwards. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are measured using enacted tax rates expected to apply to taxable income in future years in which those temporary differences are expected to be recovered or settled. The effect on deferred tax assets and liabilities of a change in tax rate is recognized in income in the period that includes the enactment date. Deferred tax assets are reduced through the establishment of a valuation allowance if, based upon available evidence, it is determined that it is more likely than not that the deferred tax assets will not be realized. We use factors to assess the likelihood of realization of deferred tax assets such as the forecast of future taxable income and available tax planning that could be implemented to realize the deferred tax assets.

We recognize the tax benefit from an uncertain tax position only if it is more likely than not that the tax position will be sustained on examination by the taxing authorities, based on the technical merits of the position. The tax benefits recognized in the consolidated financial statements from such a position are measured based on the largest benefit that has a greater than 50% likelihood of being realized upon ultimate resolution. We also assess whether uncertain tax positions, as filed, could result in the recognition of a liability for possible interest and penalties. Our policy is to include interest and penalties related to unrecognized tax benefits as a component of income tax expense. For additional details, refer to Note 14.

Fair Value Measurements and Financial Instruments

We use the fair value framework that prioritizes the inputs to valuation techniques for measuring financial assets and liabilities measured on a recurring basis and for non-financial assets and liabilities when these items are re-measured. Fair value is considered to be the exchange price in an orderly transaction between market participants, to sell an asset or transfer a liability at the measurement date. The hierarchy below lists three levels of fair value based on the extent to which inputs used in measuring fair value are observable in the market. We categorize each of our fair value measurements in one of these three levels based on the lowest level input that is significant to the fair value measurement in its entirety. These levels are:

- Level 1 – Valuation techniques in which all significant inputs are unadjusted quoted prices from active markets for assets or liabilities that are identical to the assets or liabilities being measured.
- Level 2 – Valuation techniques in which significant inputs include quoted prices from active markets for assets or liabilities that are similar to the assets or liabilities being measured and/or quoted prices from markets that are not active for assets or liabilities that are identical or similar to the assets or liabilities being measured. Also, model-derived valuations in which all significant inputs and significant value drivers are observable in active markets are Level 2 valuation techniques.
- Level 3 – Valuation techniques in which one or more significant inputs or significant value drivers are unobservable. Unobservable inputs are valuation technique inputs that reflect our own assumptions about inputs that market participants would use in pricing an asset or liability.

We have cash equivalents and investments, which at December 31, 2024 comprised money market funds, commercial paper, corporate bonds, term deposits, U.S. government bonds, U.S. Treasury bills, and agency bonds. For additional details regarding our cash equivalents and investments, refer to Note 3. Debt investments are classified as available-for-sale and realized gains and losses are recorded using the specific identification method. We have corporate-owned life insurance policies, included in the balance of other long-term assets, which are used to fund our deferred compensation plan. The balances of these policies as of December 31, 2024 and 2023 were $8.4 million and $7.6 million, respectively. We determine the fair values of our insurance contracts by obtaining the cash surrender value of the contracts from the issuer, a Level 2 valuation technique.

We have an investment in marketable securities, for which changes in fair value are recorded in the consolidated statements of operations as unrealized gain (or loss) on marketable securities, which is included in other income (loss), net.

We have strategic equity investments in various privately held companies as of December 31, 2024 and 2023. The estimated fair value of the investments was determined based on Level 3 inputs. In determining the estimated fair value of our strategic investments in privately held companies, we utilize observable data available to us as discussed further in Note 8.

Table of Contents

The fair value of our 0.50% convertible senior notes due 2027 (the "Notes" or "2027 Notes") is determined based on the closing trading price per $1,000 of the Notes as of the last day of trading for the period. We consider the fair value of the 2027 Notes at December 31, 2024 and 2023, to be a Level 2 measurement based on the fair value hierarchy. The fair value is primarily affected by the trading price of our common stock and market interest rates.

Our financial instruments also include accounts and notes receivable, accounts payable and accrued liabilities. Due to the short-term nature of these instruments, their fair values approximate their carrying values on the consolidated balance sheets.

Stock-Based Compensation

We have historically utilized stock-based compensation for key employees and non-employee directors as a means of attracting and retaining talented personnel. We recognize compensation expense for our stock-based compensation program, which includes grants of RSUs, PSUs and stock options. Our stock-based compensation awards are classified as equity and measured at the fair market value of the underlying common stock at the grant date. When determining the grant date fair value of stock-based awards, we consider whether an adjustment is required to the observable market price or volatility of our common stock used in the valuation as a result of material non-public information.

RSUs

Stock-based compensation expense for RSUs is measured based on the closing fair market value of our common stock on the date of grant. We recognize stock-based compensation expense over the award's requisite service period using the straight-line attribution method for service-based RSUs. Service-based grants generally have a vesting period of one to four years and a contractual maturity of ten years. We account for forfeitures as they occur as a reduction to stock-based compensation expense and additional paid-in-capital.

PSUs

Stock-based compensation expense for PSUs is measured based on the closing fair market value of our common stock on the date of grant. We recognize stock-based compensation expense over the award's requisite service period, which is defined as the longest explicit, implicit or derived service period based on our estimate of the probability of the performance criteria being satisfied, adjusted at each balance sheet date. The vesting of our PSUs is generally contingent upon the achievement of certain performance criteria related to our operating performance, as well as successful and timely development and market acceptance of future product introductions. For PSUs containing only performance conditions, compensation cost is recognized using the graded attribution model over the explicit or implicit service period. In addition, certain of the PSUs have further service requirements subsequent to achievement of the performance criteria.

Performance-based grants generally have vesting periods ranging from one to eight years and a contractual maturity of ten years. We account for forfeitures as they occur as a reduction to stock-based compensation expense and additional paid-in-capital. Our performance-based restricted stock units include XSUs granted under the 2024 Employee XSP and the 2024 CEO Performance Award discussed further below.

2024 Employee XSP and 2024 CEO Performance Award

On May 10, 2024, our shareholders approved the 2024 Employee XSP. The 2024 Employee XSP includes an approved pool of shares of common stock reserved for grants of awards of XSUs to employees. The grants of XSUs (the "2024 XSUs") are grants of performance-based RSUs. The program includes seven substantially equal tranches that will vest upon certification by the Compensation Committee of the Board of Directors (the "Compensation Committee") upon achievement of three independent vesting conditions: (1) stock price goals; (2) operational goals; and (3) minimum service conditions.

Additionally, on May 10, 2024, shareholders approved a grant of XSUs to our CEO, Patrick W. Smith (the "2024 CEO Performance Award"). The stock price goals and operational goals applicable to the 2024 CEO Performance Award are identical to those under the 2024 Employee XSP, but Mr. Smith is subject to a longer minimum required service period.

Stock-based compensation expense associated with the XSUs is recognized over the requisite service period, which is considered the longest explicit, implicit or derived service period for each respective tranche. We utilized Monte Carlo simulations to evaluate a range of possible future stock price goals over the term of the awards at each of the respective grant dates. The median of all iterations of the simulation was used as the basis for the derived service period for each tranche.

We measured the grant date fair value of each tranche using a Monte Carlo simulation with the following assumptions: risk-free interest rate of 3.6% – 4.5%, expected volatility of 41.0% – 46.8%, expected term of 8.0 – 8.6 years, and dividend yield of 0.0%. We utilized a blended volatility assumption, equally weighting both historical volatility and implied volatility, resulting in a weighted-average expected volatility of 41.6%. An illiquidity discount is considered in our estimate of the fair value of shares during post-vesting holding periods. The mandatory post-vesting holding periods for XSUs will lapse on the earlier of (i) December 31, 2030, or (ii) the date that a subsequent tranche vests and settles. Therefore, the illiquidity discount is dependent upon projected tranche vesting dates, determined via the Monte Carlo simulation. This simulation is based on a subjective assessment of our forward-looking financial projections, taking into consideration statistical analysis.

Even though no tranche with respect to either XSUs granted under the 2024 Employee XSP or the 2024 CEO Performance Award vests unless the applicable stock price goal, operational goal and corresponding minimum service condition are achieved, stock-based compensation expense is recognized when an operational goal is considered probable of attainment regardless of the achievement of the stock price and minimum service conditions. As of December 31, 2024, we consider some of the tranches probable and will recognize the expense ratably over their respective expected vesting periods. This may result in volatility and higher upfront expense recognition and is subject to change based on periodic probability assessments. Refer to Note 16 for further discussion.

Stock Options

On May 24, 2018, our shareholders approved the Board of Directors' grant of 6.4 million performance-based stock options to our CEO, Patrick W. Smith, (the "2018 CEO Performance Award"). The 2018 CEO Performance Award consisted of 12 substantially equal tranches with a vesting schedule based entirely on the attainment of both operational goals (performance conditions) and market capitalization goals (market conditions), assuming continued employment either as the Chief Executive Officer or as both Executive Chairman and Chief Product Officer and service through each vesting date. For performance-based stock options with a vesting schedule based entirely on the attainment of both performance and market conditions, stock-based compensation expense was recognized for each pair of performance and market conditions over the longer of the expected achievement period of the performance and market conditions, beginning at the point in time that the relevant performance condition is considered probable of achievement. The fair value of such awards was estimated on the grant date using Monte Carlo simulations.

Income per Common Share

Basic income per common share is computed by dividing net income by the weighted average number of common shares outstanding during the periods presented. Diluted income per share reflects the potential dilution from outstanding stock-based awards, our 2027 Notes, and warrants to acquire shares of our common stock (the "Warrants" or "2027 Warrants"). The effects of outstanding stock-based awards, our 2027 Notes, and our 2027 Warrants are excluded from the computation of diluted net income per share in periods in which the effect would be antidilutive. The calculation of the weighted average number of shares outstanding and earnings per share is as follows (in thousands except per share data):

Recently Issued Accounting Guidance

In November 2023, the FASB issued Accounting Standards Update ("ASU") 2023-07, Segment Reporting (Topic 280): Improvements to Reportable Segment Disclosures. ASU 2023-07 requires improvements to annual and interim segment disclosures, primarily through enhanced disclosures around significant segment expenses. We adopted this ASU effective for our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ending December 31, 2024, and as a result, enhanced certain qualitative considerations within "Segment Information" of Note 1. There were no significant impacts to our existing quantitative disclosures as a result of our adoption of this ASU.

In December 2023, the FASB issued ASU 2023-09, Income Taxes (Topic 740): Improvements to Income Tax Disclosures. ASU 2023-09 is intended to enhance the transparency and decision usefulness of income tax. The provisions of ASU 2023-09 are effective for our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ending December 31, 2025, with early adoption permitted. We are currently evaluating the impact of this update on our consolidated financial statements.

In March 2024, the SEC adopted final rules under SEC Release No. 34-99678 and No. 33-11275, The Enhancement and Standardization of Climate-Related Disclosures for Investors (the "Final Rules"), which will require registrants to provide certain climate-related information in their registration statements and annual reports. The Final Rules require, among other things, disclosure in the notes to the audited financial statements of the effects of severe weather events and other natural conditions, subject to certain thresholds, as well as amounts related to carbon offsets and renewable energy credits or certificates in certain circumstances. The financial statement disclosure requirements of the Final Rules will begin phasing in for fiscal year 2025. In April 2024, the SEC stayed the effectiveness of the Final Rules pending judicial review. We are currently evaluating the impact of the Final Rules on our consolidated financial statements.

Remaining Performance Obligations

As of December 31, 2024, we had approximately $7.9 billion of remaining performance obligations, which included both recognized contract liabilities as well as amounts that will be invoiced and recognized in future periods. The remaining performance obligations are limited only to arrangements that meet the definition of a contract under ASC 606 as of December 31, 2024. We currently expect to recognize between approximately 20% - 25% of this balance over the next 12 months, and expect the remainder to be recognized over the following ten years, subject to risks related to delayed deployments, budget appropriation, or other contract cancellation clauses.

Costs to Obtain a Contract

We recognize an asset for the incremental costs of obtaining a contract with a customer, which consist primarily of sales commissions. As of December 31, 2024, our assets for costs to obtain contracts were as follows (in thousands):

	December 31, 2024	December 31, 2023
Current deferred commissions [1]	$ 59,025	$ 46,224
Deferred commissions, net of current portion [2]	154,894	119,084
	$ 213,919	$ 165,308

(1) Current deferred commissions are included within prepaid expenses and other current assets on the consolidated balance sheets.
(2) Deferred commissions, net of current portion, are included in other long-term assets on the consolidated balance sheets.

During the years ended December 31, 2024, 2023 and 2022, we recognized $50.8 million, $34.1 million, and $24.4 million, respectively, of amortization related to deferred commissions. These costs are recorded within SG&A expenses in the consolidated statements of operations and comprehensive income (loss).

Significant Judgments

Our contracts with certain municipal government customers may be subject to budget appropriation, other contract cancellation clauses or optional renewal periods. In contracts where the customer's performance is subject to budget appropriation clauses, we generally consider the likelihood of non-appropriation to be remote when determining the contract term and transaction price. Contracts with other cancellation provisions or optional periods may require judgment in determining the contract term, including the existence of substantive termination penalties, determining transaction price and identifying the performance obligations.

At times, customers may request changes that either amend, replace or cancel existing contracts. Judgment is required to determine whether the specific facts and circumstances within the contracts require the changes to be accounted for as a separate contract or as a modification. Generally, contract modifications containing additional goods and services that are determined to be distinct and sold at their SSP are accounted for as a separate contract. For contract modifications where both criteria are not met, the original contract is updated and the required adjustments to revenue and contract assets, liabilities and other accounts are made accordingly.

Our contracts with customers often include promises to transfer multiple products and services to a customer. Determining whether products and services are considered distinct performance obligations that should be accounted for separately rather than together may require significant judgment. We consider CED devices and related accessories, as well as Axon cameras and related accessories, to be separately identifiable from each other as well as from extended warranties on these products and the SaaS subscriptions to Axon Evidence and other cloud services.

In contracts where there are timing differences between when we transfer a promised good or service to the customer and when the customer pays for that good or service, we assess whether there is any implied financing within the transaction, and if so, recognize related interest income, or expense, on the transaction. The amount of imputed interest is immaterial for the years ended December 31, 2024, 2023 and 2022.

Judgment is required to determine the SSP for each distinct performance obligation. We analyze stand-alone sales of our products and services as a basis for estimating the SSP of our products and services and then use that SSP as the basis for allocating the transaction price when our products and services are sold together in a contract with multiple performance obligations. In instances where the SSP is not directly observable, such as when we do not sell the product or service separately, we determine the SSP using information that may include cost plus margin, market comparisons and other observable inputs.

As of December 31, 2024, we had $136.7 million of available-for-sale investments with unrealized losses of which none have been in a continuous unrealized loss position for 12 months or longer. We do not intend to sell the investments and it is not more likely than not that we will be required to sell the investments before recovery of their amortized cost bases.

Acquired common stock is recorded as marketable securities in the consolidated balance sheets and its fair value is adjusted every reporting period. Changes in fair value are recorded in the consolidated statement of operations as unrealized gain (or loss) on marketable securities, which is included in other income (loss), net. During the year ended December 31, 2024, we recorded an unrealized gain on marketable securities of $120.3 million.

During the years ended December 31, 2023 and 2022, we recorded a $38.7 million unrealized gain and $32.9 million unrealized loss on marketable securities, respectively.

Note 8 – Strategic Investments

Strategic investments include equity and debt investments in a number of non-public technology driven companies. We generally account for strategic equity investments under the ASC 321 measurement alternative for equity securities without readily determinable fair values, as there are no quoted market prices for the equity investments. The equity investments are measured at cost less impairment, adjusted for observable price changes and are assessed for impairment whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the fair value may be less than its carrying value.

For the debt security strategic investment, we have elected to account for this investment and the associated embedded derivatives utilizing the fair value option. Unrealized changes in fair value for the entire hybrid instrument are recorded within other income (loss), net in the consolidated statement of operations.

In conjunction with certain of our strategic investments, we may have the ability to commit additional capital over time through warrants and call options; for some investments, the exercisability and exercise prices are conditional on the achievement of certain performance metrics. Depending on their contractual terms, our warrants and call options may be accounted for under either the ASC 321 measurement alternative or as derivative instruments under ASC 815.

	Equity investments	Warrants	Call options	Debt investments	Total	Equity investments	Warrants	Call Options	Total

During the year ended December 31, 2024, we exercised call options and acquired the remaining outstanding stock of two strategic investments - Fusus L.L.C. ("Fusus") and Dedrone Holdings, Inc. ("Dedrone"). Our pre-existing interests had fair values at the acquisition dates of $63.3 million and $112.2 million, respectively. The acquisitions of Fusus and Dedrone resulted in net non-taxable gains of $42.3 million and $51.6 million related to the existing strategic equity investments and call options in Fusus and Dedrone, respectively. For additional discussion, refer to Note 21.

Additionally, as a result of an observable price change for a separate strategic investee, we recognized an unrealized gain of $75.6 million for the strategic investment and related warrants in other income (loss), net on our consolidated statement of operations during the year ended December 31, 2024.

For the debt security strategic investment, we recognized an unrealized gain of $1.1 million for the entire hybrid instrument in other income (loss), net on our consolidated statement of operations during the year ended December 31, 2024.

Note 9 - Variable Interest Entities

We evaluate our investments and other significant relationships to determine whether any investee is a variable interest entity ("VIE"). If we conclude that an investee is a VIE, we evaluate our power to direct the activities of the investee, our obligation to absorb the expected losses of the investee and our right to receive the expected residual returns of the investee to determine whether we are the primary beneficiary of the investee. If we are the primary beneficiary of a VIE, we will consolidate such entity and reflect the non-controlling interest of other beneficiaries of that entity.

We determine whether we are the primary beneficiary of a VIE by performing an analysis that principally considers:

- The VIE's purpose, design, and risks the VIE was designed to create and pass through to its variable interest holders;
- The VIE's capital structure;
- The terms between the VIE and its variable interest holders and other parties involved with the VIE; and
- Related party affiliations.

As of December 31, 2024 and December 31, 2023, the unconsolidated non-public VIEs in which we hold variable interests were as follows (in thousands):

	December 31, 2024	December 31, 2023
Carrying value of variable interest - assets[(1)]	$ 25,171	$ 4,986

(1) Balance reflects the maximum exposure to loss, which is limited to the carrying value of the interest.

The primary purpose of our U.S.-based, unconsolidated VIE investments is to create strategic partnerships with market-leading providers of law enforcement technology solutions. We present all variable interests in unconsolidated VIEs as strategic investments within the long-term assets section of the consolidated balance sheets.

We have provided financial support to the unconsolidated VIEs in exchange for investments in debt and preferred equity securities as well as warrants and call options that give us the ability to commit additional capital over time. Financial support provided to the unconsolidated VIEs is used to continue to finance their operations.

Note 12 – Convertible Senior Notes

In December 2022, we issued $690.0 million aggregate principal amount of our 2027 Notes (the "Notes") in a private offering, which aggregate principal amount included the exercise in full of the initial purchasers' option to purchase up to an additional $90.0 million principal amount of the Notes. The Notes mature on December 15, 2027 and bear interest at a fixed rate of 0.50% per annum, payable semiannually in arrears on June 15 and December 15 of each year, beginning on June 15, 2023. The total net proceeds from the issuance of the Notes, after deducting initial purchasers' discounts and commissions and estimated debt issuance costs of $16.2 million, were approximately $673.8 million. The effective interest rate for the Notes was 0.99% and included interest payable and amortization of debt issuance cost.

The terms of the Notes allow for conversion into common stock, cash, or a combination of cash and common stock, at our option. On or after December 22, 2025, we may redeem for cash all or any portion of the notes in accordance with the optional redemption terms of the convertible debt agreement.

	December 31, 2024
	Maturity Date	Initial Conversion Price per Share	Initial Conversion Rate per $1,000 Par Value	Initial Number of Shares
2027 Notes	December 15, 2027	$228.73	4.3720 shares	3,016,680

The notes are convertible, in multiples of $1,000 principal amount, at the option of the holders prior to the close of business on the business day immediately preceding September 15, 2027 only under the following circumstances:

- during any calendar quarter commencing after the calendar quarter ending on March 31, 2023 (and only during such fiscal quarter), if the last reported sale price per common stock exceeds 130% of the conversion price for each of at least 20 trading days, whether or not consecutive, during the 30 consecutive trading days ending on, and including, the last trading day of the immediately preceding calendar quarter;
- any time preceding September 15, 2027, when during the five consecutive business days immediately after any 10 consecutive trading day period (the "Measurement Period"), if the trading price per $1,000 principal amount of Notes for each trading day of the Measurement Period was less than 98% of the product of the last reported sale price per share of common stock on such trading day and the conversion rate on such trading day;
- upon the occurrence of certain corporate events or distributions on our ordinary shares, as provided in the indenture governing the Notes;
- if we call the Notes for redemption; or any time from, and including, September 15, 2027 until the close of business on the second scheduled trading day immediately before the maturity date

If we undergo a fundamental change (as defined in the indenture governing the Notes), holders may require us to repurchase for cash all or any portion of their Notes at a fundamental change repurchase price equal to 100% of the principal amount of the Notes to be repurchased, plus accrued and unpaid interest, if any, up to but excluding the fundamental change repurchase date. In addition, following certain corporate events or if we issue a notice of redemption, it will increase the conversion rate for holders who elect to convert their Notes in connection with such corporate event or during the relevant redemption period.

Principal	$ 690,000	$ 690,000
Unamortized debt issuance costs	(9,711)	(12,887)
Convertible notes carrying amount, net	$ 680,289	$ 677,113

We consider the fair value of the Notes to be a Level 2 measurement. The estimated fair value of the Notes at December 31, 2024 and December 31, 2023 is based on the closing trading price per $1,000 of the Notes as of the last day of trading for each period as follows (in millions):

	December 31, 2024	December 31, 2023
2027 Notes	$ 1,798.5	$ 873.3

Interest expense related to the Notes was as follows (in thousands):

	December 31, 2024	December 31, 2023
Contractual interest expense	$ 3,451	$ 3,450
Amortization of debt issuance costs	3,176	3,126
Total interest expense	$ 6,627	$ 6,576

Note Hedge

To reduce the impact of potential economic dilution upon conversion of the Notes, we entered into a convertible note hedge transaction (the "Note Hedge" or "2027 Note Hedge") with certain investment banks, with respect to our common stock, concurrently with the issuance of the 2027 Notes.

	Purchase Price	Shares Purchased

The Note Hedge covers shares of our common stock at a strike price per share that corresponds to the initial conversion price of the respective Notes, subject to adjustment, and is exercisable upon conversion of the Notes. If exercised, we may elect to receive cash, shares of our common stock, or a combination of cash and shares. We have accounted for the aggregate amount of purchase price for the Note Hedge as a reduction to additional paid-in capital. The Note Hedge will expire upon the maturity of the Notes. The Note Hedge is intended to reduce the potential economic dilution upon conversion of the Notes in the event that the market value per share of our common stock at the time of exercise is greater than the conversion price of the Notes. The Note Hedge is a separate transaction and is not part of the terms of the Notes. Holders of the Notes do not have any rights with respect to the Note Hedge. The Note Hedge does not impact earnings per share, as it was entered into to offset any dilution from the Notes. As of December 31, 2024, 3,016,680 shares remain subject to the Note Hedge.

Note Warrants

	Proceeds	Shares	Strike Price	First Expiration
2027 Warrants	$ 124,269	3,016,680	$ 338.86	March 15, 2028

Separately, we entered into warrant transactions with certain investment banks, whereby we sold warrants to acquire, subject to adjustment, the number of shares of our common stock shown in the table above. If the average market value per share of our common stock exceeds the strike price of the Warrants, such Warrants would have a dilutive effect on our earnings per share to the extent we report net income. According to the terms of the Warrants, the Warrants will be automatically exercised over a 60-trading day period beginning on the first expiration date as set forth above.

Note 13 - Commitments and Contingencies

Cloud Service Commitments

In June 2022, we entered into a purchase agreement for cloud hosting with a six year term beginning July 1, 2022. The purchase agreement includes a total commitment of $425.0 million. Storage fees under this agreement were $81.9 million for the year ended December 31, 2024. The remaining purchase commitment at December 31, 2024 was $265.5 million.

Purchase Commitments

We routinely enter into cancelable and non-cancelable purchase orders with many of our key vendors. Based on the strategic relationships with many of these vendors, our ability to cancel these purchase orders and maintain a favorable relationship would be limited. As of December 31, 2024, we had approximately $637.5 million of open purchase orders and $272.1 million of other purchase obligations, inclusive of the data storage commitment noted above.

Product Litigation

As a manufacturer of weapons and other law enforcement tools used in high-risk field environments, we are often the subject of products liability litigation concerning the use of our products. We are currently named as a defendant in two such lawsuits in which the plaintiffs allege either wrongful death or personal injury in situations in which a TASER CED was used by law enforcement officers in connection with arrests or training. While the facts vary from case to case, these product liability claims typically allege defective product design, manufacturing, and/or failure to warn. They seek compensatory and sometimes punitive damages, often in unspecified amounts.

We continue to aggressively defend all product litigation. As a general rule, it is our policy not to settle suspect injury or death cases. Exceptions are sometimes made where the settlement is strategically beneficial to us. Due to the confidential nature of our litigation strategy and the confidentiality agreements that are executed in the event of a settlement, we do not identify or comment on specific settlements by case or amount. Based on current information, we do not believe that the outcome of any such legal proceeding will have a material effect on our financial position, results of operations or cash flows. We are self-insured for the first $5.0 million of any product claim made after 2014. No judgment or settlement has ever exceeded this amount in any products liability case. We continue to maintain product liability insurance coverage, including an insurance policy fronting arrangement, above our self-insured retention with various limits depending on the policy period.

Other Matters

Despite the FTC's dismissal of its administrative enforcement complaint against Axon without consent decree or other condition in October 2023, other parties continue to allege that Axon's May 2018 acquisition of an insolvent body camera competitor, Vievu LLC, was anticompetitive. Two purported antitrust lawsuits based largely on the FTC's unproven allegations are pending in the District of New Jersey (Case No. 3:23-cv-7182) and District of Arizona (Case No. 2:24-cv-01869-SMB). Axon denies all allegations of anticompetitive or other misconduct and is vigorously defending the cases.

Pending in the Eastern District of Virginia (Case No. 1:24-CV-01625) is a patent infringement suit filed by Airspace Systems, Inc. against Dedrone Holdings, Inc. involving certain drone technology. After Axon acquired Dedrone on October 1, 2024, Airspace amended its complaint and added Axon as a defendant. Axon and Dedrone deny infringement and further contend that the three asserted patents are invalid and/or contain patent ineligible subject matter.

General

From time to time, we are notified that we may be a party to a lawsuit or that a claim is being made against us. After carefully assessing the claim, and assuming we determine that we are not at fault or we disagree with the damages or relief demanded, we vigorously defend any lawsuit filed against us. We record a liability when losses are deemed probable and reasonably estimable. When losses are deemed reasonably possible but not probable, we determine whether it is possible to provide an estimate of the amount of the loss or range of possible losses for the claim, if material for disclosure. In evaluating matters for accrual and disclosure purposes, we take into consideration factors such as our historical experience with matters of a similar nature, the specific facts and circumstances asserted, the likelihood of our prevailing, the availability of insurance, and the severity of any potential loss. We reevaluate and update accruals as matters progress over time.

Based on our assessment of outstanding litigation and claims as of December 31, 2024, we have determined that it is not reasonably possible that these losses, if any, from lawsuits will individually, or in the aggregate, materially affect our results of operations, financial condition or cash flows. However, the outcome of any litigation is inherently uncertain and there can be no assurance that any expense, liability or damages that may ultimately result from the resolution of these matters will be covered by our insurance or will not be in excess of amounts recognized or provided by insurance coverage and will not have a material adverse effect on our operating results, financial condition or cash flows.

Off-Balance Sheet Arrangements

Under certain circumstances, we use letters of credit and surety bonds to guarantee our performance under various contracts, principally in connection with the installation and integration of Axon cameras and related technologies. Certain of our letters of credit and surety bonds have stated expiration dates with others being released as the contractual performance terms are completed. At December 31, 2024, we had outstanding letters of credit issued under our credit facility of $7.8 million that are expected to expire through 2026. We also had outstanding letters of credit of $0.1 million that do not draw against our credit facility. Additionally, we had $20.9 million of outstanding surety bonds as of December 31, 2024, with expiration dates ranging through 2029.

As of December 31, 2024, we have recorded a net tax benefit totaling $17.8 million for U.S. federal, state, and foreign net operating loss carryforwards ("NOLs"). As of December 31, 2024, $15.5 million of NOLs may be carried forward indefinitely while the remaining $2.3 million will begin to expire at various times from 2036 through 2044. As of December 31, 2024, we have a total of $26.1 million state (net of federal benefit) R&D credit carryforwards available to offset future income taxes. A total of $2.5 million of the state R&D credits may be carried forward indefinitely while the remaining $23.6 million will begin to expire at various times from 2025 through 2044.

As of December 31, 2024, we anticipate sufficient future pre-tax book income to realize a significant portion of our deferred tax assets. However, as we have Arizona R&D tax credits expiring unutilized each year, unrealized investment losses for which realization is uncertain, and specific identified intangibles with an indefinite life, we have recorded a 23.1 million valuation allowance against these specific deferred tax assets as of December 31, 2024.

The net change in total valuation allowance for the years ended December 31, 2024, and 2023 was an increase of $1.5 million and decrease of $4.8 million, respectively. The valuation allowance changes are driven primarily by certain state R&D tax credits that are expected to expire unutilized, acquired state NOLs, and movement in deferred tax assets associated with unrealized investment losses and transaction costs incurred in connection with certain investments that are not more likely than not to be realized. Of the net change in the valuation allowance in 2024 and 2023, a decrease of $0.9 million and $4.8 million, respectively, was recorded to tax expense and an increase of $2.4 million and $0 million, respectively, was recorded through the consolidated balance sheet.

We consider the undistributed earnings of certain non-U.S. subsidiaries to be indefinitely reinvested outside of the United States based on estimates that future domestic cash generation will be sufficient to meet future domestic cash needs and our specific plans for reinvestment of those subsidiary earnings. We project that our foreign earnings will be utilized offshore for working capital and future foreign growth and we have not made a provision for U.S. or additional foreign withholding taxes of the excess of the amount for financial reporting over the tax basis of investments in foreign subsidiaries that is indefinitely reinvested. Generally, such amounts become subject to U.S. taxation upon the remittance of dividends and under certain other circumstances. We have estimated the amount of deferred tax liability related to investments in these foreign subsidiaries undistributed earnings is approximately $1.1 million. If we decide to repatriate the undistributed foreign earnings, we will recognize the income tax effects in the period we change our assertion on indefinite reinvestment.

We complete R&D tax credit studies for each year that an R&D tax credit is claimed for federal and state income tax purposes. We have made the determination that it is not more likely than not that the full benefit of the R&D tax credit will be sustained on examination. As such, we recorded a liability for unrecognized tax benefits of $32.7 million as of December 31, 2024. We expect the amount of the unrecognized tax benefit to decrease by approximately $9.0 million within the next 12 months due to statute of limitations expirations. Should the unrecognized benefit of $32.7 million be recognized, our effective tax rate would be favorably impacted.

The following table presents a roll forward of our liability for unrecognized tax benefits, exclusive of accrued interest, as of December 31 (in thousands):

Balance, beginning of period	$ 25,754	$ 21,492	$ 18,249
Increase (decrease) in previous year tax positions	501	(215)	232
Increase in current year tax positions	7,313	6,963	3,343
Decrease due to lapse of statute of limitations	(842)	(2,486)	(332)
Balance, end of period	$ 32,726	$ 25,754	$ 21,492

Federal income tax returns for 2021 through 2023 remain open to examination by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, while state and local income tax returns for 2020 through 2023 also generally remain open to examination by state taxing authorities. The 2010 through 2019 state and local income tax returns are only open to the extent that net operating losses or other tax attributes carrying forward from those years were utilized in 2020 through 2023. The foreign tax returns for 2020 through 2023 also generally remain open to examination, although some foreign jurisdictions can audit returns up to ten years.

We recognize interest and penalties related to unrecognized tax benefits within the provision (benefit) for income tax expense line in the consolidated statements of operations and comprehensive income. We have recognized expense (benefit), before federal tax impact, related to interest of $1.2 million, $0.3 million, and $0.1 million in 2024, 2023, and 2022 respectively. As of December 31, 2024, and 2023, we had accrued interest of $1.8 million and $0.6 million, respectively.

As part of the OECD global minimum tax framework, certain jurisdictions in which we operate have enacted or are in the process of implementing top-up tax provisions under Pillar Two. We have assessed the impact of these regulations on our tax position and included an immaterial adjustment in our income tax provision as of December 31, 2024. We continue to monitor legislative developments and will assess potential future impacts as additional guidance and implementation details become available.

Note 15 - Line of Credit

In December 2022, we entered into a credit agreement that provides for a senior unsecured multi-currency revolving credit facility (the "Credit Agreement") in an aggregate principal amount of up to $200.0 million, $30.0 million of which is available for the issuance of letters of credit. The Credit Agreement will mature on the earlier of December 15, 2027 or the date that is six months prior to the stated maturity date of the 2027 Notes unless the Notes have been redeemed, repurchased, converted or defeased in full. Additionally, the credit agreement has an accordion feature that allows for an increase in the total line of credit up to $300.0 million, in each lender's sole discretion.

As of December 31, 2024, and 2023, respectively, no amounts were drawn under the Credit Agreement. Under the terms of the line of credit, available borrowings are reduced by outstanding letters of credit. As of December 31, 2024, we had letters of credit outstanding of approximately $7.8 million under the facility and available borrowing of $192.2 million, excluding amounts available under the accordion feature. Advances under the line of credit bear interest at Term SOFR plus 1.25 to 1.75% per year determined in accordance with a pricing grid based on our net debt to earnings before interest expense, taxes, depreciation and amortization ("EBITDA") ratio, which for the purposes of the Credit Agreement excludes investment interest income. "SOFR" is defined as a rate equal to the secured overnight financing rate as administered by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York or a successor administrator of the secured overnight financing rate.

We are required to comply with a net leverage ratio, defined as consolidated total indebtedness to EBITDA, of no greater than 3.50 to 1.00 based upon a trailing four fiscal quarter period. At December 31, 2024, our net leverage ratio was (0.17) to 1.00. Additionally, we must comply with a consolidated interest coverage ratio, defined as EBITDA to consolidated interest expense, of no less than 3.50 to 1.00 based upon a trailing four fiscal quarter end. At December 31, 2024, our consolidated interest coverage ratio was 71.07 to 1.00.

Note 21 – Business Combinations

The consolidated financial statements include the operating results of each acquisition from the date of acquisition noted below. Pro forma results of operations and the revenue and net income subsequent to the acquisitions have not been presented because the effects of the acquisitions were not material to our financial results.

Fusus

On January 31, 2024, we acquired the remaining 79.7% interest in Fusus, a global leader in real-time crime center technology, for incremental consideration transferred of approximately $241.3 million (the "Fusus step acquisition"). Our existing 20.3% interest had a fair value at the acquisition date of $63.3 million, which resulted in a non-taxable gain of $42.3 million recorded in other income (loss), net in our consolidated statement of operations. The fair value of the previously held investment was remeasured using Level 3 valuation techniques, which include inputs to the valuation methodology that are considered unobservable and significant to the fair value measurement.

The acquisition expands our ability to aggregate live video, data and sensor feeds, which enhances situational awareness and investigative capabilities for our customers in public safety, education and enterprise. Total acquisition-related transaction and integration costs for the years ended December 31, 2024 and 2023 were $4.7 million and $2.6 million, respectively. These transaction costs were expensed as incurred in SG&A in our consolidated statements of operations.

The purchase price allocation was subject to revision during the measurement period through the fourth quarter of 2024. Based on the final purchase price allocation, we recorded $249.9 million of goodwill, $72.9 million of identifiable intangible assets, and other net liabilities assumed of $7.8 million, excluding deferred taxes. We also recorded a net deferred tax liability of $10.4 million.

The identifiable intangible assets included $56.6 million of developed technology, $14.4 million of customer relationships, and $1.9 million of trademarks. With the assistance of third-party valuation experts, we calculated the fair values of the intangible assets using the multi-period excess earnings method for the acquired developed technology, the with and without method for the customer relationships, and the relief-from-royalty method for the trademarks. The valuation of acquired intangible assets utilized Level 3 valuation techniques, which include inputs to the valuation methodology that are considered unobservable and significant to the fair value measurement. Significant assumptions used by management in the Fusus developed technology multi-period excess earnings (income valuation) approach were projected revenues, earnings before interest, taxes, and depreciation and amortization (EBITDA) margins, obsolescence technology factor, and the discount rate. The weighted average amortization period of the acquired intangible assets as of the acquisition date was 7.5 years.

The goodwill generated from the acquisition is primarily attributable to synergies that are expected to be achieved from the integration of the business and is not deductible for tax purposes. Consistent with the assignment of goodwill, the consolidated results of Fusus are included in our Software and Sensors operating segment following the acquisition.

Dedrone

On October 1, 2024, we acquired the remaining 79.8% interest in Dedrone, a global leader in air space security, for incremental consideration transferred of approximately $391.1 million, subject to customary purchase price adjustments (the "Dedrone step acquisition"). Our existing 20.2% interest had a fair value at the acquisition date of $112.2 million, which resulted in a non-taxable gain of $51.6 million recorded in other income (loss), net in our consolidated statement of operations. The fair value of the previously held investment was remeasured using Level 3 valuation techniques, which include inputs to the valuation methodology that are considered unobservable and significant to the fair value measurement.

This acquisition represents alignment to our mission and positions us to accelerate the next generation of drone and air space solutions. Total acquisition-related transaction and integration costs were $13.0 million for the year ended December 31, 2024. These transaction costs were expensed as incurred in SG&A in our consolidated statements of operations.

The purchase price allocation is subject to revision during the measurement period for normal closing activities, such as income tax filings and settlement of escrow balances, which is expected to be completed by the third quarter of 2025. Based on the initial purchase price allocation, we recorded $451.1 million of goodwill, $100.5 million of identifiable intangible assets, and other net liabilities assumed of $47.1 million, excluding deferred taxes. We also recorded a net deferred tax liability of $1.2 million.

The identifiable intangible assets included $41.0 million of developed technology, $41.0 million of in-process research and development, $15.0 million of customer relationships, and $3.5 million of trademarks. With the assistance of third-party valuation experts, we calculated the fair values of the intangible assets using the primary method of cost approach for the developed technology and in-process research and development, the with and without method for customer relationships, and the relief-from-royalty method for the trademarks. The valuation of the developed technology and in-process research and development was also supported by an income approach. The valuation of acquired intangible assets utilized Level 3 valuation techniques, which include inputs and assumptions to the valuation methodology that are considered unobservable and significant to the fair value measurement. The significant assumption used by management in the Dedrone developed technology and IPR&D cost approaches was direct development cost build-up. The weighted average amortization period of the acquired intangible assets as of the acquisition date was 5.5 years.

The acquired in-process research and development projects represent projects that are expected to enhance our drone capabilities, have not yet been completed for commercialization, and are required to be classified as indefinite-lived assets until their successful completion. These projects are expected to be placed in service and begin amortizing once they are commercialized and begin contributing to our cash inflows during 2025.

The goodwill generated from the acquisition is primarily attributable to synergies that are expected to be achieved from the integration of the business and is not deductible for tax purposes. Consistent with the assignment of goodwill, the consolidated results of Dedrone are included in our Software and Sensors operating segment following the acquisition.

Note 22 – Subsequent Events

In February 2025, we entered into a series of transactions to acquire additional equity interests in an existing strategic investee for an aggregate amount of $173.3 million. The closing of one of these transactions is contingent upon regulatory approval that is expected to be received in March 2025.

Note 23 - Revision of Prior Period Financial Statements

As discussed in Note 1, in preparing the condensed consolidated financial statements as of and for the three and nine months ended September 30, 2024, we identified errors in our previously issued financial statements related to our historical conclusions of principal vs. agent accounting of certain reseller arrangements under ASC 606 and concluded they were not material to any previously issued financial statements. The identified errors impacted our previously issued 2021 and 2022 annual financial statements, 2023 quarterly and annual financial statements, and 2024 quarterly financial statements through June 30, 2024. Consistent with revising our quarterly financial statements as of September 30, 2024, we made adjustments to the prior period amounts presented in these financial statements accordingly. Furthermore, we made adjustments to correct for other previously identified immaterial errors.

The following tables reflect the impact of the revision to the specific line items presented in our previously reported (a) consolidated balance sheet as of December 31, 2023; (b) consolidated statements of operations and comprehensive income for the years ended December 31, 2023 and December 31, 2022; (c) consolidated statements of stockholders' equity for the years ended December 31, 2023 and December 31, 2022; and (d) consolidated statements of cash flows for the years ended December 31, 2023 and December 31, 2022.

REPORT OF INDEPENDENT REGISTERED PUBLIC ACCOUNTING FIRM

Opinions on the Financial Statements and Internal Control over Financial Reporting
We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheet of Axon Enterprise, Inc. and its subsidiaries (the "Company") as of December 31, 2024, and the related consolidated statements of operations and comprehensive income (loss), of stockholders' equity and of cash flows for the year then ended, including the related notes (collectively referred to as the "consolidated financial statements"). We also have audited the Company's internal control over financial reporting as of December 31, 2024, based on criteria established in Internal Control - Integrated Framework (2013) issued by the Committee of Sponsoring Organizations of the Treadway Commission (COSO).

In our opinion, the consolidated financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Company as of December 31, 2024, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the year then ended in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. Also in our opinion, the Company did not maintain, in all material respects, effective internal control over financial reporting as of December 31, 2024, based on criteria established in Internal Control - Integrated Framework (2013) issued by the COSO because a material weakness in internal control over financial reporting existed as of that date as the Company did not design and maintain effective controls related to revenue recognition for its customer contracts.

A material weakness is a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control over financial reporting, such that there is a reasonable possibility that a material misstatement of the annual or interim financial statements will not be prevented or detected on a timely basis. The material weakness referred to above is described in Management's Report on Internal Control over Financial Reporting appearing under Item 9A. We considered this material weakness in determining the nature, timing, and extent of audit tests applied in our audit of the 2024 consolidated financial statements, and our opinion regarding the effectiveness of the Company's internal control over financial reporting does not affect our opinion on those consolidated financial statements.

Basis for Opinions
The Company's management is responsible for these consolidated financial statements, for maintaining effective internal control over financial reporting, and for its assessment of the effectiveness of internal control over financial reporting, included in management's report referred to above. Our responsibility is to express opinions on the Company's consolidated financial statements and on the Company's internal control over financial reporting based on our audits. We are a public accounting firm registered with the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States) (PCAOB) and are required to be independent with respect to the Company in accordance with the U.S. federal securities laws and the applicable rules and regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the PCAOB.

We conducted our audits in accordance with the standards of the PCAOB. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audits to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the consolidated financial statements are free of material misstatement, whether due to error or fraud, and whether effective internal control over financial reporting was maintained in all material respects.

Our audits of the consolidated financial statements included performing procedures to assess the risks of material misstatement of the consolidated financial statements, whether due to error or fraud, and performing procedures that respond to those risks. Such procedures included examining, on a test basis, evidence regarding the amounts and disclosures in the consolidated financial statements. Our audits also included evaluating the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the consolidated financial statements. Our audit of internal control over financial reporting included obtaining an understanding of internal control over financial reporting, assessing the risk that a material weakness exists, and testing and evaluating the design and operating effectiveness of internal control based on the assessed risk. Our audits also included performing such other procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinions.

Definition and Limitations of Internal Control over Financial Reporting
A company's internal control over financial reporting is a process designed to provide reasonable assurance regarding the reliability of financial reporting and the preparation of financial statements for external purposes in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. A company's internal control over financial reporting includes those policies and procedures that (i) pertain to the maintenance of records that, in reasonable detail, accurately and fairly reflect the transactions and dispositions of the assets of the company; (ii) provide reasonable assurance that transactions are recorded as necessary to permit preparation of financial statements in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, and that receipts and expenditures of the company are being made only in accordance with authorizations of management and directors of the company; and (iii) provide reasonable assurance regarding prevention or timely detection of unauthorized acquisition, use, or disposition of the company's assets that could have a material effect on the financial statements.

Because of its inherent limitations, internal control over financial reporting may not prevent or detect misstatements. Also, projections of any evaluation of effectiveness to future periods are subject to the risk that controls may become inadequate because of changes in conditions, or that the degree of compliance with the policies or procedures may deteriorate.

Critical Audit Matters

The critical audit matters communicated below are matters arising from the current period audit of the consolidated financial statements that were communicated or required to be communicated to the audit committee and that (i) relate to accounts or disclosures that are material to the consolidated financial statements and (ii) involved our especially challenging, subjective, or complex judgments. The communication of critical audit matters does not alter in any way our opinion on the consolidated financial statements, taken as a whole, and we are not, by communicating the critical audit matters below, providing separate opinions on the critical audit matters or on the accounts or disclosures to which they relate.

Revenue Recognition for Certain Products and Services

As described in Notes 1 and 2 to the consolidated financial statements, the Company's net sales were $2.1 billion for the year ended December 31, 2024, a significant portion of which relates to certain products and services. The Company derives revenue from two primary sources: the sale of physical products and subscriptions to software-as-a-service (SaaS) offerings. To a lesser extent, the Company also recognizes revenue from training, professional services and other software and SaaS services. Revenues are recognized upon transfer of control of promised products or services to customers in an amount that reflects the consideration the Company expects to receive in exchange for those products or services. Contracts include various combinations of products and services, each of which is generally distinct and accounted for as a separate performance obligation. Performance obligations to deliver products are generally satisfied at the point in time the Company ships the product as this is when the customer obtains control of the asset. Performance obligations to provide the SaaS offerings are generally satisfied over time as the customer receives and consumes the benefits of these services over the stated service period. Products and services may be sold on a standalone basis or as part of a bundle of hardware products and services together. Contracts with other cancellation provisions or optional periods may require judgment in determining the contract term, including the existence of substantive termination penalties, determining transaction price and identifying the performance obligations. Customers may request changes that amend, replace or cancel existing contracts and judgment is required to determine whether these changes should be accounted for as a separate contract or a modification to an existing contract.

The principal considerations for our determination that performing procedures relating to revenue recognition for certain products and services is a critical audit matter are (i) the significant judgment by management in evaluating key terms and conditions in contracts with customers that impact revenue recognition and (ii) a high degree of auditor judgment, subjectivity, and effort in performing procedures and evaluating audit evidence related to management's evaluation of the key terms and conditions in contracts with customers related to contract term, cancellation provisions, substantive termination penalties, optional periods, and if changes to contracts should be accounted for as separate or modified contracts. As described in the "Opinions on the Financial Statements and Internal Control over Financial Reporting" section, a material weakness was identified related to this matter.

Addressing the matter involved performing procedures and evaluating audit evidence in connection with forming our overall opinion on the consolidated financial statements. These procedures included testing the effectiveness of controls relating to the revenue recognition process, including controls over contract reviews to identify key terms and conditions in contracts with customers. These procedures also included, among others, for a sample of revenue transactions from certain products and services, (i) evaluating the reasonableness of management's judgments in accounting for the key terms and conditions in the contracts, including evaluating contract term, cancellation provisions, substantive termination penalties, optional periods, and if changes to contracts should be accounted for as separate or modified contracts; (ii) testing revenue recognized by obtaining and inspecting source documents, such as contracts, purchase orders, invoices, proof of transfer of control, and cash receipts; and (iii) confirming a sample of outstanding customer invoice balances as of December 31, 2024 and, for confirmations not returned, obtaining and inspecting source documents, such as contracts, purchase orders, invoices, proof of transfer of control, and subsequent cash receipts.

Valuation of Certain Intangible Assets - Acquisitions of Fusus and Dedrone

As described in Notes 8 and 21 to the consolidated financial statements, during 2024, the Company completed the step acquisitions of its remaining interests in Fusus L.L.C. ("Fusus") and Dedrone Holdings, Inc. ("Dedrone"). The incremental consideration transferred for the Fusus acquisition was $241.3 million, and $56.6 million of developed technology was recorded. The incremental consideration transferred for the Dedrone acquisition was $391.1 million, and $41.0 million of developed technology and $41.0 million of in-process research and development (IPR&D) was recorded. The fair value of the acquired Fusus developed technology was calculated using the multi-period excess earnings method, and significant assumptions used by management were projected revenues, earnings before interest, taxes, and depreciation and amortization (EBITDA) margins, obsolescence technology factor, and the discount rate. The fair value of the acquired Dedrone developed technology and IPR&D were calculated using the cost approach, and the significant assumption used by management was direct development cost build-up.

The principal considerations for our determination that performing procedures relating to the valuation of certain intangible assets acquired in the acquisitions of Fusus and Dedrone is a critical audit matter are (i) the significant judgment by management when developing the fair value estimates of the Fusus developed technology and the Dedrone developed technology and IPR&D intangible assets acquired; (ii) a high degree of auditor judgment, subjectivity, and effort in performing procedures and evaluating management's significant assumptions related to the projected revenues, EBITDA margins, obsolescence technology factor, and discount rate for the Fusus developed technology intangible asset acquired and the direct development cost build-up for the Dedrone development technology and IPR&D intangible assets acquired; and (iii) the audit effort involved the use of professionals with specialized skill and knowledge.

Addressing the matter involved performing procedures and evaluating audit evidence in connection with forming our overall opinion on the consolidated financial statements. These procedures included testing the effectiveness of controls relating to the acquisition accounting, including controls over management's valuation of the Fusus developed technology and the Dedrone developed technology and IPR&D intangible assets acquired. These procedures also included, among others (i) reading the purchase agreements; (ii) testing management's process for developing the fair value estimates of the Fusus developed technology and the Dedrone developed technology and IPR&D intangible assets acquired; (iii) evaluating the appropriateness of the multi-period excess earnings method used by management for the Fusus developed technology and the cost approach used by management for the Dedrone developed technology and IPR&D; (iv) testing the completeness and accuracy of underlying data used by management in the valuation approaches; (v) and evaluating the reasonableness of significant assumptions used by management related to the projected revenues, EBITDA margins, obsolescence technology factor, and discount rate related to the Fusus developed technology and the direct development cost build-up related to the Dedrone developed technology and IPR&D intangible assets acquired. Evaluating the reasonableness of management's significant assumptions related to the projected revenues and EBITDA margins for the Fusus developed technology and the direct development cost build-up related to the Dedrone developed technology and IPR&D involved considering (i) the past performance of the acquired businesses, (ii) the consistency with external market and industry data, and (iii) whether the assumptions were consistent with evidence obtained in other areas of the audit. Evaluating the reasonableness of management's significant assumption related to obsolescence technology factor for the Fusus developed technology involved considering (i) the consistency with external market data, and (ii) whether the assumptions were consistent with evidence obtained in other areas of the audit. Professionals with specialized skill and knowledge were used to assist in the (i) evaluation of the appropriateness of the multi-period excess earnings method and reasonableness of the obsolescence technology factor and discount rate assumptions used in the valuation of the Fusus developed technology intangible asset acquired and (ii) evaluation of the appropriateness of the cost approach used in the valuation of the Dedrone developed technology and IPR&D intangible assets acquired.

Item 9. Changes in and Disagreements With Accountants on Accounting and Financial Disclosure None.

Item 9A. Controls and Procedures

Attached as exhibits to this Form 10-K are certifications of the Chief Executive Officer (as the principal executive officer) and Chief Financial Officer (as the principal financial and accounting officer), which are required in accordance with Rule 13a-14 of the Exchange Act. This section includes information concerning the controls and controls evaluation referred to in the certifications. This section should be read in conjunction with the certifications and the PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP audit report for a more complete understanding of the topics presented. PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP has independently assessed the effectiveness of our internal control over financial reporting as of December 31, 2024 and its report is included in Item 8 of this Form 10-K.

Evaluation of Disclosure Controls and Procedures

Our Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer are responsible for the evaluation of the effectiveness of our disclosure controls and procedures (as defined in Rules 13a-15(e) and 15d-15(e) under the Exchange Act) as of December 31, 2024, the end of the period covered by this Annual Report on Form 10-K. Our disclosure controls and procedures are designed to ensure that information we are required to disclose in reports that we file or submit under the Exchange Act, as amended, is recorded, processed, summarized and reported, within the time periods specified in the SEC's rules and forms, and that such information is accumulated and communicated to our management, including our Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer, as appropriate to allow timely decisions regarding required disclosure. Based on this evaluation, our Chief Executive Officer and our Chief Financial Officer have concluded that our disclosure controls and procedures were not effective as of December 31, 2024, as a result of the material weakness in internal control over financial reporting discussed below.

Notwithstanding the material weakness, and based on the additional analyses and other procedures management performed to ensure that its consolidated financial statements included in this Annual Report were prepared in accordance with U.S. GAAP, we have concluded that the consolidated financial statements and other financial information included in this Form 10-K fairly present in all material respects our financial condition, results of operations, and cash flows for the periods presented in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the U.S.

Management's Report on Internal Control over Financial Reporting

Management is responsible for establishing and maintaining adequate internal control over financial reporting (as defined in Rules 13a-15(f) and 15d-15(f) under the Exchange Act). Management has assessed the effectiveness of our internal control over financial reporting as of December 31, 2024 based on criteria established in Internal Control - Integrated Framework (2013) issued by the Committee of Sponsoring Organizations of the Treadway Commission (COSO). Based on this evaluation, management concluded that the Company's internal control over financial reporting was not effective as of December 31, 2024 as a result of the material weakness described below.

A material weakness is a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control over financial reporting, such that there is a reasonable possibility that a material misstatement of the annual or interim financial statements will not be prevented or detected on a timely basis. The Company did not design and maintain effective controls related to revenue recognition for its customer contracts. Specifically, the Company did not design and maintain controls to update its revenue recognition policies to reflect changes in product offerings or terms and conditions of arrangements with customers to ensure revenue was appropriately recognized and disclosed in accordance with U.S. GAAP. This material weakness resulted in immaterial errors related to revenue, related contract assets and liabilities, and the remaining performance obligations disclosure as of and for each of the interim and annual periods during 2022, 2023 and 2024. Additionally, the material weakness could result in a misstatement of the aforementioned accounts and disclosure that would result in a material misstatement to the annual or interim consolidated financial statements that would not be prevented or detected.

Our independent registered public accounting firm, PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, has audited the effectiveness of the Company's internal control over financial reporting as of December 31, 2024 as stated in their report which appears in Item 8 of this Form 10-K.

Remediation Plan

We are committed to maintaining strong internal control over financial reporting. In relation to the material weakness, management, with oversight from the Company's Audit Committee, is in the process of developing and implementing remediation plans in response to the identified material weakness described above. Specifically, the Company is in the process of designing and implementing control activities to ensure there is the appropriate periodic assessment of its revenue accounting policies, and that updates to the polices are made to reflect changes in product offerings or terms and conditions of the arrangements with customers. Additionally, the Company is designing and implementing additional monitoring controls for its existing and new revenue streams. This material weakness will not be considered remediated until the applicable controls operate for a sufficient period of time for management to conclude, through testing, that such controls are operating effectively. Management is committed to the remediation of the material weakness described above, as well as the continued improvement of our internal controls and will continue to review, optimize and enhance financial reporting controls and procedures.

Changes in Internal Control over Financial Reporting

There have been no changes in our internal control over financial reporting (as such term is defined in Rules 13a-15(f) and 15d-15(f) under the Exchange Act) during the fiscal quarter ended December 31, 2024, that have materially affected, or are reasonably likely to materially affect, our internal control over financial reporting.

Appendix EE

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR MINORITIES AND WOMEN

The provisions of this Appendix EE are hereby made a part of the document to which it is attached.

The Contractor shall comply with all federal, State and local statutory and constitutional anti-discrimination provisions. In addition, Local Law No. 14-2002, entitled "Participation by Minority Group Members and Women in Nassau County Contracts," governs all County Contracts as defined by such title and solicitations for bids or proposals for County Contracts. In accordance with Local Law 14-2002:

(a) The Contractor shall not discriminate against employees or applicants for employment because of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability or marital status in recruitment, employment, job assignments, promotions, upgradings, demotions, transfers, layoffs, terminations, and rates of pay or other forms of compensation. The Contractor will undertake or continue existing programs related to recruitment, employment, job assignments, promotions, upgradings, transfers, and rates of pay or other forms of compensation to ensure that minority group members and women are afforded equal employment opportunities without discrimination.

(b) At the request of the County contracting agency, the Contractor shall request each employment agency, labor union, or authorized representative of workers with which it has a collective bargaining or other agreement or understanding, to furnish a written statement that such employment agency, union, or representative will not discriminate on the basis of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability, or marital status and that such employment agency, labor union, or representative will affirmatively cooperate in the implementation of the Contractor's obligations herein.

(c) The Contractor shall state, in all solicitations or advertisements for employees, that, in the performance of the County Contract, all qualified applicants will be afforded equal employment opportunities without discrimination because of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability or marital status.

(d) The Contractor shall make Best Efforts to solicit active participation by certified minority or women-owned business enterprises ("Certified M/WBEs") as defined in Section 101 of Local Law No. 14-2002, including the granting of Subcontracts.

(e) The Contractor shall, in its advertisements and solicitations for Subcontractors, indicate its interest in receiving bids from Certified M/WBEs and the requirement that Subcontractors must be equal opportunity employers.

(f) Contractors must notify and receive approval from the respective Department Head prior to issuing any Subcontracts and, at the time of requesting such authorization, must submit a signed Best Efforts Checklist.

(g) Contractors for projects under the supervision of the County's Department of Public Works shall also submit a utilization plan listing all proposed Subcontractors so that, to the greatest extent feasible, all Subcontractors will be approved prior to commencement of work. Any additions or changes to the list of subcontractors under the utilization plan shall be approved by the Commissioner of the Department of Public Works when made. A copy of the utilization plan any additions or changes thereto shall be submitted by the Contractor to the Office of Minority Affairs simultaneously with the submission to the Department of Public Works.

(h) At any time after Subcontractor approval has been requested and prior to being granted, the contracting agency may require the Contractor to submit Documentation Demonstrating Best Efforts to Obtain Certified Minority or Women-owned Business Enterprises. In addition, the contracting agency may require the Contractor to submit such documentation at any time after Subcontractor approval when the contracting agency has reasonable cause to believe that the existing Best Efforts Checklist may be inaccurate. Within ten working days (10) of any such request by the contracting agency, the Contractor must submit Documentation.

(i) In the case where a request is made by the contracting agency or a Deputy County Executive acting on behalf of the contracting agency, the Contractor must, within two (2) working days of such request, submit evidence to demonstrate that it employed Best Efforts to obtain Certified M/WBE participation through proper documentation.

(j) Award of a County Contract alone shall not be deemed or interpreted as approval of all Contractor's Subcontracts and Contractor's fulfillment of Best Efforts to obtain participation by Certified M/WBEs.

ALL BIDS MUST BE F.O.B. DESTINATION AND INCLUDE DELIVERY WITHIN DOORS UNLESS OTHERWISE SPECIFIED.

BIDDER TITLE

(k) A Contractor shall maintain Documentation Demonstrating Best Efforts to Obtain Certified Minority or Women-owned Business Enterprises for a period of six (6) years. Failure to maintain such records shall be deemed failure to make Best Efforts to comply with this Appendix EE, evidence of false certification as M/WBE compliant or considered breach of the County Contract.

(l) The Contractor shall be bound by the provisions of Section 109 of Local Law No. 14-2002 providing for enforcement of violations as follows:

a. Upon receipt by the Executive Director of a complaint from a contracting agency that a County Contractor has failed to comply with the provisions of Local Law No. 14-2002, this Appendix EE or any other contractual provisions included in furtherance of Local Law No. 14-2002, the Executive Director will try to resolve the matter.

b. If efforts to resolve such matter to the satisfaction of all parties are unsuccessful, the Executive Director shall refer the matter, within thirty days (30) of receipt of the complaint, to the American Arbitration Association for proceeding thereon.

c. Upon conclusion of the arbitration proceedings, the arbitrator shall submit to the Executive Director his recommendations regarding the imposition of sanctions, fines or penalties. The Executive Director shall either (i) adopt the recommendation of the arbitrator (ii) determine that no sanctions, fines or penalties should be imposed or (iii) modify the recommendation of the arbitrator, provided that such modification shall not expand upon any sanction recommended or impose any new sanction, or increase the amount of any recommended fine or penalty. The Executive Director, within ten days (10) of receipt of the arbitrators award and recommendations, shall file a determination of such matter and shall cause a copy of such determination to be served upon the respondent by personal service or by certified mail return receipt requested. The award of the arbitrator, and the fines and penalties imposed by the Executive Director, shall be final determinations and may only be vacated or modified as provided in the civil practice law and rules ("CPLR").

(m) The contractor shall provide contracting agency with information regarding all subcontracts awarded under any County Contract, including the amount of compensation paid to each Subcontractor and shall complete all forms provided by the Executive Director or the Department Head relating to subcontractor utilization and efforts to obtain M/WBE participation..

Failure to comply with provisions (a) through (m) above, as ultimately determined by the Executive Director, shall be a material breach of the contract constituting grounds for immediate termination. Once a final determination of failure to comply has been reached by the Executive Director, the determination of whether to terminate a contract shall rest with the Deputy County Executive with oversight responsibility for the contracting agency.

Provisions (a), (b) and (c) shall not be binding upon Contractors or Subcontractors in the performance of work or the provision of services or any other activity that are unrelated, separate , or distinct from the County Contract as expressed by its terms.

INTELLITECH CORPORATION	NASSAU COUNTY
BY: _____	BY: _____
NAME: Kyle Indermuehle	NAME: _____

CONTRACT FOR SERVICES AND LICENSE AGREEMENT

THIS CONTRACT FOR SERVICES AND LICENSE AGREEMENT, made as of the date this agreement is last executed by the County (together with the schedules, appendices, attachments, and exhibits, if any, this "Agreement"), between Nassau County, a municipal corporation having its principal office at 1550 Franklin Avenue, Mineola, New York 11501 (the "County"), acting on behalf of the County Department of Shared Services Office of Purchasing, having its principal office at One West Street, Room 100 Mineola, NY 11501 (the "Department"),

- and –

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, the County desires to purchase the goods and services provided by the Intellitech as described in this Agreement;

WHEREAS, the Intellitech desires to sell the goods and services described in this Agreement;

WHEREAS, this is a purchase order contract within the intent and purview of Section 702 of the County Charter;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the premises and mutual covenants contained in this Agreement, the parties agree as follows:

1. Term. The initial term of this Agreement shall be for a period of three (3) years, commencing on August 10, 2023 and terminating on August 9, 2026 (the "Initial Term"), unless sooner terminated as provided for herein. Upon the expiration of the Term, this Agreement shall renew, upon mutual written consent of the Department and Intellitech, for successive three-year terms (each a "Renewal Term"). The Initial Term and any Renewal Term may be referred to herein generally as the "Term."

2. Definitions.

2.1 "Software" or "Products" means the Intellitech IMACS V (Incarceration Management and Cost-Recovery System) Jail Management software solution. The Software includes any and all Enhancement Releases, Maintenance Releases, or Patches delivered to the County under this Agreement. Items not supplied by Intellitech do not qualify as Products hereunder. The parties may list and include additional Software and/or Products on EXHIBIT A, attached hereto and incorporated by reference, which Exhibit A may be amended and replaced from time to time provided the same is signed by both parties hereto on the face of the Exhibit. For ease of reference, the parties agree to date the Exhibit.

2.2 "Enhancement Release" means a new release of the Software with new features and/or functionality or improved performance for which a separate new version upgrade fee is not charged.

2.3 "Maintenance Release" means a new release of the Software that incorporates Patches and/or other maintenance changes.

2.4 "Patch" means an interim piece of code released to supplement the Software that typically fixes High Priority Errors between Maintenance Releases.

2.5 "Object Code" shall mean the binary machine-readable version of the Software.

2.6 "Software Error" means an error in coding or logic that causes a program not to substantially function as described in the applicable Specifications. In the event Intellitech (or another software vendor) is unable to reproduce the Software Error at its facilities, Intellitech will, at the County's request, visit the County's premises. If it is determined that the problem was caused by hardware, software, services, or other items not supplied and not authorized by Intellitech, the County shall reimburse Intellitech for its labor costs for such on-site visit, at Intellitech's then current rates for consulting.

2.7 "Workaround" shall mean a temporary procedure, routine, solution or fix that restores operational capability without substantially compromising the performance of the Software or integrity of the operating system or data. A Workaround will not require recurring system or workstation downtime. A Workaround gives the County the ability to achieve substantially the same functionality as would be obtained without the Software Error. Workarounds may include changes to configuration parameters or operational processes. To be acceptable, it must be an action, or series of actions, that can reasonably be accomplished by an average user without excessive impact to other capabilities and/or impeding work or process flow.

2.8 Other Defined Terms. Except as expressly defined in this Section 2, capitalized terms shall have the meaning ascribed to them in the body of this Agreement.

3. License, Services, and Scope of Work.

3.1 License and Services. During the Term of this Agreement, provided County pays the License Fees set forth herein and is not otherwise in breach of this Agreement:

(a) Intellitech shall support the Software by providing the services described in the following paragraphs of this Section 3 (the "Services"). Support and maintenance services are subject to change at Intellitech's option provided that support and maintenance terms are so modified for all clients of Intellitech with similarly supported Software. Intellitech has no obligation to correct or support errors arising from County's misuse, improper use, alteration (other than by an Intellitech representative), or damage to the Software, including, without limitation, by electrical power failures or surges, or the County's combining or merging the Software with any hardware or software not identified as compatible by Intellitech, or any other Errors not resulting from normal wear and tear. If it is found that the Error is not related to the Software and Intellitech is requested to correct the error, the County will be billed at the then current hourly rate for support.

(b) Intellitech shall provide the County with a renewed limited, personal, non-exclusive, non-transferable, non-assignable Object Code license to use the Software for County's internal business use only on behalf of the Department during the applicable Term (the "License").

3.2 Technical Support. Intellitech will provide telephone technical support regarding use of the Software and response to errors to the County's support contacts designated under Section 3.8. Intellitech technical support representatives will be available by telephone Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. ET. During off-hours, in connection with high priority situations as described in Section 3.3 below, an Intellitech technical support representative is available 24/7/365 and will endeavor to return the County's call within two (2) hours.

3.4 Subsequent Release(s). During the Term of this Agreement, Intellitech will send Enhancement Releases and Maintenance Releases to the County when made generally commercially available by Intellitech to its clients. Each Enhancement Release, Maintenance Release, and Patch delivered by Intellitech under this Agreement is subject to the provisions of the License Agreement and shall be automatically deemed to be covered by all applicable Product license terms. From time to time at Intellitech's discretion, updates to the Intellitech software and release notes documenting the updates will be developed and provided to County. All updates and their accompanying release notes shall be subject to the terms and conditions of this Agreement and the License and shall be deemed licensed Intellitech Software thereunder. The term "update" does not include new Intellitech software products or separate modules or functions that are separately licensed and priced.

3.5 Preventative Maintenance. Intellitech may, at its sole option, schedule technical service telephone calls or visits for the purpose of the Software inspection or preventative maintenance.

3.6 County Notification. Intellitech's obligation to provide the assistance specified in this Section 3 is conditioned on the County's prompt notification to Intellitech of the problem that provides Intellitech with information sufficient to identify the problem. Such information may include, but not be limited to, error diagnostic messages, diagnostic memory dumps, operator console logs, data file dumps, application program listings, and a written explanation of the problem.

3.7 County Cooperation. The County acknowledges that Intellitech may not be able to resolve an error if the County does not cooperate with and assist Intellitech in resolving the error.

3.8 Support Contracts. Intellitech shall only be required to receive communication from a County designated "support contact." The County will designate authorized support contacts and agrees that each support contact will be knowledgeable in all aspects of the County's operating environment in which the Software is being used. The County will provide all requested information about each of its support contacts upon contract signing.

4. Payment.

4.1 Maximum Consideration. The Maximum Amount to be paid to Intellitech as full consideration for the License and Services performed under this Agreement during the Initial Term shall not exceed FIVE HUNDRED FIFTY FOUR THOUSAND THREE HUNDRED AND TWENTY FIVE DOLLARS ($554,325.00) (the "Maximum Amount"). For each Renewal Term, the Maximum Amount shall be increased by Three Percent (3%) of the current Maximum Amount. The Maximum Amount is inclusive of any and all expenses and shall be payable as pursuant to APPENDIX B, attached hereto an incorporated herein by reference. All consideration that may be paid under this Agreement, i.e., the"Maximum Amount", may also be referred to as or "License Fees" as the context permits.

4.2 Partial Encumbrance. Intellitech acknowledges that the County will partially encumber funds to be applied toward the License Fees (as described in Section 4.1) throughout the Intital Term of this Agreement. Intellitech further acknowledges that the initial encumbrance authorized upon approval of this Agreement shall be ONE HUNDRED EIGHTY-FOUR THOUSAND SEVEN HUNDRED AND SEVENTY FIVE DOLLARS ($184,775.00). Thereafter, the Department shall notify Intellitech of the availability of additional monies, which written notice shall include the amount encumbered. Such notification shall serve as notice to proceed.

4.3 Terms of Payment.

(a) Timing of Payments. The License Fees shall be payable in equal consecutive annual installments, in advance of the provision of services, within a reasonable time of receipt of invoice by the County, and the County shall use best efforts to make such payments by August 10th of each year during a Term, as delineated on APPENDIX B.

(b) Vouchers: Voucher Review, Approval and Audit. All payments shall be made in advance and in accordance with 4.3(a) above and shall be contingent upon (i) Intellitech submitting vouchers in a form satisfactory to the County that: (a) states with reasonable specificity the Services to be provided and the payment requested as consideration for such Services, (b) certifies that the Services to be rendered and the payment requested are in accordance with this Agreement, and (c) is accompanied by documentation satisfactory to the County supporting the amount claimed, and (ii) review, approval, and audit of the voucher by the Department and/or the County Comptroller or his or her duly designated representative (the "Comptroller").

4.6 No Duplication of Payments. Payments under this Agreement shall not duplicate payments for any work performed or to be performed under other agreements between the parties and any funding source including the county.

4.7 Payments in Connection with Termination or Notice of Termination. Unless a provision of this Agreement expressly states otherwise, payments to Intellitech following the termination of this Agreement shall not exceed payments made as consideration for the unpaid amounts of the License Fees for the then current Term. The parties acknowledge that that the License Fees are paid in equal annual installments in advance of each year of the Term and shall not be refunded or prorated if the County terminates this Agreement prior to the end of the year for which the License Fees were paid. The Contractor will receive no payments respecting any Services performed after the Contractor received notice of termination from the County, except that to the extent that the County has not timely paid the License Fees for the current year, it shall pay to Intellitech the License Fees due and owing for the current year. SOFTWARE ERROR CORRECTION GUIDELINES, PROCEDURES, PRIORITIES, AND SUPPORT RESPONSE

SOFTWARE ERROR CORRECTION GUIDELINES, PROCEDURES

(i) All Software Errors reported by County employees shall be resolved as set forth below. Initial response by Intellitech will be based upon the priority assigned by the County's supervisor. Resolution response will be based upon the priority jointly agreed on by Intellitech and the County. The County will specify a central contact person at each site and a County coordinator who will be the focal point for all activity.

(ii) If the County determines a Software Error exists, the County shall notify Intellitech by telephone to Intellitech's support line at (330) 707-1090. The County will set forth the defects noted with specificity requested by Intellitech. Upon notification of a reported Software Error, Intellitech shall attempt to reproduce and verify the error and, if so verified, will correct the Software Error(s) in accordance with the Priorities and Support Response Section, below. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Intellitech may, at its discretion, reasonably applied, correct Low Priority Software Errors in a future Update to the Intellitech Software.

(iii) "Normal Technical Services Hours" are 8:00a.m. through 5:00p.m. (EST), Monday through Friday, excluding holidays. "Normal Intellitech Office Hours" are 8:00a.m. through 5:00p.m. (EST), Monday through Friday, excluding holidays.

(iv) The main support line will be answered by an automated attendant at all hours. If a Technical Services representative is available, the call will be answered and handled immediately. If all representatives are busy, the County will be given the option to leave a message. All other problem reports will operate on a call-back basis after leaving a message in the support voice mailbox.

(v) During Normal Technical Services Hours, each Software Error report or enhancement request will be assigned an issue number. This number should be used for all subsequent inquiries relating to the original Software Error report. Problems reported after Normal Technical Services Hours (that are not Critical Priority or High Priority) will be logged and assigned an issue number the next business day.

(vi) The County shall provide Intellitech with a high-speed data connection (as more fully defined in Section 9.0 of Addendum A-1 Statement of Work) to each physical area in which a Server or interface equipment is located to enable Intellitech to access, diagnose, update or install a Workaround to the system. The County shall additionally provide a voice telephone line located near such areas to allow simultaneous voice and data access.

(vii) If the problem is not a Critical Priority Problem, Intellitech will operate on a call-back basis. If requested or specified in the response time criteria below, an Intellitech representative will return the call in a manner consistent with the priority and order in which the call was received. The County will make every effort to respond to Intellitech in a timely fashion when requests are made for follow-up calls or additional documentation on the reported problem.

PRIORITIES AND SUPPORT RESPONSE

(1) Critical Priority:

(i) Hours of Availability: 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year.

(ii) Description: A critical Software Error, which severely impacts the ability of the County to book in or release inmates. These Software Errors are:

1. Software Server software lockup (in relation to Intellitech software only; any error originating in software outside of Intellitech ownership or control does not apply)
2. Data corruption caused by Intellitech Software
3. Intellitech Software is inoperable due to one of the following conditions:

   - Inability to perform headcount Information.

(iii) Initial Response: Intellitech will respond with a call back within thirty (30) minutes during Normal Technical Services Hours, and after Normal Technical Services Hours, Intellitech will respond with a call back within two (2) hours. (iv) Resolution Response: Intellitech will work continuously to provide the County with a Workaround solution or to completely resolve the problem.

(v) Notification: It is the responsibility of the County to notify Intellitech of a Critical Priority issue. (2) High Priority:

(i) Hours of Availability: 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year.

similar problems. These also do not include questions or inquiries regarding the operation of the software or its installation and training.

(iii) Initial Response: Intellitech will respond with a call back within one (1) hour during Normal Technical Services Hours, and after Normal Technical Services Hours, Intellitech will respond with a call back within an average of two (2) hours. An event of Force Majeure, or other delays beyond Intellitech' reasonable control, including, but not limited to interruption of telephone or cellular telephone service, or paging services caused by the respective carrier's technical difficulties, shall not constitute a failure of Intellitech to respond within the time limits for High Priority issues, and shall not constitute a Default under this Agreement.

(iv) Resolution Response: Intellitech will provide a resolution or Workaround for the County within 24 hours. (Providing a Workaround would usually result in lowering the priority of the problem.) Unless a reasonable Workaround is promptly provided, Intellitech will work diligently to resolve the problem as soon as reasonably feasible. If a reasonable Workaround is available, Intellitech will provide a problem resolution in the form of an Upgrade or modification to the Software in a future update.

(v) Notification: It is the responsibility of the County to notify Intellitech of a High Priority issue. Intellitech will notify the local County supervisor when a Workaround has been provided or the problem has been resolved. (3) Medium Priority:

(i) Hours of Availability: Normal Technical Service Hours.

(ii) Description: A Software Error which is not Critical, and would be a high priority, except that there is a reasonable Workaround. These include but are not limited to:

(1) Reporting, errors or calculation problems.

(2) Questions or inquiries relating to Intellitech Software functionality, system administration, or installation.

(iii) Initial Response: Intellitech will respond within an average of twenty-four (24) hours during Normal Technical Services Hours, or on the next business day.

Intellitech will provide the County a monthly list of outstanding issues and resolutions showing all problems reported during the period or unresolved as of the date of the report.

(4) Low Priority:

(i) Hours of Availability: Normal Technical Service Hours.

(ii) Description: All other software or documentation errors not described above. These include but are not limited to:
   (1) Documentation inaccuracies
   (2) Cosmetic issues
   (3) Misspellings

(iii) Initial Response: Intellitech will not respond to these items unless specifically requested to do so at the time of the request. If a reply is requested, Intellitech will respond within an average of twenty-four (24) hours during Normal Technical Services Hours, or on the next business day.

(iv) Resolution Response: Intellitech will correct Low Priority Problems in upcoming releases of the software or documentation.

(v) Notification: It is the responsibility of the County to notify Intellitech of a Low Priority issue. Intellitech will notify the local County supervisor when a Workaround has been provided or the problem has been resolved. Intellitech will provide the County a monthly list of outstanding issues and resolutions showing all problems reported during the period or unresolved as of the date of the report.

Appendix EE
Equal Employment Opportunities for Minorities and Women

The provisions of this Appendix EE are hereby made a part of the document to which it is attached.

The Contractor shall comply with all federal, State and local statutory and constitutional anti-discrimination provisions. In addition, Local Law No. 14-2002, entitled "Participation by Minority Group Members and Women in Nassau County Contracts," governs all County Contracts as defined herein and solicitations for bids or proposals for County Contracts. In accordance with Local Law 14-2002:

a) The Contractor shall not discriminate against employees or applicants for employment because of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability or marital status in recruitment, employment, job assignments, promotions, upgrades, demotions, transfers, layoffs, terminations, and rates of pay or other forms of compensation. The Contractor will undertake or continue existing programs related to recruitment, employment, job assignments, promotions, upgrading, transfers, and rates of pay or other forms of compensation to ensure that minority group members and women are afforded equal employment opportunities without discrimination.

b) At the request of the County contracting agency, the Contractor shall request each employment agency, labor union, or authorized representative of workers with which it has a collective bargaining or other agreement or understanding, to furnish a written statement that such employment agency, union, or representative will not discriminate on the basis of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability, or marital status and that such employment agency, labor union, or representative will affirmatively cooperate in the implementation of the Contractor's obligations herein.

c) The Contractor shall state, in all solicitations or advertisements for employees, that, in the performance of the County Contract, all qualified applicants will be afforded equal employment opportunities without discrimination because of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability or marital status.

d) The Contractor shall make best efforts to solicit active participation by certified minority or women-owned business enterprises ("Certified M/WBEs") as defined in Section 101 of Local Law No. 14-2002, for the purpose of granting of Subcontracts.

e) The Contractor shall, in its advertisements and solicitations for Subcontractors, indicate its interest in receiving bids from Certified M/WBEs and the requirement that Subcontractors must be equal opportunity employers.

f) Contractors must notify and receive approval from the respective Department Head prior to issuing any Subcontracts and, at the time of requesting such authorization, must submit a signed Best Efforts Checklist.

g) Contractors for projects under the supervision of the County's Department of Public Works shall also submit a utilization plan listing all proposed Subcontractors so that, to the greatest extent feasible, all Subcontractors will be approved prior to commencement of work. Any additions or changes to the list of subcontractors under the utilization plan shall be approved by the Commissioner of the Department of Public Works when made. A copy of the utilization plan any additions or changes thereto shall be submitted by the Contractor to the Office of Minority Affairs simultaneously with the submission to the Department of Public Works.

h) At any time after Subcontractor approval has been requested and prior to being granted, the contracting agency may require the Contractor to submit Documentation

Demonstrating Best Efforts to Obtain Certified Minority or Women-owned Business Enterprises. In addition, the contracting agency may require the Contractor to submit such documentation at any time after Subcontractor approval when the contracting agency has reasonable cause to believe that the existing Best Efforts Checklist may be inaccurate. Within ten working days (10) of any such request by the contracting agency, the Contractor must submit Documentation.

i) In the case where a request is made by the contracting agency or a Deputy County Executive acting on behalf of the contracting agency, the Contractor must, within two (2) working days of such request, submit evidence to demonstrate that it employed Best Efforts to obtain Certified M/WBE participation through proper documentation.

j) Award of a County Contract alone shall not be deemed or interpreted as approval of all Contractor's Subcontracts and Contractor's fulfillment of Best Efforts to obtain participation by Certified M/WBEs.

k) A Contractor shall maintain Documentation Demonstrating Best Efforts to Obtain Certified Minority or Women-owned Business Enterprises for a period of six (6) years. Failure to maintain such records shall be deemed failure to make Best Efforts to comply with this Appendix EE, evidence of false certification as M/WBE compliant or considered breach of the County Contract.

l) The Contractor shall be bound by the provisions of Section 109 of Local Law No. 14-2002 providing for enforcement of violations as follows:

a. Upon receipt by the Executive Director of a complaint from a contracting agency that a County Contractor has failed to comply with the provisions of Local Law No. 14-2002, this Appendix EE or any other contractual provisions included in furtherance of Local Law No. 14-2002, the Executive Director will try to resolve the matter.

b. If efforts to resolve such matter to the satisfaction of all parties are unsuccessful, the Executive Director shall refer the matter, within thirty days (30) of receipt of the complaint, to the American Arbitration Association for proceeding thereon.

c. Upon conclusion of the arbitration proceedings, the arbitrator shall submit to the Executive Director his recommendations regarding the imposition of sanctions, fines or penalties. The Executive Director shall either (i) adopt the recommendation of the arbitrator (ii) determine that no sanctions, fines or penalties should be imposed or (iii) modify the recommendation of the arbitrator, provided that such modification shall not expand upon any sanction recommended or impose any new sanction, or increase the amount of any recommended fine or penalty. The Executive Director, within ten days (10) of receipt of the arbitrators award and recommendations, shall file a determination of such matter and shall cause a copy of such determination to be served upon the respondent by personal service or by certified mail return receipt requested. The award of the arbitrator, and the fines and penalties imposed by the Executive Director, shall be final determinations and may only be vacated or modified as provided in the civil practice law and rules ("CPLR").

(m) The contractor shall provide contracting agency with information regarding all subcontracts awarded under any County Contract, including the amount of compensation paid to each Subcontractor and shall complete all forms provided by the Executive Director or the Department Head relating to subcontractor utilization and efforts to obtain M/WBE participation.

Failure to comply with provisions (a) through (m) above, as ultimately determined by the Executive Director, shall be a material breach of the contract constituting grounds for immediate termination. Once a final determination of failure to comply has been reached by the Executive Director, the determination of whether to terminate a contract shall rest with the Deputy County Executive with oversight responsibility for the contracting agency.

Provisions (a), (b) and (c) shall not be binding upon Contractors or Subcontractors in the performance of work or the provision of services or any other activity that are unrelated, separate, or distinct from the County Contract as expressed by its terms.

The requirements of the provisions (a), (b) and (c) shall not apply to any employment or application for employment outside of this County or solicitations or advertisements therefor or any existing programs of affirmative action regarding employment outside of this County and the effect of contract provisions required by these provisions (a), (b) and (c) shall be so limited.

The Contractor shall include provisions (a), (b) and (c) in every Subcontract in such a manner that these provisions shall be binding upon each Subcontractor as to work in connection with the County Contract.

All requirements performed by the Contractor will be subject to inspection and approval by an authorized designated representative of Nassau County.

Employees of the Contractor, while on service call, shall carry identification badges or cards and shall be instructed to submit same to scrutiny upon request of security or supervisory personnel of Nassau County.

NON-ASSIGNMENT: In accordance with Section 138 of the State Finance Law, the contract may not be assigned by the Contractor or its right, title or interest therein assigned, transferred, conveyed, sublet or otherwise disposed of without the previous consent, in writing, of Nassau County and any attempts to assign the contract without the County's written consent are null and void.

NON PERFORMANCE
The Contractor agrees that in the event any of the services provided for under the terms of this contract should in any way be omitted or unsatisfactorily performed by the Contractor and/or his employees, the county shall so notify the contractor verbally and follow with a written notification of the deficient services for immediate correction. In the event the Contractor does not correct the deficient services after receipt of written notification, the Nassau County Department concerned will deduct a percentage based on the work not performed or performed unsatisfactorily from the Contractor's claim for the period covered. If the Contractor continues to omit or unsatisfactorily perform the required services, the County will arrange for the work to be done by another contractor and the cost of such work shall be deducted from any monies due or that may become due to the Contractor.

ACCESS CLAUSE: Contractor, including its satellites, offices and/or subcontractors, if any, shall maintain full and complete books and records of accounts pertaining to this agreement, in accordance with accepted accounting practices and such other records as may be reasonably prescribed by the County of Nassau. Such records will be available in accordance with the above for the period of six (6) years after the furnishing of any of the services described in this contract.

TERMINATION PREROGATIVE: The Director reserves the right to cancel the Blanket Order by giving not less than thirty (30) days written notice that, on or after a date therein specified, the contract shall be deemed terminated and cancelled.

VENDOR RESPONSIBILITY CRITERIA: The Director of Purchasing reserves the right before making an award to make investigations as to whether or not the qualifications, services, facilities or items offered by the bidder meet the requirements set forth herein and are ample and sufficient to ensure the proper performance in the event of an award. The bidder must be prepared, if requested by the Director of Purchasing, to present evidence of experience, ability, financial standing, as well as a statement as to plant, machinery, trained personnel and capacity for the rendition of the service on which the vendor is bidding. Upon request of the Director, the successful bidder shall file certification from the manufacturer relative to authorization, delivery, service and guarantees. If it is found that the conditions of the bid are not complied with or that the services or equipment proposed to be furnished do not meet the requirements called for, or that the qualifications, financial standing, or facilities are not satisfactory, the Director may reject such bids. It is distinctly understood, however, that nothing in the forgoing shall mean or imply that it is obligatory upon the Director to make any examinations before an award; and it is further understood that, if such examination is made, it in no way relieves the bidder from fulfilling all requirements and conditions of the bid.

IMPORTANT NOTE: The Director reserves the right to accept or reject any and all bids, or separable portions of offers, and waive technicalities, irregularities, and omissions if the Director determines the best interests of the County of Nassau will be served. The Director, in his sole discretion, may accept or reject illegible, incomplete or vague bids and his decision shall be final. A conditional or revocable bid which clearly communicates the terms or limitations of acceptance may be considered and contract award may be made in compliance with the bidder's conditional or revocable terms in the offer. Prior to award, the Director reserves the right to seek clarifications, request bid revisions, or to request any information deemed necessary for proper evaluation of bids from all bidders deemed to be eligible for contract award. Failure to provide requested information may result in rejection of the bid.

NY STATE LABOR LAW

If any portion of work being Bid is subject to the prevailing wage rate provisions of the Labor Law, the following shall apply:

a. "Public Works" and "Building Services" - Definitions
i. Public Works Labor Law Article 8 applies to county contracts for public improvements in which laborers, workers or mechanics are employed on a "public works" project (distinguished from public "procurement" or "service" contracts).

ii. Building Services Labor Law Article 9 applies to Contracts for building service work with the county, that: (i) involve the care or maintenance of an existing building, or (ii) involve the transportation of office furniture or equipment to or from such building, or (iii) involve the transportation and delivery of fossil fuel to such building, and (iv) the principal purpose of which is to furnish services through use of building service employees.

b. Prevailing Wage Rate Applicable to Bid Submissions A copy of the applicable prevailing wage rates to be paid or provided are annexed to the Bid Documents. Bidders must submit Bids which are based upon the prevailing hourly wages, and supplements in cash or equivalent benefits (i.e., fringe benefits and any cash or non-cash compensation which are not wages, as defined by law) that equal or exceed the applicable prevailing wage rate(s) for the location where the work is to be performed. Bidders may not submit Bids based upon hourly wage rates and supplements below the applicable prevailing wage rates as established by the New York State Department of Labor. Bids that fail to comply with this requirement will be disqualified. Information indicating that prevailing wages are not being paid on a public works project will be forwarded to the New York State Department of Labor for investigation. Willful violations of the prevailing wage provisions of the Labor Law may result in debarment from the bidding and award of public contracts.

c. Wage Rate Payments / Changes During Contract Term The wages to be paid under any resulting Contract shall not be less than the prevailing rate of wages and supplements as set forth by law. It is required that the Contractor keep informed of all changes in the Prevailing Wage Rates during the Contract term that apply to the classes of individuals supplied by the Contractor on any projects resulting from this Contract, subject to the provisions of the Labor Law. Contractor is solely liable for and must pay such required prevailing wage adjustments during the Contract term as required by law.

d. Public Posting & Certified Payroll Records In compliance with Article 8, Section 220 of the New York State Labor Law:

i. Posting The Contractor must publicly post on the work site, in a prominent and accessible place, a legible schedule of the prevailing wage rates and supplements.

ii. Payroll Records Contractors and Subcontractors must keep original payrolls or transcripts subscribed and affirmed as true under the penalties of perjury as required by law. For public works contracts over $25,000 where the Contractor maintains no regular place of business in New York State, such records must be kept at the work site. For building services contracts, such records must be kept at the work site while work is being performed.

iii. Submission of Certified Payroll Transcripts for Public Works Contracts Only Contractors and Subcontractors on public works projects must submit monthly payroll transcripts to the project manager for a public works project.

iv. Records Retention Contractors and Subcontractors must preserve copies of such certified transcripts for a period of three years from the date of completion of work on the awarded contract.

If this contract is for Building Service Work as defined in Article 9 of the Labor Law, State law prohibits other political subdivisions and districts within the County from making purchases pursuant to this agreement.

The County Living Wage Law, Title 57, Section 3(a)(i), states: employers who provide building services shall pay their employees no less than the living wage, as required by this section, or the prevailing wage, whichever is greater. In future bidding procedures, the requirement should be "vendor must pay the prevailing wage, or the County Living Wage, whichever is greater", or similar language.

Appendix EE

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR MINORITIES AND WOMEN

The provisions of this Appendix EE are hereby made a part of the document to which it is attached.

The Contractor shall comply with all federal, State and local statutory and constitutional anti-discrimination provisions. In addition, Local Law No. 14-2002, entitled "Participation by Minority Group Members and Women in Nassau County Contracts," governs all County Contracts as defined by such title and solicitations for bids or proposals for County Contracts. In accordance with Local Law 14-2002:

(a) The Contractor shall not discriminate against employees or applicants for employment because of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability or marital status in recruitment, employment, job assignments, promotions, upgradings, demotions, transfers, layoffs, terminations, and rates of pay or other forms of compensation. The Contractor will undertake or continue existing programs related to recruitment, employment, job assignments, promotions, upgradings, transfers, and rates of pay or other forms of compensation to ensure that minority group members and women are afforded equal employment opportunities without discrimination.

(b) At the request of the County contracting agency, the Contractor shall request each employment agency, labor union, or authorized representative of workers with which it has a collective bargaining or other agreement or understanding, to furnish a written statement that such employment agency, union, or representative will not discriminate on the basis of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability, or marital status and that such employment agency, labor union, or representative will affirmatively cooperate in the implementation of the Contractor's obligations herein.

(c) The Contractor shall state, in all solicitations or advertisements for employees, that, in the performance of the County Contract, all qualified applicants will be afforded equal employment opportunities without discrimination because of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability or marital status.

(d) The Contractor shall make Best Efforts to solicit active participation by certified minority or women-owned business enterprises ("Certified M/WBEs") as defined in Section 101 of Local Law No. 14-2002, including the granting of Subcontracts.

(e) The Contractor shall, in its advertisements and solicitations for Subcontractors, indicate its interest in receiving bids from Certified M/WBEs and the requirement that Subcontractors must be equal opportunity employers.

(f) Contractors must notify and receive approval from the respective Department Head prior to issuing any Subcontracts and, at the time of requesting such authorization, must submit a signed Best Efforts Checklist.

(g) Contractors for projects under the supervision of the County's Department of Public Works shall also submit a utilization plan listing all proposed Subcontractors so that, to the greatest extent feasible, all Subcontractors will be approved prior to commencement of work. Any additions or changes to the list of subcontractors under the utilization plan shall be approved by the Commissioner of the Department of Public Works when made. A copy of the utilization plan any additions or changes thereto shall be submitted by the Contractor to the Office of Minority Affairs simultaneously with the submission to the Department of Public Works.

(h) At any time after Subcontractor approval has been requested and prior to being granted, the contracting agency may require the Contractor to submit Documentation Demonstrating Best Efforts to Obtain Certified Minority or Women-owned Business Enterprises. In addition, the contracting agency may require the Contractor to submit such documentation at any time after Subcontractor approval when the contracting agency has reasonable cause to believe that the existing Best Efforts Checklist may be inaccurate. General Terms and Conditions

Pricing. Our prices may change at any time without notice. Prices we quote are valid for 30 days, unless we state otherwise in writing. If no price has been specified or quoted to Customer, the price will be the product price in effect at the time we accept the order. Customer is responsible for standard delivery and handling charges. If applicable, and our product prices do not include such charges unless expressly stated. If we pay such charges, we will add these to the invoice. Shipments are FOB Destination (CIP Incoterms 2010) point of shipment and all title to the equipment and risk of loss and injury shall pass to the Customer upon the transfer of the Equipment to the delivery address.

Payment and Credit Terms. Unless otherwise agreed to in writing, all Customer payment terms will be set at net 30 days after the date of invoice, subject to credit approval. For precut sales, including parts for service orders, METROHM USA will invoice Customer for the product price and all other charges due when we ship the products to Customer. For services, METROHM USA will invoice Customer when the service is scheduled to begin. METROHM USA may require Customer to provide a signed credit application prior to establishing payment terms. We reserve the right to require Customer to make full or partial payment in advance, or provide other security to our satisfaction, if we believe in good faith that Customer's financial condition does not justify extension of net terms otherwise specified. Customer will make all payments in the currency specified in our invoice. Please see invoice document for payment remittance information.

Late Payment and Collections. Customer may be required to pay interest on any undisputed amounts past due at the greater of a rate of 1.5% per month or the maximum amount allowable by applicable law. METROHM USA reserves and retains a security interest in the Equipment shipped to Customer, until all amounts due have been paid in full. In the event of account non-payment, placement with a collections agency, or other action necessary to collect on a past due balance, Customer agrees to reimburse collection costs, legal fees, and court cost incurred by METROHM USA in connection therewith. We also reserve the right to cancel or stop delivery of products in transit and withhold shipments in whole or in part if Customer does not pay us when due, or if Customer otherwise does not perform its obligations.

Taxes. METROHM USA standard prices do not include applicable sales, services, use, VAT, or similar taxes. The amount of any such tax which METROHM USA may be required to pay or collect will be added to the invoice and paid by Customer unless Customer has furnished a valid tax exemption certificate acceptable to the taxing jurisdiction prior to shipment. If an exemption certificate provided to METROHM USA by Customer is subsequently, through no fault of METROHM USA, determined to be invalid, METROHM USA will attempt to acquire an acceptable certificate, notarized affidavit of exempt use or other necessary documentation from Customer. Failure to furnish a valid exemption certificate, notarized affidavit or other necessary documentation in a timely manner, the previously unpaid sales, use or similar excise tax will be billed to and paid by Customer.

Regulatory Change or Tariff Adjustment. In the event of any increase in tariffs, duties, or other governmental charges affecting the cost of goods or materials, the Seller will pass cost to buyer and buyer agrees to pay. Seller will add tariffs cost at incurred rate to invoice. Payment terms will remain as specified in the original agreement unless otherwise agreed upon in writing. The Seller is not responsible for any delays due to the imposition of tariffs, duties, or changes in laws after the purchase order was executed.

Cancellations and Changes. Once an order is placed, Customer cannot cancel or change it without METROHM USA's written consent. If an agreed change is made, a formal email confirmation will be sent with any agreed upon changes. If Customer cancels the order other than as permitted by consent, Customer must pay METROHM USA all amounts due pursuant to the order. If the order is cancelled for any reason Customer will be required to pay METROHM USA for reasonable costs and expenses including engineering expenses and all commitments to METROHM USA 's suppliers incurred prior to METROHM USA receiving notice of cancellation. The minimum cancellation charge is 25% of the price.

Product Delivery. We will ship products to the destination Customer specifies in its order, FOB destination (CIP Incoterms 2010). Unless otherwise specified by Customer, Customer (i) gives its consent for METROHM USA to arrange for carriage for all products supplied on Customer's behalf; and (ii) waive Customer's right to arrange carriage or to give any specific instructions regarding carriage. METROHM USA will not provide any carrier invoices or payment terms to Customer. METROHM USA may, at our discretion, make partial shipments and invoice each shipment separately. Shipping dates are considered approximate only, and we will not be liable for any loss or damages resulting from any delay in delivery. Customer may not refuse delivery or otherwise be relieved of any obligations as the result of such delay. If delivery of a product to Customer is delayed due to any cause within Customer's control, we will place the delayed products in storage at Customer's risk and expense. Products shipped by METROHM USA selected carriers will be insured under METROHM USA policy and any payments for loss will be paid to METROHM USA.

Collect Shipments. Customer may select its own carrier and charge shipping to Customer's collect account instead of accepting the METROHM USA delivery terms above, where such purchase shall be under FOB origin (FOB Incoterms 2010). METROHM USA will not be responsible for any shipping or handling damages. METROHM USA will not make any claims on Customer's behalf for any damages caused by the carrier selected by Customer. Customer will need to open its own claim with its selected carrier. METROHM USA does not provide third parties direct access to its insurance or give additional rights to its insurance, such as naming additional insured parties. There is a 15% surcharge added to collect shipments to cover shipping materials, handling, and coordination with collect carriers.

Export Controls. Customer agrees that its purchase of products from METROHM USA is for its own use, and that METROHM USA products shall not be shipped or exported to any other country. Products purchased or received under these Terms and Conditions may not be sold, delivered, exported and transmitted, either directly or via third parties, to territories, entities, or individuals subject to sanctions imposed by international organizations (e.g. United Nations, OSCE and the EU). Customer agrees to comply with all applicable export laws, restrictions and regulations, including the United States Export Administration Regulations (specifically 15 C.F.R. chapter VII, subchapter C as well as part 738 (the Commerce Control List) and part 746 (Embargoes and Other Special Controls) thereof) and shall indemnify METROHM USA for any violations thereof.

Product Returns. METROHM USA customer support will authorize and approve return of any product that is damaged or defective on receipt, provided Customer contacts customer support within five days after receiving the product, and provided such damage or defect has not been caused by any failure by Customer or the carrier to handle or store products using reasonable care or as otherwise indicated on the label. If Customer does not contact us within this five-day period, we will deem the product to be accepted, and any warranty rights will still apply. METROHM USA will determine the best solution to provide replacement product in case of carrier damage or loss. Items returned for Customer convenience (and not for product failure or warranty issues) will be subject to a 25% restocking fee ($100 minimum) plus 100% of services delivered, based on the sale price. Customer must contact METROHM USA customer support (via customersupport@METROHMUSA.com) for a return authorization Number (RAN) within 14 days of shipment from METROHM USA to be eligible for a return credit. Customer must return items within 10 days of receiving RAN. Item must be in new and unused condition, packed in original packaging and container, and include all manuals, peripherals and accessories. If METROHM USA exercises our discretion to authorize a product for return, the product must arrive at our facilities in a condition satisfactory for resale. We do not credit shipping charges. Appendix EE

The provisions of this Appendix EE are hereby made a part of the document to which it is attached.

The Contractor shall comply with all federal, State and local statutory and constitutional anti-discrimination provisions. In addition, Local Law No. 14-2002, entitled "Participation by Minority Group Members and Women in Nassau County Contracts," governs all County Contracts as defined by such title and solicitations for bids or proposals for County Contracts. In accordance with Local Law 14-2002:

(a) The Contractor shall not discriminate against employees or applicants for employment because of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability or marital status in recruitment, employment, job assignments, promotions, upgradings, demotions, transfers, layoffs, terminations, and rates of pay or other forms of compensation. The Contractor will undertake or continue existing programs related to recruitment, employment, job assignments, promotions, upgradings, transfers, and rates of pay or other forms of compensation to ensure that minority group members and women are afforded equal employment opportunities without discrimination.

(b) At the request of the County contracting agency, the Contractor shall request each employment agency, labor union, or authorized representative of workers with which it has a collective bargaining or other agreement or understanding, to furnish a written statement that such employment agency, union, or representative will not discriminate on the basis of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability, or marital status and that such employment agency, labor union, or representative will affirmatively cooperate in the implementation of the Contractor's obligations herein.

(c) The Contractor shall state, in all solicitations or advertisements for employees, that, in the performance of the County Contract, all qualified applicants will be afforded equal employment opportunities without discrimination because of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability or marital status.

(d) The Contractor shall make Best Efforts to solicit active participation by certified minority or women-owned business enterprises ("Certified M/WBEs") as defined in Section 101 of Local Law No. 14-2002, including the granting of Subcontracts.

(e) The Contractor shall, in its advertisements and solicitations for Subcontractors, indicate its interest in receiving bids from Certified M/WBEs and the requirement that Subcontractors must be equal opportunity employers.

(f) Contractors must notify and receive approval from the respective Department Head prior to issuing any Subcontracts and, at the time of requesting such authorization, must submit a signed Best Efforts Checklist.

(g) Contractors for projects under the supervision of the County's Department of Public Works shall also submit a utilization plan listing all proposed Subcontractors so that, to the greatest extent feasible, all Subcontractors will be approved prior to commencement of work. Any additions or changes to the list of subcontractors under the utilization plan shall be approved by the Commissioner of the Department of Public Works when made. A copy of the utilization plan any additions or changes thereto shall be submitted by the Contractor to the Office of Minority Affairs simultaneously with the submission to the Department of Public Works.

(h) At any time after Subcontractor approval has been requested and prior to being granted, the contracting agency may require the Contractor to submit Documentation Demonstrating Best Efforts to Obtain Certified Minority or Women-owned Business Enterprises. In addition, the contracting agency may require the Contractor to submit such documentation at any time after Subcontractor approval when the contracting agency has reasonable cause to believe that the existing Best Efforts Checklist may be inaccurate. Within ten working days (10) of any such request by the contracting agency, the Contractor must submit Documentation.

(i) In the case where a request is made by the contracting agency or a Deputy County Executive acting on behalf of the contracting agency, the Contractor must, within two (2) working days of such request, submit evidence to demonstrate that it employed Best Efforts to obtain Certified M/WBE participation through proper documentation.

(j) Award of a County Contract alone shall not be deemed or interpreted as approval of all Contractor's Subcontracts and Contractor's fulfillment of Best Efforts to obtain participation by Certified M/WBEs.

ALL BIDS MUST BE F.O.B. DESTINATION AND INCLUDE DELIVERY WITHIN DOORS UNLESS OTHERWISE SPECIFIED.

(k) A Contractor shall maintain Documentation Demonstrating Best Efforts to Obtain Certified Minority or Women-owned Business Enterprises for a period of six (6) years. Failure to maintain such records shall be deemed failure to make Best Efforts to comply with this Appendix EE, evidence of false certification as M/WBE compliant or considered breach of the County Contract.

(l) The Contractor shall be bound by the provisions of Section 109 of Local Law No. 14-2002 providing for enforcement of violations as follows:

a. Upon receipt by the Executive Director of a complaint from a contracting agency that a County Contractor has failed to comply with the provisions of Local Law No. 14-2002, this Appendix EE or any other contractual provisions included in furtherance of Local Law No. 14-2002, the Executive Director will try to resolve the matter.

b. If efforts to resolve such matter to the satisfaction of all parties are unsuccessful, the Executive Director shall refer the matter, within thirty days (30) of receipt of the complaint, to the American Arbitration Association for proceeding thereon.

c. Upon conclusion of the arbitration proceedings, the arbitrator shall submit to the Executive Director his recommendations regarding the imposition of sanctions, fines or penalties. The Executive Director shall either (i) adopt the recommendation of the arbitrator (ii) determine that no sanctions, fines or penalties should be imposed or (iii) modify the recommendation of the arbitrator, provided that such modification shall not expand upon any sanction recommended or impose any new sanction, or increase the amount of any recommended fine or penalty. The Executive Director, within ten days (10) of receipt of the arbitrators award and recommendations, shall file a determination of such matter and shall cause a copy of such determination to be served upon the respondent by personal service or by certified mail return receipt requested. The award of the arbitrator, and the fines and penalties imposed by the Executive Director, shall be final determinations and may only be vacated or modified as provided in the civil practice law and rules ("CPLR").

Failure to comply with provisions (a) through (m) above, as ultimately determined by the Executive Director, shall be a material breach of the contract constituting grounds for immediate termination. Once a final determination of failure to comply has been reached by the Executive Director, the determination of whether to terminate a contract shall rest with the Deputy County Executive with oversight responsibility for the contracting agency.

Provisions (a), (b) and (c) shall not be binding upon Contractors or Subcontractors in the performance of work or the provision of services or any other activity that are unrelated, separate , or distinct from the County Contract as expressed by its terms.

INTERIM FINANCIAL REPORT

First Quarter Fiscal Year 2026

For the three month period ended
March 31, 2026
(UNAUDITED)

CONSTELLATION SOFTWARE INC.

MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS ("MD&A")

The following discussion and analysis should be read in conjunction with the Unaudited Condensed Consolidated Interim Financial Statements for the three month period ended March 31, 2026, which we prepared in accordance with IFRS Accounting Standards as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board (IFRS). Certain information included herein is forward-looking and based upon assumptions and anticipated results that are subject to uncertainties. Should one or more of these uncertainties materialize or should the underlying assumptions prove incorrect, actual results may vary significantly from those expected. See "Forward-Looking Statements" and "Risks and Uncertainties".

Unless otherwise indicated, all dollar amounts are expressed in U.S. dollars. All references to "$" are to U.S. dollars and all references to "C$" are to Canadian dollars. Due to rounding, certain totals and subtotals may not foot and certain percentages may not reconcile.

Additional information about Constellation Software Inc. (the "Company", "Constellation" or "CSI"), including our most recently filed Annual Information Form ("AIF"), is available on SEDAR+ at www.sedarplus.ca.

Forward Looking Statements

Certain statements in this report may contain "forward looking" statements that involve risks, uncertainties and other factors that may cause the actual results, performance or achievements of the Company or industry to be materially different from any future results, performance or achievements expressed or implied by such forward-looking statements. Words such as "may", "will", "expect", "believe", "plan", "intend", "should", "anticipate" and other similar terminology are intended to identify forward looking statements. These statements reflect current assumptions and expectations regarding future events and operating performance as of the date of this MD&A May 12, 2026. Forward looking statements involve significant risks and uncertainties, should not be read as guarantees of future performance or results, and will not necessarily be accurate indications of whether or not such results will be achieved. A number of factors could cause actual results to vary significantly from the results discussed in the forward looking statements, including, but not limited to, the factors discussed under "Risks and Uncertainties". Although the forward looking statements contained in this MD&A are based upon what management of the Company believes are reasonable assumptions, the Company cannot assure investors that actual results will be consistent with these forward looking statements. These forward looking statements are made as of the date of this MD&A and the Company assumes no obligation, except as required by law, to update any forward looking statements to reflect new events or circumstances. This report should be viewed in conjunction with the Company's other publicly available filings, copies of which can be obtained electronically on SEDAR+ at www.sedarplus.ca.

Non-IFRS Measures

This MD&A includes certain measures which have not been prepared in accordance with IFRS such as Free cash flow available to shareholders.

Free cash flow available to shareholders "FCFA2S" refers to net cash flows from operating activities less interest paid on lease obligations, interest paid on debt, debt transaction costs, payments of lease obligations, the IRGA / TSS membership liability revaluation charge, and property and equipment purchased, and includes interest and dividends received, and the proceeds from sale of interest rate caps. The portion of this amount applicable to non-controlling interests is then deducted. We believe that FCFA2S is useful supplemental information as it provides an indication of the uncommitted cash flow that is available to shareholders if we do not make any acquisitions, or investments, and do not repay any debts. While we could use the FCFA2S to pay dividends or repurchase shares, our objective is to invest all of our FCFA2S in acquisitions which meet our hurdle rate.

FCFA2S is not a recognized measure under IFRS and may not be comparable to similar financial measures disclosed by other issuers. Accordingly, readers are cautioned that FCFA2S should not be construed as an alternative to net cash flows from operating activities. See "Results of Operations —Free cash flow available to shareholders" for a reconciliation of FCFA2S to net cash flows from operating activities.

Overview

We acquire, manage and build vertical market software ("VMS") businesses. Generally, these businesses provide mission critical software solutions that address the specific needs of our customers in particular markets. Our focus on acquiring businesses with growth potential, managing them well and then building them, has allowed us to generate significant cash flows and revenue growth during the past several years.

Our revenue consists primarily of software license fees, maintenance and other recurring fees, professional service fees and hardware sales. Software license revenue is comprised of non-recurring license fees charged for the use of software products licensed under multiple-year or perpetual arrangements. Maintenance and other recurring revenue primarily consists of fees charged for customer support on software products post-delivery and also includes recurring fees derived from combined software/support contracts, transaction revenues, managed services associated with CSI software that has been sold to the customer, and hosted software-as-a-service products. Professional service revenue consists of fees charged for implementation services, custom programming, product training, certain managed services, and consulting. Hardware and other revenue includes the resale of third party hardware as part of customized solutions, as well as sales of hardware assembled internally and the reimbursement of travel costs. Our customers typically purchase a combination of software, maintenance, professional services and hardware, although the type, mix and quantity of each vary by customer and by product.

Expenses consist primarily of staff costs, the cost of hardware, third party licenses, maintenance and professional services to fulfill our customer arrangements, travel and occupancy costs, depreciation, and other general operating expenses.

Preferred Share Investment in Lumine

On February 22 and 23, 2023 (as part of a series of transactions relating to the acquisition of WideOrbit Inc. ("WideOrbit")), the Company's subsidiary, Lumine Group Inc. ("Lumine"), completed a corporate reorganization. At the beginning of the period, the Company owned 63,582,712 preferred shares ("Lumine Preferred Shares") in the capital of the Company's subsidiary, Lumine. The Lumine Preferred Shares were non-voting and under certain conditions were redeemable at the option of CSI for a redemption price of $21.74 (the "Initial Face Value") per share. The redemption price was to either be settled in cash or through the issuance of a variable number of subordinate voting shares of Lumine ("Lumine Subordinate Voting Shares") based on the terms of the Lumine Preferred Shares, or any combination thereof. The Lumine Preferred Shares were also convertible into Lumine Subordinate Voting Shares at a conversion ratio of 1:2.4302106 at any time. The Lumine Preferred Shares entitled CSI to a fixed annual cumulative dividend of 5% per annum on the Initial Face Value.

On March 25, 2024, all of the Lumine Preferred Shares were automatically converted into Lumine Subordinate Voting Shares, and additional Lumine Subordinate Voting Shares were issued in satisfaction of the amounts owing in connection with the accrued dividends on the Lumine Preferred Shares. As at March 31, 2026, CSI holds 157,553,539 Lumine Subordinate Voting Shares.

Subsequent to the conversion, CSI continues to consolidate Lumine and now reflects an equity interest of 61.40% in Lumine and a non-controlling interest of 38.60%.

Note 1: The Company made an adjustment to the financial information for the three months ending March 31, 2025. This resulted in an increase in finance and other income of $35 million, an increase in current income tax expense of $2 million and an increase in net income of $34 for the three months ended March 31, 2025. The Company has recast the comparative interim period in its Q1 2026 filings. See Note 5 to the Company's Unaudited Condensed Consolidated Interim Financial Statements for the three and six months ended June 30, 2025 for additional information.

Comparison of the first quarter ended March 31, 2026 and 2025

Revenue:

Total revenue for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 was $3,181 million, an increase of 20%, or $527 million, compared to $2,654 million for the comparable period in 2025. The increase is primarily attributable to growth from acquisitions as the Company experienced organic growth of 6% in the quarter, 2% after adjusting for the impact of changes in the valuation of the US dollar against most major currencies in which the Company transacts business. For acquired companies, organic growth is calculated as the difference between actual revenues achieved by each company in the financial period following acquisition compared to the estimated revenues they achieved in the corresponding financial period preceding the date of acquisition by Constellation. Organic growth is not a standardized financial measure and might not be comparable to measures disclosed by other issuers.

The following table displays the breakdown of our revenue according to revenue type:

| | Three months ended March 31, | | Period-Over-Period Change | | Q125 Proforma Adj. (Note 1) | Organic Growth |

Note 1: Estimated pre-acquisition revenues for the three months ended March 31, 2025 from companies acquired after December 31, 2024. (Obtained from unaudited vendor financial information.)

For comparative purposes the table below shows the quarterly organic growth as compared to the same period in the prior year by revenue type since Q1 2024. Note that the estimated revenues achieved by acquired companies in the corresponding financial period preceding the date of acquisition by Constellation may be updated in the quarter following the quarter they were acquired resulting in slight variances to previously reported figures.

| Depreciation | 55 | 46 | 8 | 18% |
| | 2,420 | 2,001 | 419 | 21% |

Due to rounding, certain totals may not foot and certain percentages may not reconcile.

Overall expenses for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 increased 21%, or $419 million to $2,420 million, compared to $2,001 million during the same period in 2025. As a percentage of total revenue, expenses equalled 76% for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 and 75% for the same period in 2025. The change in valuation of the US dollar against most major currencies in which the Company transacts business resulted in an approximate 5% decrease in expenses for the three months ended March 31, 2026 compared to the first quarter of 2025.

Staff expense – Staff expenses increased 19% or $275 million for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 over the same period in 2025. Staff expense can be broken down into five key operating departments: Professional Services, Maintenance, Research and Development, Sales and Marketing, and General and Administrative. Included within staff expenses for each of the above five departments are personnel and related costs associated with providing the necessary services. The table below compares the period over period variances.

| | 2026 | 2025 | $ | % |
| | ($ in millions, except percentages) | | | |
| Professional services | 311 | 292 | 19 | 6% |
| Maintenance | 345 | 293 | 52 | 18% |
| Research and development | 459 | 389 | 71 | 18% |
| Sales and marketing | 210 | 167 | 43 | 26% |
| General and administrative | 361 | 271 | 90 | 33% |
| | 1,687 | 1,412 | 275 | 19% |

Due to rounding, certain totals may not foot and certain percentages may not reconcile.

The increase in staff expenses for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 was primarily due to the growth in the number of employees compared to the same period in 2025 primarily due to acquisitions. Staff expenses in the first quarter of every year are typically higher as a percentage of revenue as compared to other quarters, largely attributable to increased payroll tax costs associated with our annual bonus payments that are made in the month of March.

Hardware expenses – Hardware expenses increased 42% or $17 million for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 over the same period in 2025, as compared to the 35% increase in hardware and other revenue for the same period. Hardware margin for the three months ended March 31, 2026 was 43% as compared to 46% for the same period in 2025.

Third party license, maintenance and professional services expenses – Third party license, maintenance and professional services expenses increased 23% or $58 million for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 over the same period in 2025. The increase is primarily due to third party license, maintenance and professional services expenses of acquired businesses.

Travel, Telecommunications, Supplies & Software and equipment expenses – Travel, Telecommunications, Supplies & Software and equipment expenses increased 21% or $28 million for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 over the same period in 2025. The increase in these expenses is primarily due to expenses incurred by acquired businesses.

Professional fees – Professional fees increased 36% or $17 million for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 over the same period in 2025. There are no individually material reasons contributing to this variance.

Other, net – Other expenses increased 24% or $17 million for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 over the same period in 2025. The following table provides a further breakdown of expenses within this category.

| | Three months ended March 31, | | Period-Over-Period Change | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | 2026 | 2025 | $ | % |
| | ($ in millions, except percentages) | | | |
| Occupancy | 19 | 17 | 2 | 14% |
| Advertising and promotion | 47 | 37 | 10 | 27% |
| Recruitment and training | 11 | 10 | 2 | 16% |
| Bad debt expense | 4 | 1 | 3 | 241% |
| R&D tax credits | (14) | (10) | (3) | 32% |
| Contingent consideration | 4 | 7 | (3) | -49% |
| Other expense, net | 16 | 9 | 8 | 85% |
| | 87 | 70 | 17 | 24% |

Due to rounding, certain totals may not foot and certain percentages may not reconcile.

The contingent consideration expense amounts recorded for the three months ended March 31, 2026 related to an increase (decrease) in anticipated acquisition earnout payment accruals primarily as a result of increases (decreases) to revenue forecasts for the associated acquisitions. Revenue forecasts are updated on a quarterly basis and the related anticipated acquisition earnout payment accruals are updated accordingly.

There are no individually material reasons contributing to the remaining variances.

Depreciation – Depreciation of property and equipment and right of use assets increased 18% or $8 million for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 over the same period in 2025. The increases are primarily due to the depreciation expense associated with acquired businesses.

Other Income and Expenses:

Amortization of intangible assets – Amortization of intangible assets increased 20% or $54 million for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 over the same period in 2025. The increase in amortization expense is primarily attributable to an increase in the carrying amount of our intangible asset balance over the twelve-month period ended March 31, 2026 as a result of acquisitions completed during this twelve-month period.

Foreign exchange – Most of our businesses are organized geographically so many of our expenses are incurred in the same currency as our revenues, which mitigates some of our exposure to currency fluctuations. For the quarter ended March 31, 2026, we realized a foreign exchange gain of $45 million compared to a loss of $32 million for the same period in 2025. The following table provides a breakdown of these amounts.

| | 2026 | 2025 | $ | % |

Due to rounding, certain totals may not foot and certain percentages may not reconcile.

(1) Offsetting amounts recorded in other comprehensive income. Net impact to Total comprehensive income for each period is nil.

The remaining foreign exchange gains and losses per the table above are primarily related to the unrealized foreign exchange translation gains and losses of certain non-US dollar denominated working capital balances to US dollars as a result of the depreciation or appreciation of the US dollar.

IRGA / TSS membership liability revaluation charge – On December 23, 2014, in accordance with the terms of the purchase and sale agreement for the initial acquisition of TSS (as defined below) by CSI, and on the basis of the term sheets attached thereto, Constellation and the Joday Group, among others, entered into a Members Agreement (the "Members Agreement") pursuant to which the Joday Group acquired 33.29% of the voting interests in Constellation Software Netherlands Holding Coöperatief U.A. (which was renamed to Topicus.com Coöperatief U.A.), a subsidiary of Constellation and the indirect owner of 100% of TSS at the time of the acquisition. Total proceeds from this transaction was €39 million ($49 million).

On January 5, 2021, the Members Agreement was terminated in conjunction with the acquisition of Topicus.com B.V., the reorganization of Topicus Coop and the execution of the IRGA. The IRGA was established to create certain contractual obligations of the parties in respect of the governance of Topicus and Topicus Coop. As of March 31, 2026 the Joday Group's interest in Topicus Coop comprised 38,148,221 Topicus Coop Ordinary Units ("Topicus Coop Units") resulting in an interest of 29.38% in Topicus Coop. The IRGA provides for transfer restrictions in respect of the Topicus Coop Units. See "Liability of CSI under the terms of the IRGA" below for further details.

The valuation of the IRGA liability (previously the TSS membership liability) decreased by approximately 8% or $101 million from Q4 2025. The decrease is primarily the result of the decrease in the fair value of Topicus' investment in the equity securities of Sygnity S.A. ("Sygnity") and Asseco Poland S.A. ("Asseco") as determined by their respective share prices at the end of each reporting period, offset by an increase related to the organic growth in Topicus' trailing twelve month maintenance and other recurring revenue and net profits. The valuation of CSI's obligations under the IRGA is also impacted by the change in the net tangible assets of Topicus (as defined under the IRGA). The table below summarizes the changes.

|---|---|---|---|
| Liability of CSI under the IRGA excluding equity security investments | 643 | 684 | 40 |
| Fair Value of Equity securities of Sygnity | 103 | 78 | (24) |
| Fair Value of Equity securities of Asseco | 305 | 223 | (82) |
| Liability of CSI under the IRGA | 1,051 | 985 | (66) |
| $ in millions | | | |
| Liability of CSI under the IRGA | 1,234 | 1,133 | (76) |

The liability recorded on the balance sheet decreased by 8% or $101 million over the three month period ended March 31, 2026 from $1,234 million to $1,133 million as a result of the revaluation charge of $76 million and a $24 million foreign exchange loss. The IRGA / TSS membership liability is denominated in Euros and the Euro depreciated 2% versus the US dollar during the three months ended March 31, 2026.

Finance and other expense (income) – Finance and other income for the three months ended March 31, 2026 was $15 million compared to $80 million for the same period in 2025. The following table provides a further breakdown of expenses (income) within this category.

| | Three months ended March 31, | |
|---|---|---|
| | 2026 | 2025 |
| Interest income on cash | $ (12) | $ (11) |
| (Increase) decrease in the fair value of equity securities | (7) | (32) |
| (Increase) decrease in the fair value of derivative | 6 | (5) |
| Finance and other income | (3) | (32) |
| Finance and other expense (income) | $ (15) | $ (80) |

The increase in the fair value of equity securities for the three months ended March 31, 2025 included $35 million relating to the Company's investment in Asseco. On January 31, 2025, the Company purchased 8,300,029 shares in Asseco, representing approximately 9.99% of the issued shares in Asseco. The Asseco shares were acquired at a price of 85 PLN per share for total consideration of $174 million. At the time of initial recognition the Company made an irrevocable election to present subsequent changes in fair value in other comprehensive income ("FVOCI"). The Company designated the Asseco investment as equity securities at FVOCI because the investment in Asseco represents an investment that the Company intends to hold for the long term. At the time the Company purchased shares of Asseco, the trading price per Asseco share on the WSE was in excess of the purchase price of 85 PLN per share. The Company recorded a gain of $35 million in the statement of income (loss). On September 25, 2025, the Company received the last outstanding regulatory approval for the acquisition of 12,318,863 treasury shares representing 14.84% of Asseco's share capital and subsequent to this date, applied the equity method of accounting to the investment in Asseco.

Finance and other income for the three months ended March 31, 2025 includes a $29 million settlement payment related to the fair value of the net tangible assets acquired as part of an acquisition that closed in 2024. There are no individually material reasons contributing to the remaining variances.

Share in net (income) loss of equity investee – The Company owns 19,207,886 shares in Asseco representing an ownership interest of approximately 23.14%. Asseco offers comprehensive, proprietary IT solutions for certain sectors of the economy and is listed on the Polish Warsaw Stock Exchange (the "WSE"). The Company applies the equity method of accounting to its investment in Asseco as a result of its ability to exercise significant influence over Asseco. Under the equity method of accounting, the investment is initially recognized at cost and is subsequently adjusted to reflect Topicus' share of profit or loss and other comprehensive income of Asseco. The Company has elected to use "lag reporting" in relation to its investment in Asseco. The Company will record its share of profit or loss and other comprehensive income on a "three-month lag" because the concurrent financial information is impracticable to obtain from Asseco. The share of net income recorded for the three months ended March 31, 2026 was $11 million compared to nil for the same period in 2025. The investment in Asseco has been classified as a non-current asset as at March 31, 2026 within "Investments in associates". A net loss of $1 million relating to other investments in associates was recorded for the three months ended March 31, 2026 compared to nil for the same period in 2025.

Bargain purchase gain – A bargain purchase gain of $0.1 million was recorded in the three months ended March 31, 2026 compared to nil for the same period in 2025, relating to an acquisition made in 2026. The gain resulted from the fact that the fair value of the separately identifiable assets and liabilities acquired exceeded the total consideration paid, principally due to the acquisition of certain assets that will benefit the Company that had limited value to the sellers.

Impairment of intangible and other non-financial assets – An impairment expense of $8 million was recorded in the three month period ended March 31, 2026 compared to $3 million for the same period in 2025. The expenses relate to businesses that have been unable to achieve the goals established in their respective investment theses.

Finance costs – Finance costs for the quarter ended March 31, 2026 increased $10 million to $81 million, compared to $71 million for the same period in 2025. The following table provides a further breakdown of expenses within this category.

| | Three months ended March 31, | |
|---|---|---|
| | 2026 | 2025 |
| Interest expense on debt and debentures | $ 64 | $ 59 |
| Interest expense on lease obligations | 4 | 4 |
| Amortization of debt related transaction costs | 2 | 1 |
| Amortization of debenture discount (premium) | (1) | (1) |
| Other finance costs | 11 | 8 |
| Finance costs | $ 81 | $ 71 |

The increase in interest expense on debt is primarily a result of an increase in the average debt outstanding in Q126 as compared to Q125.

Income taxes – We operate globally and we calculate our tax provision in each of the jurisdictions in which we conduct business. Our effective tax rate on a consolidated basis is, therefore, affected by the realization and anticipated relative profitability of our operations in those various jurisdictions, as well as different tax rates that apply and our ability to utilize tax losses and other credits. For the quarter ended March 31, 2026, income tax expense increased $5 million to $93 million compared to $89 million for the same period in 2025. Current tax expense has historically approximated our cash tax rate however the quarterly expense can sometimes fall outside of the annual range due to out of period adjustments. Current tax expense reflects gross taxes before the application of R&D tax credits which are classified as part of "other, net" expenses in the statement of income (loss). The Company's consolidated effective tax rate in respect of continuing operations for the three months ended March 31, 2026 was 19% (34% for the three months ended March 31, 2025). The March 31, 2026 effective tax rate was impacted by $11 million of current tax expense relating to certain revaluation charges recorded in the Condensed Consolidated Interim Statement of Income (loss).

Constellation is subject to tax audits in the countries in which the Company carries on business globally. These tax audits could result in additional tax expense in future periods relating to historical filings. Reviews by tax authorities generally focus on, but are not limited to, the validity of the Company's inter-company transactions, including financing and transfer pricing policies which generally involve subjective areas of taxation and a significant degree of judgment. If any of these tax authorities are successful with their challenges, the Company's income tax expense may be adversely affected and Constellation could also be subject to interest and penalty charges.

On a per share basis this translated into net income per basic and diluted share of $17.32 in the quarter ended March 31, 2026 compared to $6.41 for the same period in 2025.

There was no change in the number of shares outstanding.

Net cash flows from operating activities ("CFO"):

The following table reconciles FCFA2S to net cash flows from operating activities:

Note 1: The Company made an adjustment to the financial information for the three months ending March 31, 2025. This resulted in an increase in finance and other income of $35 million, an increase in current income tax expense of $2 million and an increase in net income of $34 for the three months ended March 31, 2025. The Company has recast the comparative interim period in its Q1 2026 filings. See Note 5 to the Company's Unaudited Condensed Consolidated Interim Financial Statements for the three and six months ended June 30, 2025 for additional information.

We experience seasonality in our operating results in that CFO and FCFA2S in the first quarter of every year is typically the highest and CFO and FCFA2S in the second quarter of every year is typically the lowest. The key driver impacting this seasonality is the timing of annual maintenance contract renewals. Our quarterly results may also fluctuate as a result of the various acquisitions which may be completed by the Company in any given quarter. We may experience variations in our net income on a quarterly basis depending upon the timing of certain expenses or gains, which may include changes in provisions, acquired contract liabilities, foreign exchange gains and losses, bargain purchase gains, and gains or losses on the sale of financial and other assets.

Acquisition of business segment from Allscripts Healthcare Solutions

On May 2, 2022, Constellation, through its wholly-owned subsidiary, N. Harris Computer Corporation, completed the purchase from Allscripts Healthcare Solutions ("Allscripts") of Allscripts' Hospitals and Large Physician Practices business segment. This business segment now operates under the name Altera.

The tables below provide certain supplemental balance sheet, statement of income, and net operating cash flow information of Altera for the three months ended March 31, 2026. Altera is not considered a reportable operating segment of Constellation, however, management has chosen to provide certain supplemental financial information to provide greater clarity into the operating performance and cash flow from operations of Altera considering the size of the business and its impact on the results of Constellation. The financial information includes the adjustments discussed in the "Finance and other expense (income)" section above.

Liquidity

Cash flows from operations exceeded the net capital deployed on acquisitions plus dividends during the three months ended March 31, 2026. Cash decreased by $78 million to $3,010 million at March 31, 2026 compared to $3,089 million at December 31, 2025 and debt decreased by $142 million to $3,990 million at March 31, 2026 compared to $4,131 million at December 31, 2025.

Total assets increased $803 million, from $16,167 million at December 31, 2025 to $16,969 million at March 31, 2026. The increase is primarily due to the $163 million increase in accounts receivable, and the $519 million increase in intangible assets. At March 31, 2026 Topicus, Lumine and other subsidiaries with non-recourse debt facilities hold approximately $1,095 million of cash. As explained in the "Capital Resources and Commitments" section below, there are limitations on the ability of these subsidiaries to distribute funds to Constellation.

Current liabilities increased $462 million, from $6,069 million at December 31, 2025 to $6,532 million at March 31, 2026. The increase is primarily due to an increase in deferred revenue of $676 million mainly due to acquisitions made since December 31, 2025 and the timing of maintenance and other billings versus performance and delivery under those customer arrangements, offset by decreases in accounts payable and accrued liabilities of $182 million and the liability of CSI under the IRGA of $121 million.

Net Changes in Cash Flows
($ in millions)

| | Three months ended March 31, 2026 | Three months ended March 31, 2025 |
|---|---|---|
| Net cash provided by operating activities | 897 | 827 |
| Net cash from (used in) financing activities | (236) | (91) |
| Cash used in the acquisition of businesses | (766) | (110) |
| Cash obtained with acquired businesses | 77 | 11 |
| Net cash from (used in) other investing activities | (37) | (172) |
| Net cash from (used in) investing activities | (726) | (271) |
| Effect of foreign currency | (13) | 33 |
| Net increase (decrease) in cash and cash equivalents | (78) | 497 |

The net cash flows from operating activities were $897 million for the three months ended March 31, 2026. The $897 million provided by operating activities resulted from net income of $400 million plus $419 million of adjustments to net income (primarily amortization of intangible assets, depreciation, IRGA/TSS Membership liability revaluation charge, finance and other income, finance costs, and income tax expense) and $185 million of cash from non-cash working capital, offset by $107 million in taxes paid.

The net cash flows used in financing activities for the three months ended March 31, 2026 were $236 million, which is mainly a result of interest payments of $65 million, lease obligation payments of $38 million, dividends paid to common shareholders of $21 million, and a net decrease in debt facilities of $114 million.

The net cash flows used in investing activities for the three months ended March 31, 2026 were $726 million. The cash used in investing activities was primarily due to acquisitions for an aggregate of $766 million (including payments for holdbacks relating to prior acquisitions) offset by $77 million of acquired cash.

We believe we have sufficient cash and available credit capacity to continue to operate for the foreseeable future. Generally our VMS businesses operate with negative working capital as a result of the collection of maintenance payments and other revenues in advance of the performance of the related services. As such, management anticipates that it can continue to grow the business organically without any additional funding. If we continue to acquire VMS businesses we may need additional external funding depending upon the size and timing of the potential acquisitions (see "Subsequent Events" below).

Capital Resources and Commitments

| | CSI Facility | Senior Notes | Debentures | Term Loan | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Principal outstanding at December 31, 2025 (and, except for debentures, equal to fair value) | $ - | $ 1,000 | $ 356 | $ 86 | 1,441 |

CSI Facility

On January 31, 2024, the Company completed an amendment and restatement of its existing credit facility agreement (the "CSI Facility"). The facility limit was increased from $840 million to $1,085 million, with a syndicate of existing and new institutions. The agreement has also moved from a secured to an unsecured facility structure, which continues to be available for general corporate purposes including acquisitions and working capital. The CSI Facility is guaranteed by certain subsidiaries of the Company. The CSI Facility bears a variable interest rate with no fixed repayments required over the term to maturity. Interest rates are calculated at standard U.S. and Canadian reference rates plus interest rate spreads based on a leverage table. The CSI Facility contains standard events of default which if not remedied within a cure period would trigger the repayment of any outstanding balance. As at March 31, 2026, nil had been drawn from this credit facility, and letters of credit totaling $13 million were issued, which limits the borrowing capacity on a dollar-for-dollar basis.

Senior Notes

On February 16, 2024, the Company completed a private offering of $500 million aggregate principal amount of 5.158% senior notes due 2029 and $500 million aggregate principal amount of 5.461% senior notes due 2034 (collectively, the "Senior Notes"). The Senior Notes are senior unsecured obligations of the Company and rank equally in right of payment to all of the Company's existing and future senior unsecured indebtedness, including the CSI Facility. The Senior Notes are guaranteed by certain subsidiaries of the Company on the same basis as such subsidiaries have guaranteed the CSI Facility. Transaction costs associated with the Senior Notes are being amortized through profit or loss using the effective interest rate method.

Debentures

On October 1, 2014 and November 19, 2014, the Company issued unsecured subordinated debentures (the "Debentures") with a total principal value of C$96 million for total proceeds of C$91 million. On September 30, 2015, the Company issued an additional tranche of Debentures with a total principal value of C$186 million for total proceeds of C$214 million. On October 6, 2023, a total of C$213 million principal amount of Debentures were issued at a price of C$133.00 per C$100.00 principal amount of Debentures purchased representing proceeds to the Company of C$283 million which was used by the Company to pay down indebtedness under its existing credit facility. The Debentures were issued as an additional tranche of, and formed a single series with, the outstanding C$282 aggregate principal amount of Debentures.

The total principal value of debentures outstanding at March 31, 2026 was $356 million (C$495 million).

Guarantees

One of CSI's subsidiaries has entered into a $86 million (£65 million) term debt facility with a financial institution for which CSI has guaranteed the debt. The facility bears a fixed rate of interest. The term loan contains events of default that, if not remedied, allow the loan note holder to require repayment of the loan principal and interest. The loan is due in 2028.

Liability of CSI under the terms of the IRGA / TSS Membership Agreement

On December 23, 2014, in accordance with the terms of the purchase and sale agreement for the initial acquisition of TSS by CSI, and on the basis of the term sheets attached thereto, Constellation and the Joday Group, among others, entered into a Members Agreement (the "Members Agreement") pursuant to which the Joday Group acquired 33.29% of the voting interests in Constellation Software Netherlands Holding Coöperatief U.A. (which was renamed to Topicus.com Coöperatief U.A.), a subsidiary of Constellation and the indirect owner of 100% of TSS at the time of the acquisition. Total proceeds from this transaction was €39 million ($49 million).

On January 5, 2021, the Members Agreement was terminated in conjunction with the acquisition of Topicus.com B.V., the reorganization of Topicus Coop and the execution of the IRGA. The IRGA was established to create certain contractual obligations of the parties in respect of the governance of Topicus and Topicus Coop. As of March 31, 2026 the Joday Group's interest in Topicus Coop comprised 38,148,221 Topicus Coop Ordinary Units resulting in an interest of 29.38% in Topicus Coop. The IRGA provides for transfer restrictions in respect of the Topicus Coop Units.

Any time after January 5, 2021, any member of the Joday Group has the right, at his or its option, to sell any number of its Topicus Coop Units to CSI at a cash price per Topicus Coop Unit determined in accordance with the IRGA. Upon the exercise of such option by a member of the Joday Group, CSI will be obligated to purchase 33.33% of such Topicus Coop Units within 30 days, and an additional 33.33% on each of the first and the second anniversary of such initial purchase with the exception of certain items which have been classified as a current liability. Notwithstanding the foregoing, CSI can offer Topicus the right to purchase such Topicus Coop Units in lieu of CSI.

In the event of a change of control of CSI, any member of the Joday Group has the right, at his or its option, to sell all of its Topicus Coop Units to CSI at a cash price per Topicus Coop Unit determined in accordance with the IRGA. Upon the exercise of such option by a member of the Joday Group, CSI will be obligated to purchase all such Topicus Coop Units. Notwithstanding the foregoing, CSI can offer Topicus the right to purchase such Topicus Coop Units in lieu of CSI.

If CSI reduces its economic interest in Topicus by a sale or transfer of its economic interest (and not due to any additional issuance of any shares or equity by Topicus) by more than one-third (calculated on a fully converted basis in accordance with the IRGA), any member of the Joday Group has the right, at his or its option, to sell to CSI one-third of its Topicus Coop Units at a cash price per Topicus Coop Unit determined in accordance with the IRGA. Upon the exercise of such put option by a member of the Joday Group, CSI will be obligated to purchase all such put Topicus Coop Units. Notwithstanding the foregoing, CSI can offer Topicus the right to purchase such Topicus Coop Units in lieu of CSI. Any member of the Joday Group has a similar right to sell one-half or all of its remaining Topicus Coop Units, respectively, at its option, if CSI further reduces its remaining fully-diluted economic interest in Topicus by a sale or transfer of its economic interest by one-half and again if CSI sells its entire remaining economic interest in Topicus.

All of the Topicus Coop Ordinary Units and Topicus Coop Preference Units held by the Joday Group and Ijssel B.V. (collectively, the "Topicus Coop Exchangeable Units") are exchangeable, directly or indirectly, for Topicus Subordinate Voting Shares. All of the above rights of members of the Joday Group apply to any Topicus Subordinate Voting Shares issued on an exchange of Topicus Coop Exchangeable Units.

At any time after December 31, 2023, CSI has the right, at its option, to buy all of the Topicus Coop Units and shares of Topicus held by certain members of the Joday Group (excluding Joday) at a cash price per Topicus Coop Unit (or share of Topicus, as applicable) determined in accordance with the IRGA. After December 31, 2043, CSI has the same right to buy all of the Topicus Coop Units and shares of Topicus held by the remaining members of the Joday Group, including Joday.

In addition, if certain individuals affiliated with Joday are terminated from their employment with Topicus Coop or an affiliate thereof for urgent cause (as defined in the Dutch Civil Code), CSI has the right, at its option, to buy all of Topicus Coop Units held by such individuals at a cash price per Topicus Coop Unit determined in accordance with the IRGA.

The Company has continued to classify the above obligations of CSI under the terms of the IRGA as a liability. The main valuation driver in such calculation is the maintenance and other recurring revenue of Topicus. The valuation of CSI's obligations under the IRGA is also impacted by the change in the net tangible assets of Topicus (as defined under the IRGA). As the net tangible assets increase (which is typically the result of net profits in the applicable period), the valuation of CSI's obligations under the IRGA increases. Maintenance and recurring revenue of Topicus for the trailing twelve months on a pro-forma basis determined at the end of the current reporting period was used as the basis for valuing the interests at each redemption date. Any increase or decrease in the value of such liability is recorded as an expense or income in the consolidated statements of income (loss) for the period.

In addition, the liability of CSI under the terms of the IRGA is impacted by changes in the fair value of Topicus' investment in the equity securities of Sygnity and Asseco as determined by their respective share prices at the end of each reporting period.

Debt without recourse to CSI

Certain of CSI's subsidiaries have entered into term debt facilities and revolving credit facilities with various financial institutions. Except as noted above, CSI does not guarantee the debt of its subsidiaries, nor are there any cross-guarantees between subsidiaries. The credit facilities are collateralized by substantially all of the assets of the borrowing entity and its subsidiaries. The credit facilities typically bear interest at a rate calculated using an interest rate index plus a margin. The financing arrangements for each subsidiary typically contain certain restrictive covenants, which may include limitations or prohibitions on additional indebtedness, payment of cash dividends, redemption of capital, capital spending, making of acquisitions and sales of assets. In addition, certain financial covenants must be met by those subsidiaries that have outstanding debt.

In conjunction with the acquisition of Optimal Blue, the Company entered into a promissory note agreement ("Promissory Note") with the seller, Intercontinental Exchange, Inc. for $500 million. The Promissory Note accrues interest at a rate of 7% per annum, is compounded annually and is payable in arrears. The first cash interest and principal payment under the Promissory Note is due on the day prior to the fifth anniversary and thereafter interest and principal payments will be due annually on the subsequent anniversaries of that date. The Promissory Note matures in 2063, subject to earlier optional prepayment.

| | Topicus Revolving Credit Facility | Debt Facilities | Promissory Note | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Principal outstanding at March 31, 2026 (and equal to fair value) | $ 104 | $ 1,925 | $ 500 | $ 2,529 |
| Deduct: Carrying value of transaction costs included in debt balance | (2) | (18) | - | (20) |
| Carrying value at March 31, 2026 | 101 | 1,908 | 500 | 2,509 |
| Current portion | 101 | 483 | - | 585 |
| Non-current portion | - | 1,425 | 500 | 1,925 |

Other commitments

Commitments include operating leases for office equipment and facilities, letters of credit and performance bonds issued on our behalf by financial institutions in connection with facility leases and contracts with public sector customers. Also, occasionally we structure some of our acquisitions with contingent consideration based on the future performance of the acquired business. The fair value of contingent consideration recorded in our statement of financial position was $225 million at March 31, 2026. Derivative assets and liabilities relate to contractual arrangements of the Company which have uncertain outcomes. If the probability of the outcomes associated with the contractual arrangements increases, the underlying value of the derivative will increase. If the probability of the outcomes decreases, the underlying value of the derivative will decrease. Assuming a probability of 100% and utilizing the observable inputs as of March 31, 2026, the maximum exposure of the Company's derivative liabilities is approximately $58 million as of March 31, 2026. Aside from the aforementioned, we do not have any other business arrangements, derivative financial instruments, or any equity interests in non-consolidated entities that would have a significant effect on our assets and liabilities as at March 31, 2026.

Contractual obligations at March 31, 2026 are summarized below.

| Total outstanding commitments | 6,054 | 1,286 | 3,238 | 1,530 |

The IRGA liability commitment assumes that the Joday Group has exercised their put option to sell 100% of their interests back to Constellation. This option however has not been exercised as at May 12, 2026. See note 8 to the Unaudited Condensed Consolidated Interim Financial Statements for the three month period ended March 31, 2026 for a discussion on the valuation methodology utilized.

Financial Instruments

The carrying values of cash, accounts receivable, accounts payable, accrued liabilities, dividends payable, the majority of acquisition holdbacks, and the CSI Facility, approximates fair value due to the short-term nature of these instruments. The carrying value of the debt without recourse to CSI approximate their fair values as the debt is subject to market interest rates. The carrying value of the IRGA liability and the term loan with recourse to CSI approximates fair value.

Financial assets and financial liabilities measured at fair value as at March 31, 2026 and December 31, 2025 in the Unaudited Condensed Consolidated Interim Financial Statements for the three month period ended March 31, 2026 are summarized below. The Company has no additional financial liabilities measured at fair value after initial recognition other than those recognized in connection with business combinations and the redeemable preferred securities.

Foreign Currency Exposure

We operate internationally and have foreign currency risks related to our revenue, operating expenses, assets and liabilities denominated in currencies other than the U.S. dollar. Consequently, we believe movements in the foreign currencies in which we transact will impact future revenue and net income. The impact to organic revenue growth for the three months ended March 31, 2026 was approximately positive 5%. We cannot predict the effect of foreign exchange gains or losses in the future; however, if significant foreign exchange losses are experienced, they could have a material adverse effect on our business, revenues, results of operations, and financial condition. The Company enters into forward foreign exchange contracts from time to time with the objective of mitigating volatility in profit or loss in respect of financial liabilities. In entering into these forward exchange contracts, the Company is exposed to the credit risk of the counterparties to such contracts and the possibility that the counterparties will default on their payment obligations under these contracts. However, given that the counterparties are Schedule 1 banks or affiliates thereof, the Company believes these risks are not material. During the three months ended March 31, 2026, the Company did not purchase any contracts of this nature.

The following table provides an approximate breakdown of our revenue and expenses by currency, expressed as a percentage of total revenue and expenses, as applicable, for the three months ended March 31, 2026:

Off-Balance Sheet Arrangements

As a general practice, we have not entered into off-balance sheet financing arrangements. Except for insignificant and short-term operating leases and letters of credit, all of our liabilities and commitments are reflected as part of our statement of financial position.

Proposed Transactions

We seek potential acquisition targets on an ongoing basis and may complete several acquisitions in any given fiscal year.

Share Capital

As at May 12, 2026, there were 21,191,530 common shares outstanding.

Risks and Uncertainties

The Company's business is subject to a number of risk factors which are described in our most recently filed AIF. Additional risks and uncertainties not presently known to us or that we currently consider immaterial also may impair our business and operations and cause the price of the common shares to decline. If any of the noted risks actually occur, our business may be harmed and the financial condition and results of operations may suffer significantly. In that event, the trading price of the common shares could decline, and shareholders may lose all or part of their investment.

Controls and Procedures

Disclosure controls and procedures:

Management is responsible for establishing and maintaining disclosure controls and procedures as defined under National Instrument 52-109. The President and Chief Financial Officer have designed or caused to be designed by those under their supervision, disclosure controls and procedures which provide reasonable assurance that material information regarding the Company is accumulated and communicated to the Company's management, including its President and Chief Financial Officer in a timely manner.

Internal controls over financial reporting:

The President and Chief Financial Officer have designed or caused it to be designed under their supervision internal controls over financial reporting ("ICFR") to provide reasonable assurance regarding the reliability of financial reporting and the preparation of financial statements. The President and Chief Financial Officer have been advised that the control framework the President and the Chief Financial Officer used to design the Company's ICFR is recognized by the Committee of Sponsoring Organizations of the Treadway Commission.

The President and the Chief Financial Officer have evaluated, or caused to be evaluated by those under their supervision, whether or not there were changes to its ICFR during the period ended March 31, 2026 that have materially affected, or are reasonably likely to materially affect the Company's ICFR. No such changes were identified through their evaluation.

A control system, no matter how well conceived and operated, can provide only reasonable, not absolute, assurance that its objectives are met. Due to inherent limitations in all such systems, no evaluations of controls can provide absolute assurance that all control issues, if any, within a company have been detected. Accordingly, our disclosure controls and procedures and our internal controls over financial reporting are effective in providing reasonable, not absolute, assurance that the objectives of our control systems have been met.

Subsequent Events

The condensed consolidated interim financial statements of Constellation Software Inc. as at and for the three-month period ended March 31, 2026 comprise Constellation Software Inc. and its subsidiaries (together referred to as "Constellation", "CSI", or the "Company") and the Company's interest in associates. The Company is engaged principally in the development, installation and customization of software as well as in the provisioning of related professional services and support for customers globally across over 100 diverse markets.

2. Basis of presentation

(a) Statement of compliance

These condensed consolidated interim financial statements have been prepared in accordance with International Accounting Standard 34, Interim Financial Reporting ("IAS 34") as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board ("IASB") and using the accounting policies disclosed in Note 3 of the Company's 2025 annual consolidated financial statements, available on the System for Electronic Document Analysis and Retrieval ("SEDAR+") at www.sedarplus.com, except as disclosed herein.

These condensed consolidated interim financial statements were approved and authorized for issuance by the Board of Directors of the Company on May 12, 2026.

These condensed consolidated interim financial statements should be read in conjunction with the Company's 2025 annual consolidated financial statements.

(b) Basis of measurement

The condensed consolidated interim financial statements have been prepared on the historical cost basis except for certain assets and liabilities initially recognized in connection with business combinations, derivative financial instruments, equity securities, and contingent consideration related to business acquisitions, which are measured at their estimated fair value.

(c) Functional and presentation of currency

The condensed consolidated interim financial statements are presented in U.S. dollars, which is Constellation's functional currency.

(d) Use of estimates and judgements

The preparation of the condensed consolidated interim financial statements in conformity with IFRS requires management to make judgements, estimates and assumptions that affect the application of accounting policies and reported amounts of assets, liabilities, income and expenses, consistent with those disclosed in the 2025 annual consolidated financial statements and described in these condensed consolidated interim financial statements. Actual results may differ from these estimates.

Estimates and underlying assumptions are reviewed on an ongoing basis. Estimates are based on historical experience and other assumptions that are considered reasonable in the circumstances. The actual amount or values may vary in certain instances from the assumptions and estimates made. Changes will be recorded, with corresponding effect in profit or loss, when, and if, better information is obtained.

3. Material accounting policies

Unless otherwise noted in the condensed consolidated interim financial statements, the material accounting policies used in preparing these condensed consolidated interim financial statements are unchanged from those disclosed in the Company's 2025 annual consolidated financial statements and have been applied consistently to all periods presented in these condensed consolidated interim financial statements.

The accounting policies have been applied consistently by Constellation's subsidiaries.

The IASB has issued IFRS 18, Presentation and Disclosure in Financial Statements (replacing IAS 1, Presentation of Financial Statements), with an aim to improve how information is communicated in the financial statements, with a focus on information in the statement of income that will become effective on January 1, 2027. The Company is assessing the impacts IFRS 18 will have on the consolidated financial statements.

4. Business acquisitions

(a) On February 13, 2026, the Company completed the acquisition of 100% of the shares of Synchronoss Technologies, Inc. ("Synchronoss") for cash proceeds of $309.

Synchronoss is a software company that offers cloud-based software and services that enable communications service providers and other enterprises to manage, monetize, and securely deliver digital content, messaging, and customer engagement solutions. The acquired business operates in the communications and media market. The acquisition has been accounted for using the acquisition method with the results of operations included in the condensed consolidated interim financial statements for three months ended March 31, 2026 from the date of the acquisition.

The goodwill recognized in connection with this acquisition is primarily attributable to the application of the Company's best practices to improve the operations of the company acquired, synergies with existing businesses of the Company, and other intangible assets that do not qualify for separate recognition including assembled workforce. The goodwill is not expected to be deductible for income tax purposes.

The gross contractual amounts of acquired receivables was $15; however, the Company has recorded an allowance of $NIL as part of the acquisition accounting to reflect contractual cash flows that are not expected to be collected.

Due to the complexity and timing of this acquisition, the Company is in the process of determining and finalizing the estimated fair value of the net assets acquired. The amounts determined on a provisional basis generally relate to net asset assessments and measurement of the assumed liabilities. The provisional purchase price allocations may differ from the final purchase price allocations, and these differences may be material. Revisions to the allocations will occur as additional information about the fair value of assets and liabilities becomes available.

|---|---|---|
| Assets acquired: | | |
| Cash | $ | 34 |
| Accounts receivable | | 15 |
| Other current assets | | 12 |
| Property and equipment | | 2 |
| Right of use assets | | 4 |
| Other non-current assets | | 4 |
| Technology assets | | 111 |
| Customer assets | | 175 |
| | | 356 |
| Liabilities assumed: | | |
| Current liabilities | | 31 |
| Deferred revenue | | 0 |
| Deferred income taxes | | 29 |
| Long-term lease obligations | | 8 |
| Other non-current liabilities | | 7 |
| | | 75 |
| Total consideration | $ | 309 |

The acquisition of Synchronoss contributed revenue of $22 and a net loss of $2 for the three months ended March 31, 2026. If this acquisition had occurred on January 1, 2026, the Company estimates that pro-forma consolidated revenue and pro-forma condensed consolidated interim net income would have been $3,201 and $402 compared to the actual amounts reported in the consolidated statement of income (loss) for three months ended March 31, 2026.

(b) During the three months ended March 31, 2026, the Company completed a number of additional acquisitions for aggregate cash consideration of $388 plus cash holdbacks of $91 and contingent consideration with an estimated acquisition date fair value of $21. The total consideration resulting from the additional acquisitions in the three months ended March 31, 2026 was $500. The contingent consideration is payable on the achievement of certain financial targets in the post-acquisition periods. The obligation for contingent consideration for acquisitions during the three months ended March 31, 2026 has been recorded at its estimated fair value at the various acquisition dates. The estimated fair value of the applicable contingent consideration is calculated using the estimated financial outcome and resulting expected contingent consideration to be paid and inclusion of a discount rate as appropriate. For these arrangements, which include both maximum, or capped, and unlimited contingent consideration amounts, the estimated increase to the initial consideration is not expected to exceed $27.

Aggregate contingent consideration of $225 (December 31, 2025 - $215) has been reported in the condensed consolidated interim statement of financial position at its estimated fair value relating to applicable acquisitions completed in the current and prior periods. Changes made to the estimated fair value of contingent consideration are included in other, net in the condensed consolidated interim statements of income (loss). An expense of $4 has been recorded for the three months ended March 31, 2026 (an expense of $7 for the three months ended March 31, 2025).

No additional acquisitions were deemed to be individually significant. The majority of the businesses acquired during the period were acquisitions of shares and the remainder were asset acquisitions. The cash holdbacks are generally payable over a two-year period and are adjusted, as necessary, for such items as working capital or net tangible asset assessments, as defined in the agreements, and claims under the respective representations and warranties of the purchase and sale agreements.

The additional acquisitions during the three months ended March 31, 2026 include software companies catering to the following markets: accounting, agriculture equipment dealers, asset management, automotive, aviation, chemicals, content management, education, enterprise resource planning, financial services, fitness, gaming, gas monitoring, government, healthcare, hospitality, human capital, insurance, legal, manufacturing, mining, planning, policy and procedure management, procurement, real estate, retail management and distribution, social compliance, and telematics all of which are software businesses similar to existing businesses operated by the Company. The acquisitions have been accounted for using the acquisition method with the results of operations included in these consolidated financial statements from the date of each acquisition.

The goodwill recognized in connection with these additional acquisitions is primarily attributable to the application of Constellation's best practices to improve the operations of the companies acquired, synergies with existing businesses of Constellation, and other intangible assets that do not qualify for separate recognition including assembled workforce. Goodwill in the amount of $19 is expected to be deductible for income tax purposes.

The gross contractual amounts of acquired receivables was $43; however, the Company has recorded an allowance of $2 as part of the acquisition accounting to reflect contractual cash flows that are not expected to be collected.

Due to the complexity and timing of certain additional acquisitions made, the Company is in the process of determining and finalizing the estimated fair value of the net assets acquired as part of the acquisitions closed during the three months ended March 31, 2026 and the last nine months of 2025. The amounts determined on a provisional basis generally relate to net asset assessments and measurement of the assumed liabilities, including acquired contract liabilities. The provisional purchase price allocations may differ from the final purchase price allocations, and these differences may be material. Revisions to the allocations will occur as additional information about the fair value of assets and liabilities becomes available. The cash consideration associated with these provisional estimates (including individually significant acquisitions) totals $1,830.

The aggregate impact of acquisition accounting applied in connection with the aggregate of business acquisitions that are not individually significant in the period ended March 31, 2026 is as follows:

|---|---|---|
| Assets acquired: | | |
| Cash | $ | 43 |
| Accounts receivable | | 41 |
| Other current assets | | 39 |
| Property and equipment | | 8 |
| Right of use assets | | 17 |
| Other non-current assets | | 2 |
| Deferred income taxes | | 5 |
| Technology assets | | 229 |
| Customer assets | | 273 |
| | | 656 |
| Liabilities assumed: | | |
| Current liabilities | | 55 |
| Deferred revenue | | 70 |
| Deferred income taxes | | 93 |
| Long-term lease obligations | | 13 |
| Other non-current liabilities | | 1 |
| | | 231 |
| Non-controlling interest | | (0) |
| Goodwill | | 76 |
| Bargain purchase gain | | (0) |
| Aggregate purchase price | $ | 500 |
| Non-cash consideration: | | |
| Fair value of investment in affiliate in which control was acquired | | (0) |
| Total consideration | | 500 |

(c) The 2026 additional business acquisitions did not have a material impact to either the consolidated revenue or the consolidated net income (loss) for the three months ended March 31, 2026. The materiality threshold is reviewed on a regular basis taking into account the quantitative (contribution to revenue and net income (loss)) and qualitative (size and comparability with other Constellation businesses) factors of current period acquisitions on both an individual and aggregate basis.

(d) The chart below outlines the significant measurement period adjustments and adjustments to estimated holdback payables on prior year acquisitions which have been reflected on the condensed consolidated interim statement of financial position as of December 31, 2025.

Asseco offers comprehensive, proprietary IT solutions for certain sectors of the economy and is listed on the Polish Warsaw Stock Exchange (the "WSE"). The Company applies the equity method of accounting to its investment in Asseco as a result of its ability to exercise significant influence over Asseco. Under the equity method of accounting, the investment is initially recognized at cost and is subsequently adjusted to reflect the Company's share of profit or loss and other comprehensive income (loss) of Asseco. The Company has elected to use "lag reporting" in relation to its investment in Asseco. The Company will record its share of profit or loss and other comprehensive income (loss) on a "three-month lag" because the concurrent financial information is impracticable to obtain from Asseco. Due to the complexity and timing of the investment, the Company is in the process of determining and finalizing the estimated fair value of the net assets acquired. The provisional purchase price allocation may differ from the final purchase price allocation, and these differences may be material. Revisions to the allocation will occur as additional information about the fair value of assets and liabilities becomes available.

The below table presents a reconciliation of the investment in Asseco from the beginning of the period to the end of the period:

CSI Facility

On January 31, 2024, the Company completed an amendment and restatement of its existing credit facility agreement (the "CSI Facility"). The facility limit was increased from $840 to $1,085, with a syndicate of existing and new institutions. The agreement has also moved from a secured to an unsecured facility structure, which continues to be available for general corporate purposes including acquisitions and working capital. The CSI Facility is guaranteed by certain subsidiaries of the Company. The CSI Facility bears a variable interest rate with no fixed repayments required over the term to maturity. Interest rates are calculated at standard U.S. and Canadian reference rates plus interest rate spreads based on a leverage table. The CSI Facility contains standard events of default which if not remedied within a cure period would trigger the repayment of any outstanding balance. As at March 31, 2026, $nil (December 31, 2025 – $nil) had been drawn from this credit facility, and letters of credit totaling $13 (December 31, 2025 - $13) were issued, which limits the borrowing capacity on a dollar-for-dollar basis.

Senior Notes

On February 16, 2024, the Company completed a private offering of $500 aggregate principal amount of 5.158% senior notes due 2029 and $500 aggregate principal amount of 5.461% senior notes due 2034 (collectively, the "Senior Notes"). The Senior Notes are senior unsecured obligations of the Company and rank equally in right of payment to all of the Company's existing and future senior unsecured indebtedness, including the CSI Facility. The Senior Notes are guaranteed by certain subsidiaries of the Company on the same basis as such subsidiaries have guaranteed the CSI Facility. Transaction costs associated with the Senior Notes are being amortized through profit or loss using the effective interest rate method.

Liability of CSI under the terms of the IRGA/TSS Members Agreement

On December 23, 2014, in accordance with the terms of the purchase and sale agreement for the initial acquisition of Total Specific Solutions ("TSS") by CSI, and on the basis of the term sheets attached thereto, Constellation and the sellers of TSS along with certain members of TSS' executive management team (collectively, the "Joday Group") among others, entered into a Members Agreement (the "TSS Members Agreement") pursuant to which the Joday Group acquired 33.29% of the voting interests in Constellation Software Netherlands Holding Coöperatief U.A. (which was renamed to Topicus.com Coöperatief U.A., ("Topicus Coop")), a subsidiary of Constellation and the indirect owner of 100% of TSS at the time of the acquisition. Total proceeds from this transaction was EUR 39.

On January 5, 2021, the TSS Members Agreement was terminated in conjunction with the acquisition of Topicus.com B.V., the reorganization of Topicus Coop and the execution of the Investors Rights and Governance Agreement ("IRGA"). The IRGA was established to create certain contractual obligations of the parties in respect of the governance of Topicus and Topicus Coop. The IRGA provides for transfer restrictions in respect of the ordinary units of Topicus Coop ("Topicus Coop Ordinary Units" or the "Topicus Coop Units").

Any time after January 5, 2021, any member of the Joday Group has the right, at their option, to sell any number of its Topicus Coop Units to CSI at a cash price per Topicus Coop Unit determined in accordance with the IRGA. Upon the exercise of such option by a member of the Joday Group, CSI will be obligated to purchase 33.33% of such Topicus Coop Units within 30 days, and an additional 33.33% on each of the first and the second anniversary of such initial purchase with the exception of certain items including the Company's obligations under the IRGA associated with the investment in Sygnity and Asseco which have been classified as a current liability and are expected to be settled through providing Joday their prorated share of the investments. Notwithstanding the foregoing, CSI can offer Topicus the right to purchase such Topicus Coop Units in lieu of CSI.

In the event of a change of control of CSI, any member of the Joday Group has the right, at their option, to sell all of its Topicus Coop Units to CSI at a cash price per Topicus Coop Unit determined in accordance with the IRGA. Upon the exercise of such option by a member of the Joday Group, CSI will be obligated to purchase all such Topicus Coop Units. Notwithstanding the foregoing, CSI can offer Topicus the right to purchase such Topicus Coop Units in lieu of CSI.

If CSI reduces its economic interest in Topicus by a sale or transfer of its economic interest (and not due to any additional issuance of any shares or equity by Topicus) by more than one-third (calculated on a fully converted basis in accordance with the IRGA), any member of the Joday Group has the right, at their option, to sell to CSI one-third of its Topicus Coop Units at a cash price per Topicus Coop Unit determined in accordance with the IRGA. Upon the exercise of such put option by a member of the Joday Group, CSI will be obligated to purchase all such put Topicus Coop Units. Notwithstanding the foregoing, CSI can offer Topicus the right to purchase such Topicus Coop Units in lieu of CSI. Any member of the Joday Group has a similar right to sell one-half or all of its remaining Topicus Coop Units, respectively, at its option, if CSI further reduces its remaining fully-diluted economic interest in Topicus by a sale or transfer of its economic interest by one-half and again if CSI sells its entire remaining economic interest in Topicus.

All of the Topicus Coop Ordinary Units held by the Joday Group and Ijssel B.V. (collectively, the "Topicus Coop Exchangeable Units") are exchangeable, directly or indirectly, for Topicus Subordinate Voting Shares. All of the above rights of members of the Joday Group apply to any Topicus Subordinate Voting Shares issued on an exchange of Topicus Coop Exchangeable Units.

At any time after December 31, 2023, CSI has the right, at its option, to buy all of the Topicus Coop Units and shares of Topicus held by certain members of the Joday Group (excluding Joday Investments VI B.V. ("Joday")) at a cash price per Topicus Coop Unit (or share of Topicus, as applicable) determined in accordance with the IRGA. After December 31, 2043, CSI has the same right to buy all of the Topicus Coop Units and shares of Topicus held by the remaining members of the Joday Group, including Joday.

In addition, if certain individuals affiliated with Joday are terminated from their employment with Topicus Coop or an affiliate thereof for urgent cause (as defined in the Dutch Civil Code), CSI has the right, at its option, to buy all of Topicus Coop Units held by such individuals at a cash price per Topicus Coop Unit determined in accordance with the IRGA.

The Company has continued to classify the above obligations of CSI under the terms of the IRGA as a liability. The main valuation driver in such calculation is the maintenance and other recurring revenue of Topicus. Maintenance and recurring revenue of Topicus for the trailing twelve months on a pro-forma basis determined at the end of the current reporting period was used as the basis for valuing the interests at each redemption date, excluding Sygnity. The valuation of the Company's obligations under the IRGA associated with the Company's investment in Sygnity and Asseco are based on the fair value of these investments as determined by their respective share prices at the end of each reporting period and the aggregate liability under the IRGA associated with these two investments has been classified as a current liability. The valuation of CSI's obligations under the IRGA is also impacted by the change in the net tangible assets of Topicus (as defined under the IRGA). As the net tangible assets increase (which is typically the result of net profits in the applicable period), the valuation of CSI's obligations under the IRGA increases. Any increase or decrease in the value of such liability is recorded as an expense or income in the condensed consolidated interim statements of income (loss) for the period.

Debentures

On October 1, 2014 and November 19, 2014, the Company issued debentures with a total principal value of C$96 for total proceeds of C$91. On September 30, 2015, the Company issued another tranche of debentures (collectively with the 2014 issuances called the "Debentures") with a total principal value of C$186 for total proceeds of C$214.

On October 6, 2023, a total of C$213 principal amount of debentures ("2023 Debentures") were issued at a price of C$133.00 per C$100.00 principal amount of 2023 Debentures purchased representing proceeds to the Company of C$283 which was used by the Company to pay down indebtedness under its existing credit facility. The 2023 Debentures were issued as an additional tranche of, and will form a single series with, the outstanding C$282 aggregate principal amount of Debentures.

The Debentures have a maturity date of March 31, 2040 (the "Maturity Date").

The interest rate from and including:

- March 31, 2024 but excluding March 31, 2025 is 10.4%
- March 31, 2025 but excluding March 31, 2026 is 8.9%
- March 31, 2026 but excluding March 31, 2027 is 8.6%

Subsequent from and including March 31, 2027 to but excluding the Maturity Date, the interest rate applicable to the Debentures will be reset on an annual basis on March 31 of each year, at a rate equal to the annual average percentage change in the All-items Consumer Price Index during the 12-month period ending on December 31 in the prior year (which amount may be positive or negative) plus 6.5%. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the interest rate applicable to the debentures will not be less than 0%. The Company may, subject to certain approvals, elect the Payment in Kind election ("PIK Election"), in lieu of paying interest in cash, to satisfy all or any portion of its interest obligation payable on an interest payment date by issuing to each Debenture holder PIK Debentures equal to the amount of the interest obligation to be satisfied. The PIK Debentures will have the same terms and conditions as the Debentures and will form part of the principal amount of the Debentures. If, on any interest payment date, the Company fails to pay the amount of interest owing on the Debentures in full in cash, the Company will not (A) declare or pay dividends of any kind on the Common Shares, nor (B) participate in any share buyback or redemption involving the Common Shares, until the date on which the Company pays such interest (or the unpaid portion thereof) in cash to holders of the Debentures; however, where the Company has issued PIK Debentures in respect of all or a portion of the amount of interest owing on the Debentures on an interest payment date, the Company may resume declaring or paying dividends of any kind on the Common Shares and participating in any share buyback or redemption involving the Common Shares beginning on the next earlier of (i) the interest payment date of which the Company pays the amount of interest owing on the Debentures in full in cash and (ii) the date on which the Company repays all amounts owing under the PIK Debenture. All payments in respect of the Debentures will be subordinated in right of payment to the prior payment in full of all senior indebtedness of the Company.

The Debentures will be redeemable in certain circumstances at the option of the Company or the holder. During the period beginning on March 16 and ending on March 31 of each year, the Company will have the right, at its option, to give notice to holders of Debentures of its intention to redeem the Debentures, in whole or in part, on March 31 in the year that is five years following the year in which notice is given, at a price equal to the principal amount thereof plus accrued and unpaid interest up to but excluding the date fixed for redemption. During the period beginning on March 1 and ending on March 15 of each year, holders of Debentures will also have the right, at their option, to give notice to the Company of their intention to require the Company to repurchase (or to "put") the Debentures, in whole or in part, on March 31 in the year that is five years following the year in which notice is given, at a price equal to the principal amount thereof plus accrued and unpaid interest up to but excluding the date fixed for repurchase.

The fair value of the debentures as at March 31, 2026 was $414 (December 31, 2025 - $426).

Term Loan

One of CSI's subsidiaries has entered into a GBP 65 term debt facility with a financial institution for which CSI has guaranteed the debt. The facility bears a fixed rate of interest. The term loan contains events of default that, if not remedied, allow the loan note holder to require repayment of the loan principal and interest. The loan is due in 2028.

9. Debt without recourse to CSI

Certain of CSI's subsidiaries have entered into term debt facilities and revolving credit facilities with various financial institutions. CSI does not guarantee the debt of these subsidiaries, nor are there any cross-guarantees between subsidiaries. The credit facilities are collateralized by substantially all of the assets of the borrowing entity and its subsidiaries. The credit facilities typically bear interest at a rate calculated using an interest rate index plus a margin. The financing arrangements for each subsidiary typically contain certain restrictive covenants, which may include limitations or prohibitions on additional indebtedness, payment of cash dividends, redemption of capital, capital spending, making of acquisitions and sales of assets. In addition, certain financial covenants must be met by those subsidiaries that have outstanding debt.

During 2025, the Company breached a debt covenant associated with a Term loan in one of its subsidiaries. The aggregate value of the loan at December 31, 2025 was $51 and the loan had been classified as a current liability. The breach related to administrative requirements relating to holding a certain amount of cash in the ring-fenced entity and was unrelated to the financial performance of the entity. CSI subsequently transferred the required cash, which amounted to $2, to the entity in the ring-fence and received a formal waiver from the lender in 2026.

In conjunction with the acquisition of Optimal Blue, the Company had entered into a promissory note agreement ("Promissory Note"). The Promissory Note accrues interest at a rate of 7% per annum, is compounded annually and is payable in arrears. The first cash interest and principal payment under the Promissory Note is due on the day prior to the fifth anniversary and thereafter interest and principal payments will be due annually on the

| | Topicus Revolving Credit Facility | Debt Facilities | Promissory Note | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Principal outstanding (and equal to fair value) | $ 104 | $ 1,925 | $ 500 | $ 2,529 |
| Deduct: Carrying value of transaction costs included in debt balance | (2) | (18) | - | (20) |
| Carrying value at March 31, 2026 | 101 | 1,908 | 500 | 2,509 |
| Current portion | 101 | 483 | - | 585 |
| Non-current portion | - | 1,425 | 500 | 1,925 |

The annual minimum repayment requirements for the debt facilities without recourse to CSI (excluding the Topicus Revolving Credit Facility and the Promissory Note) are as follows:

| Year | Debt Facilities |
| 2026 | 135 |
| 2027 | 680 |
| 2028 | 403 |
| 2029 | 154 |
| 2030 | 406 |
| 2031 | 7 |
| 2032 | 142 |
| 2033 and subsequent years | - |
| | 1,925 |

The annual minimum repayment requirements for the Promissory Note are as follows:

| Year | | March 31, 2026 |
|---|---|---|
| 2026 - 2029 | $ | 7 |
| 2030- 2063 | | 493 |
| Total | $ | 500 |

10. Provisions

| Provisions recorded during the period | | 6 |
| Provisions used during the period | | (10) |

| At March 31, 2026 | $ | 29 |
| Provisions classified as current liabilities | | 17 |
| Provisions classified as other non-current liabilities | | 12 |

The provisions balance is comprised of various individual provisions for onerous contracts and other estimated liabilities of the Company of uncertain timing or amount.

11. Income taxes

Income tax expense is recognized based on management's best estimate of the actual income tax rate for the interim period applied to the pre-tax income of the interim period for each entity in the consolidated group. As a result of foreign exchange fluctuations, acquisitions and ongoing changes due to intercompany transactions amongst entities operating in different jurisdictions, the Company has determined that a reasonable estimate of a weighted average annual tax rate cannot be determined on a consolidated basis. The Company's consolidated effective tax rate in respect of continuing operations for the three months ended March 31, 2026 was 19% (34% for the three months ended March 31, 2025). The March 31, 2026 effective tax rate was impacted by $11 of current tax expense relating to certain revaluation charges recorded in the Condensed Consolidated Interim Statement of Income (loss).

Constellation is subject to tax audits in the countries in which the Company does business globally. These tax audits could result in additional tax expense in future periods relating to historical filings. Reviews by tax authorities generally focus on, but are not limited to, the validity of the Company's intercompany transactions, including financing and transfer pricing policies which generally involve subjective areas of taxation and a significant degree of judgment. If any of these tax authorities are successful with their challenges, the Company's income tax expense may be adversely affected and Constellation could also be subject to interest and penalty charges.

Fair values versus carrying amounts

The carrying values of cash, accounts receivable, accounts payable, accrued liabilities, dividends payable, the majority of the acquisition holdbacks, and the CSI Facility, approximate their fair values due to the short-term nature of these instruments. The carrying value of the debt without recourse to CSI approximate their fair values as the debt is subject to market interest rates. The carrying value of the Senior Notes, IRGA liability and the Term Loan with recourse to CSI approximates fair value.

The table below analyzes financial instruments carried at fair value, by valuation method.

- level 1 inputs are quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities;
- level 2 inputs are inputs other than quoted prices included in level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability either directly (i.e. prices) or indirectly (i.e. derived from prices); and
- level 3 inputs are inputs for the asset or liability that are not based on observable market data (i.e. unobservable inputs).

In the table below, the Company has segregated all financial assets and liabilities that are measured at fair value into the most appropriate level within the fair value hierarchy based on the inputs used to determine the fair value at the measurement date.

Financial assets and financial liabilities measured at fair value as at March 31, 2026 and December 31, 2025 in the condensed consolidated interim financial statements are summarized below.

|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Level 1 | Level 2 | Level 3 | Total | Level 1 | Level 2 | Level 3 | Total |
| Assets: | | | | | | | | |
| Equity securities | $ 88 | $ - | $ - | $ 88 | $ 64 | $ - | $ - | $ 64 |
| Derivatives | - | - | 10 | 10 | - | - | 9 | 9 |
| | 88 | - | 10 | 98 | 64 | - | 9 | 73 |

| | - | - | 239 | 239 | - | - | 223 | 223 |

There were no transfers of fair value measurement between level 1, 2 and 3 of the fair value hierarchy in the periods ended March 31, 2026 and December 31, 2025.

The following table shows a reconciliation from the beginning balances to the ending balances for fair value measurements in level 3 of the fair value hierarchy.

|---|---|
| Balance at January 1, 2026 | $ 215 |
| Increase from business acquisitions | 21 |
| Cash payments | (16) |
| Charges (recoveries) through profit or loss | 7 |
| Foreign exchange and other movements | (2) |
| Balance at March 31, 2026 | 225 |
| Contingent consideration classified as current liabilities | 102 |
| Contingent consideration classified as other non-current liabilities | 123 |

Estimates of the fair value of contingent consideration are performed by the Company on a quarterly basis. Key unobservable inputs include revenue/profitability growth rates and the discount rates applied (7% to 11%). The estimated fair value increases as the annual revenue/profitability growth rate increases and as the discount rate decreases and vice versa.

Derivative assets and liabilities relate to contractual arrangements of the Company which have uncertain outcomes. If the probability of the outcomes associated with the contractual arrangements increases, the underlying value of the derivative will increase. If the probability of the outcomes decreases, the underlying value of the derivative will decrease. Assuming a probability of 100% and utilizing the observable inputs as of March 31, 2026, the maximum exposure of the Company's derivative liabilities is approximately $58 as of March 31, 2026.

16. Contingencies

In the normal course of operations, the Company is subject to litigation and claims from time to time. The Company may also be subject to lawsuits, investigations and other claims, including environmental, labour, income and sales tax, product, customer disputes and other matters. Management believes that adequate provisions have been recorded in the accounts where required. Although it is not always possible to estimate the extent of potential costs, if any, management believes that the ultimate resolution of such contingencies will not have a material adverse impact on the results of operations, financial position or liquidity of the Company.

Total consideration for the transaction was €240 million before adjusting for net tangible asset adjustments and claims under the representations and warranties of the purchase and sale agreement. The Company filed a business acquisition report on Form 51-102F4 in respect of the acquisition of TSS on March 6, 2014. On December 23, 2014, in accordance with the terms of the purchase and sale agreement for the TSS acquisition, the sellers of TSS along with certain members of TSS' executive management team (collectively, the "Minority Owners" or the "Joday Group") entered into a members agreement with CSI (the "Members Agreement") pursuant to which the Minority Owners acquired 33.29% of the voting interests in Constellation Software Netherlands Holdings Cooperatief U.A. (the "Coop"). Proceeds from this transaction in the amount of €39.4 million (US$48.5 million) were utilized to repay, in part, a term loan facility obtained for the purpose of funding the TSS acquisition. In accordance with IFRS, 100% of the financial results for TSS are included in the consolidated financial results of the Company. Prior to January 5, 2021, each of the Minority Owners had the right, at any time, to exercise a put option to sell all or a portion of their interests in the Coop back to CSI for an amount calculated in accordance with a valuation methodology described within the Members Agreement. Accordingly, the Company classified the proceeds from the Members Agreement as a liability. The main valuation driver in such calculation is the maintenance and other recurring revenue of the Coop. Upon the exercise of a put option, Constellation would have been obligated to redeem up to 33.33% of the Minority Owners' interests that were subject to the put, no later than 30 business days from the date the notice was received (classified as a current liability), and up to 33.33% on each of the first and second anniversaries of the date the first redemption payment was made. Commencing at any time after December 31, 2023, CSI was entitled to exercise a call option to purchase all of the Minority Owners' interests in the Coop, for an amount calculated in accordance with a valuation methodology described within the Members Agreement. Upon exercise of the call option, the full purchase price would have been paid within 30 business days of the notice date, following which the Minority Owners' membership in the Coop would be terminated. There was a valuation premium if the call option was exercised versus the put option.

On January 4, 2021 (in anticipation of the acquisition of Topicus.com B.V. ("Topicus B.V.") described further below), the Company's subsidiary, the Coop, which principally held the TSS Operating Group, completed a corporate reorganization. In conjunction with the reorganization, the following steps were completed:

- The Coop changed its name to Topicus.com Coöperatief U.A. ("Topicus Coop").
- The Company exchanged its existing equity interest in Topicus Coop for an equity interest in Topicus.com Inc. and Topicus.com Inc. became the new parent company of Topicus Coop. The Company received 39,412,385 preferred shares and 39,412,385 subordinate voting shares of Topicus.com Inc. The preferred shares were convertible into subordinate voting shares of Topicus.com Inc. at a rate of 1:1.
- Topicus.com Inc. had 39,412,385 subordinate voting shares outstanding on January 4, 2021. The Company distributed 39,412,367 of the subordinate voting shares to its common shareholders pursuant to the dividend-in-kind and continued to hold 18 subordinate voting shares.
- The Company holds 1 super voting share of Topicus.com Inc. The super voting share entitles the holder to that number of votes that equals 50.1% of the aggregate number of votes attached to all the outstanding super voting shares and subordinate voting shares of Topicus.com Inc. As a result, the Company controls Topicus.com Inc. and will consolidate its financial position and results of operations with Topicus.com Inc. The Company reflects a non-controlling interest held by other parties.

On May 20, 2020, the Company entered into a binding agreement, subject to certain closing conditions, with IJssel B.V. (the "Seller") to purchase 100% of the shares of Topicus B.V., a Netherlands-based diversified vertical market software provider. On January 5, 2021, the Company completed this transaction. Annual gross revenues of Topicus B.V. for 2019 were approximately €101 million and total tangible assets at December 31, 2019 were approximately €7 million. In connection with the acquisition the Company paid cash of €133.6 million. Furthermore, Topicus Coop issued 5,842,882 preferred units of Topicus Coop to the Seller for an initial subscription price of €83.8 million plus an additional subscription amount of €27.6 million which will be owed by the Seller to Topicus Coop and payable to Topicus Coop under certain conditions. Topicus Coop also issued 5,842,882 ordinary units of Topicus Coop to the Seller. The aggregate estimated total consideration was €217.4 million. Under certain conditions, the preferred units were retractable at the option of the holder for a retraction price of approximately €19.06 per unit and were classified as a liability on the balance sheet of Topicus.com Inc. and the Company. The preferred units were also convertible into ordinary units of Topicus Coop at a conversion ratio of 1:1 and the ordinary units are exchangeable for Topicus.com Inc. subordinate voting shares at a conversion ratio of 1:1. The preferred unit holders were also entitled to a fixed annual cumulative dividend of 5% per annum. On February 1, 2022, the preferred units were converted to ordinary units of Topicus Coop.

On January 5, 2021, the parties to the Members Agreement agreed to terminate such Members Agreement, and it was replaced by an Investor Rights and Governance Agreement ("IRGA").

The IRGA contains special provisions between the Company and the Minority Owners, including put options and call options applicable to units of Topicus Coop that are held by the Minority Owners as of January 5, 2021 (and any units or shares into which such units or shares have been converted or exchanged). The Minority Owners include Joday Investments VI B.V. ("Joday"), an entity controlled by Robin van Poelje (a director of the Company and the CEO and Chairman of the board of directors of Topicus.com Inc.) and Tjitske Strikwerda. Commencing any time after January 5, 2021, each of the Minority Owners may (i) exercise a put option to sell all or a portion of their interests in Topicus Coop, (ii) in the event of a change of control of the Company, sell all or a portion of their interests in Topicus Coop, and (iii) in the event the Company reduces its economic interest in Topicus.com Inc., sell the corresponding amount of their interests in Topicus Coop, in each case, to the Company for an amount calculated in accordance with a valuation methodology described in the IRGA. At any time after December 31, 2023, CSI has the right, at its option, to buy all of the Topicus Coop units and Topicus shares held by certain members of the Joday Group (excluding Joday) at a cash price per Topicus Coop unit determined in accordance with the IRGA. After December 31, 2043, CSI has the same right to buy all of the Topicus Coop units held by the remaining members of the Joday Group, including Joday. Similar to the Members Agreement, the main valuation driver in such calculation is the maintenance and other recurring revenue of Topicus Coop. This summary is qualified in its entirety by reference to the provisions of the IRGA, which is available at www.sedarplus.com on Topicus.com Inc.'s issuer profile.

In 2024, the Company exercised its call right to buy some of the Topicus Coop units held by certain members of the Joday Group (excluding Joday), since these members are either (a) no longer directly or indirectly involved in or contributing to the activities of Topicus Coop, or (b) no longer involved as manager of Topicus Coop, but solely in a supervisory role at a subsidiary level. The Company now holds 188,953 Topicus Coop units and 40,406,513 Topicus.com Inc. subordinate voting shares.

- The Company holds 1 super voting share of Lumine. The super voting share entitles the holder to that number of votes that equals 50.1% of the aggregate number of votes attached to all the outstanding super voting shares, subordinate voting shares and special shares of Lumine. As a result, the Company controls Lumine and consolidates its financial position and results of operations with Lumine. The Company reflects a non-controlling interest held by other parties.

Furthermore, Lumine issued 10,204,294 special shares of Lumine to the sellers of WideOrbit for an initial subscription price of approximately $222 million which was included in the purchase consideration. Under certain conditions, the special shares were retractable at the option of the holder for a retraction price of approximately $21.74 per special share plus one subordinate voting share of Lumine for each special share held and were classified as a liability on the balance sheet of Lumine and the Company. The special shares were also convertible into subordinate voting shares of Lumine at a conversion ratio of 1:3.43 at any time. The holders of the special shares were also entitled to a fixed annual cumulative dividend of 5% per annum. On March 25, 2024, all of the preferred shares and special shares of Lumine were converted into subordinate voting shares of Lumine, and additional subordinate voting shares were issued in satisfaction of the amounts owing in connection with the accrued dividends on the preferred shares and special shares. As of March 29, 2024, the Company holds 157,553,539 subordinate voting shares of Lumine.

Any Sellers who were not Majority Rollover Shareholders (collectively, the "Minority Rollover Shareholders") became parties to the Shareholders Agreement pursuant to joinders entered into in connection with the issuance of special shares described above. The Shareholders Agreement includes a number of contractual provisions which impact the exercise by the Company, Trapeze Software ULC, the Majority Rollover Shareholders, Minority Rollover Shareholders and Lumine, as applicable, of certain rights and obligations. ## DESCRIPTION OF THE BUSINESS

We acquire, manage and build VMS businesses. Generally, these businesses provide mission critical software solutions that address the specific needs of our customers in particular vertical markets. Our focus on acquiring businesses with growth potential, managing them well and then building them has allowed us to generate significant cash flow and revenue growth.

Using a combination of proprietary software and market expertise, we provide software solutions designed to enable our customers to boost productivity, operate more cost effectively, increase sales and improve customer service and satisfaction.

Many of the VMS businesses that we acquire have the potential to be leaders within their particular markets. We target the VMS sector because of the attractive economics that it provides and our belief that our management teams have a deep understanding of those economics.

Business Strategy

Given our extensive acquisition experience and successful track record, we believe that we are well positioned to identify, acquire, manage and build attractive VMS businesses in new markets. We seek acquisitions that provide software solutions to either the public or private sectors.

When one of our acquired VMS businesses is being operated efficiently, we encourage their management to build their business through a combination of organic growth and acquisitions of other VMS businesses in the same vertical market. We often enter new vertical markets through acquisitions of VMS businesses in markets in which we do not currently operate.

We believe that we will continue to expand our existing businesses through organic growth initiatives aimed at increasing our market share and product breadth. We will also continue to identify and complete acquisitions in our existing vertical markets. Our decentralized VMS management teams have extensive knowledge of their markets and deep customer relationships. This enables them to successfully identify, pursue, structure, acquire and then coach businesses post-acquisition.

We also seek to acquire attractive VMS businesses in new markets to deploy our free cash flow at attractive returns. Historically, we have retained the majority of the managers from the businesses that we have acquired, which has allowed us to retain the knowledge needed to manage and successfully build these businesses.

Our VMS businesses typically generate significant cash flows which we redeploy to build our existing VMS businesses and acquire new ones.

We prefer to acquire VMS businesses with the following characteristics: Growing business with a diversified customer base, high relative market share and capital constrained competitors. We sometimes acquire VMS businesses with declining revenue, concentrated customer bases, low relative market share and well-funded competitors. We do so when we believe that the correct combination of customer relationship management and market segmentation will lead to attractive returns.

Our decentralized management structure is key to our continued revenue growth. We have experienced management teams operating in each VMS business, backed by infrastructure at the operating group level and a small corporate head office. The corporate head office provides financial and strategic expertise with respect to capital allocation, acquisitions, finance, tax, and compensation policy, and attempts to identify and share best practices.

We have six operating groups which currently service customers in more than 150 different vertical markets worldwide. There are many VMS business units within each of our operating groups. Each VMS business unit has a manager and separately tracked financial reporting. We monitor and measure each VMS business unit's performance through operating ratios and metrics including profitability and growth. The majority of our senior managers' incentive compensation is linked to these two performance metrics.

Each of our VMS business managers is motivated to administer their business in a highly-focused manner. They are encouraged to leverage their respective market knowledge in order to maximize the growth opportunities, profitability and return on invested capital within their business. Our corporate head office sets investment return objectives.

Our decentralized management structure allows us to have business unit management teams with strong customer relationships and deep market knowledge that are more focused and responsive than would be the case under a centralized management model. These teams provide our corporate head office and operating group managers with the ability to concentrate on issues such as capital allocation, identifying best practices, and helping recruit and coach high potential employees, while the VMS business managers concentrate on operating efficiency, and pursuing organic initiatives and acquisitions in our existing vertical markets.

We establish from time to time, what we consider to be an acceptable after-tax internal rate of return ("IRR") as a hurdle rate for all of our new initiatives and acquisitions.

All of our operating group cash flow (excluding operating cash flows from those entities which have stand-alone debt without recourse to Constellation Software Inc.) is notionally available to our corporate head office. Capital is allocated amongst individual management teams based upon projected IRR which is influenced by the relative attractiveness of a market, the strategic position of the VMS business and the management team's performance. Corporate head office approves all significant acquisitions. In practice, the operating group cash flow is offset against their approved investments in acquisitions and internal investment initiatives and only the remainder is returned to head office.

The objective of our compensation plan is to reward employees for working towards our corporate goal of increasing shareholder value. We believe that shareholder value is created by managing two financial components over the long term: profitability and growth. As such, our bonus plan compensates employees at many levels of our organization based upon the profitability and revenue growth of their operating group or business unit, as applicable. The long-term focus is accomplished by mandating that at least 25% of the incentive compensation for the majority of our senior employees who earn in excess of $75,000 per annum and have bonuses in excess of $10,000 per annum be reinvested in shares of the Company that are subject to restrictions on resale for a period of three to ten years. At a minimum, these restrictions require employees to hold 100% of their shares for the first two years following acquisition, and then one third of such shares may be sold in each of years three, four and five. Senior executives are required to invest 75% of their bonus in shares of the Company that are subject to the same restrictions on resale for a period of three to ten years. Once every five years, employees may elect to receive 100% of their bonus in cash.

Our bonus plan encourages employees to participate through share ownership in the value that they have created.
